VOL. XCVI—No. 277 CITY OF KINGSTON N. Y., TUESDAY EVENING, SEPTEMBER 12, 1967 PRICE TEN CENTS

Mayor Names 5 to UR Agency Posts

BY HUGH REYNOLDS
A new, five-member Kingston Urban Renewal Agency was appointed this morning by Mayor Raymond W. Garraghan. They include Peter Keresman of 69 Florence Street, Orrie R. Riehl of 176 O'Neil Street, Mrs. Alexander (Cora) Miller of 100 Hunter Street, Henry F. Millonig of 61 Hemlock Avenue and G. Scott Alexander of Shady Lane.

Riehl, city treasurer, is presently running for county legislator from Kingston on the Democratic-Liberal ticket. His appointment will run until June 30, 1972, however, Garraghan said he will probably serve only until the first of the year.

"Riehl will help get this thing started," Garraghan said, "and keep me and the Common Council posted on progress, especially from the financial viewpoint."

Millonig, whose term will expire June 30, 1970, is administrative vice president of Canfield Supply. He is a 1952 graduate of Bowling Green State University in Ohio, earning a business administration degree. The Kingston High School graduate has been an employee of Canfield for 10 years.

Alexander will serve until June 30, 1970. He is the business manager at Kingston Plaza.

Speaking of Millonig and Alexander, Garraghan said "These two outstanding business leaders of the community have the drive and desire to make Kingston, the city in the Hudson Valley."

Garraghan said that Millonig and Alexander were "two young men who look to what Kingston will be 25 years from now."

Term Ends in '69
Mrs. Miller, a resident of Kingston for the past 25 years will serve until June 30, 1969. She is a graduate of Highland High School in Gastonia N.C. She attended St. Augustine's College in Raleigh, N. C., and is a graduate practical nurse from the Wayne School in Chicago.

She has been a member of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People since 1949 and has served as a secretary to the Church of God in Christ. She has also served on the Mayor's Subcommittee on Urban Renewal.

Keresman, a former secretary to the State Police Conference, will serve until June 30 of next year. Retired, he is also well known for his work with the American Legion.

Garraghan considers Keresman "an outstanding citizen" and possible chairman of the board since he would have the most free time.

Garraghan pointed out that the choice of a chairman would be by vote of members of the agency, not him. Originally, Garraghan had intended to set the length of appointments of each member by having them draw lots. Apparently, this did not meet with their approval, thus the terms are set by Garraghan.

Plans to Attend
The mayor said he will take a much more active role in urban renewal than previously, which will include attending the monthly meetings. "After all," he said, "this is my board. It's my responsibility."

Garraghan emphasized that Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick had no hand in choosing any (Con. on Page 6 Col. 6)

Javits' Team Says Get on With It

Senator Jacob K. Javits' investigative team was in town yesterday afternoon and recommended the forgetting of past problems in urban renewal and getting on with the building of a new Kingston.

The team was led by James Grossman, legislative aid to the GOP Senator and his advisor on urban renewal, along with Department of Housing and Urban Development officials Stanley Freeman and Bernard Shure. Freeman is the Kingston representative for HUD.

Problems in Future
Grossman told The Freeman this morning, "This reshaping of past problems has got to stop. The problems of Kingston are in the future, not the past."

Grossman said he spoke to Senator Javits this morning and the Senator assured him that he would keep in close touch with the urban renewal situation in Kingston and offer any assistance he could.

The Senator's aid expressed keen interest in the proposed Rondout Recreation Center. He said that he's learned that a Part II application would be submitted for a grant within the next few weeks.

Need Recreation
Said Grossman, "This recreation facility is an absolute must for the people in downtown Kingston. It isn't enough to just demolish and build new housing for them. You've got to provide a facility where they can receive social services and recreational benefits."

Grossman said the facility would include a children's day care center and recreation for senior citizens, which in his words, "has been lacking until now."

Mayor Raymond W. Garraghan, who along with civic and business leaders, met with Grossman, said he will ask the Common Council to appropriate money for an indoor swimming pool for the Rondout Recreation Center. The mayor said the federal government would not approve plans for a swimming pool but that the building was designed for one.

'Get Uptown Going'
Speaking of Uptown urban renewal, Grossman said, "I hope that the new agency will give serious consideration to the long overdue review of the Uptown Urban Renewal plan."

The Uptown project has been stalled because of plan changes requests. The main change, according to Mayor Garraghan, will be the demolition of the Montgomery Ward building on North Front Street which will be the site of a parking lot for 425 cars. The plan calls for 225 cars to be parked below ground level, the remaining 200 in the plaza.

Also on the fire for Uptown is a dyke from Murphy Street to the overpass behind Kingston Plaza, which the Army Corps of Engineers proposes to build for about $800,000. This will be built to control the periodic flooding of the Esopus Creek. Some of the land to be dedicated to the Corps of Engineers is in the urban renewal area. If the Uptown Urban Renewal Plan is not approved within six months the whole project could go out the window.

Need Professional
Grossman strongly recommended the hiring of a professional urban renewal executive director. "You need a professional competent man to run this program," he said. "Progress is of the utmost importance in Kingston. There are a lot of cities requesting funds for urban renewal and up until now Kingston's track record has not been too good."

NEW UR BOARD—Mayor Raymond W. Garraghan's new Kingston Urban Renewal Agency was appointed today. They include, standing (L) Peter Keresman, Orrie R. Riehl and Henry F. Millonig. Seated are Ward Tongue, temporary executive director and Mrs. Alexander (Cora) Miller. The other member of the agency, G. Scott Alexander, was not present for the picture in the mayor's office. Javits' Team Says Get on With It

Senator Jacob K. Javits' investigative team was in town yesterday afternoon and recommended the forgetting of past problems in urban renewal and getting on with the building of a new Kingston.

The team was led by James Grossman, legislative aid to the GOP Senator and his advisor on urban renewal, along with Department of Housing and Urban Development officials Stanley Freeman and Bernard Shure. Freeman is the Kingston representative for DHUD.

Problems in Future Grossman told The Freeman this morning, "This reshaping of past problems has got to stop. The problems of Kingston are in the future, not the past."

Grossman said he spoke to Senator Javits this morning and the Senator assured him that he would keep in close touch with the urban renewal situation in Kingston and offer any assistance he could. The mayor said the federal government would not approve plans for a swimming pool but that the building was designed for one.

The Uptown project has been stalled because of plan changes requests. The main change, according to Mayor Garraghan, will be the demolition of the Montgomery Ward building on North Front Street which will be the site of a parking lot for 425 cars. The plan calls for 225 cars to be parked below ground level, the remaining 200 in the plaza.

Also on the fire for Uptown is a dyke from Murphy Street to the overpass behind Kingston Plaza which the Army Corps of Engineers proposes to build for about $800,000. This will be built to control the periodic flooding of the Esopus Creek. Some of the land to be devoted to the Corps of Engineers is in the urban renewal area. Navy Planes Bomb Port SAIGON (AP) — U.S. Navy Antiaircraft and missiles barges sent against the raiders included two Soviet-built SAM rockets that apparently went out of control and exploded near three ships, including one Polish and one Italian, anchored in the Red River mouth 20 miles from the port. One missile exploded 1,800 feet above the ships and the other exploded in the water about 2,000 yards away.

The raids into the heavily defended heartland of North Vietnam maintained a U.S. policy of putting as much pressure as possible on the Hanoi regime before monsoons curtail air operations against the North in about a month.

The intensified air war was paralleled by heavy ground fighting Monday and today in South Vietnam's northern war zone where U.S. Marines have been fighting off freshly equipped North Vietnamese regulars.

The Marines reported 40 Communist soldiers and 14 Marines killed and 35 Marines wounded in two actions Monday and two shelling attacks today.

Meanwhile, South Vietnamese forces suffered heavy casualties in two attacks early today south of Da Nang.

U.S. B52 bombers made the raids early today on North Vietnamese positions inside the demilitarized zone from which the Communists send troops south against the Marines and bombarded the Leatherneck outposts just below the zone.

Navy pilots returning from the Haiphong raids reported a hail of SAM missiles and antiaircraft fire, and Hanoi Radio claimed two U.S. jets were shot down.

The U.S. Command reported no losses on the Haiphong strike, but said a B57 Canberra was shot down Monday north of the demilitarized zone and the two crewmen were missing. It was the 674th U.S. combat plane reported lost in the air war against North Vietnam.

A comprehensive estimate of the damage in Haiphong Monday was unavailable until film from photo planes was developed.

Spanned Canal The bridges spanned the big canal that bisects Haiphong and carried the main rail and road traffic for Hanoi to the west. They were located one mile and eight-tenths of a mile from the geographic center of the city, the U.S. Command said.

The closest raid previously to the center of Haiphong was an attack last April on a cement plant and power plant 1.1 miles from the center.

The spokesman said none of the four targets had been hit previously. The most recent attack close in to Haiphong was on Sept. 4 against the big rail bridge about three miles southeast of the city.

Air Force, Navy and Marine pilots flew 110 missions against North Vietnam Monday. In addition to the targets in Haiphong, they pounded the two rail lines from Hanoi to Red China and ranged southward to strike supply targets, missile sites and gun positions down to the demilitarized zone between North and South Vietnam.

Just north of the DMZ a flight of Phantom and Thunderchief jets destroyed one of the mobile transporters that carry the 37-foot, Soviet-made antiaircraft missiles.

In the ground war, military communiques reported at least 175 Communists killed in scattered fights in the preceding 24 hours.

Action again centered in the five provinces of the northern war zone where the U.S. Marines have been battling infiltrating North Vietnamese troops for the past nine days. The Communists appear ready for an intensive effort to weaken the allied hold on the five provinces which are politically the shakiest in South Vietnam.

South Vietnamese forces south of Da Nang were hit hard.

Our Boys Write From Vietnam

Editor's Note: The Kingston Daily Freeman is privileged to publish letters written to the Ulster County Vietnam's Servicemen's Committee of Ulster Hose Co. No. 5 by Kingston area men serving with the armed forces in Vietnam. We hope in this way we can better let our readers know how our boys in service feel.

Sgt. Major Culver Ten Broeck writes from Vietnam:

"I am writing this note to thank you for two packages I have received from your organization. They both arrived in good shape and the contents were greatly appreciated.

"It is through actions of the people like yourselves in Ulster County that make us over here realize that everyone in the states hasn't the anti-Vietnam fever. Most of the news we get from the U.S.A. is in reference to riots and anti-Vietnam demonstrations.

"We over here sometimes get disgusted with the whole affair, but when common sense prevails we realize there is a purpose for us being here. The work you people are putting in handling these packages makes us realize that we are not forgotten here.

"I don't know how many packages you plan to send but I am departing here October 7, for Fort Stewart, Ga., so any packages you have scheduled for me please hold for someone who has longer than I to go in this country.

"Again I want to thank you for the time and effort that you have all put into this project."

Sp. 4 Raymond Lane from his post in Vietnam writes:

"I would like to extend my gratitude for those much needed packages. Items you have sent such as soap, toothpaste and gum are especially hard to get during certain times of the year.

"I am sure that all the Ulster men and I agree that its real nice when a GI can depend on his own neighbors' support when serving his time.

"Thanks again and keep up the good work. May God bless and guide us towards worldwide freedom."

PFC Stanley Chandler writes from Vietnam:

"Received a package in the mail today and noticed the return address of Ulster Hose Co. 5. I knew right away what it was. I heard so much about the Ulster County support of Vietnam and I was glad to receive the package.

"The pictures are really great. I used to work at the Community Theater. As for the other cans and boxes, it was something and greatly appreciated.

"Believe me I will never forget this. It is the best thing that can happen to a guy in Vietnam. I will make good use of the contents. The plastic bags are ideal."

Raymond Cocks of Woodstock writes from Vietnam:

"This is just a short note to let you know that I have received the packages you sent for me and to express my appreciation for them.

"It's nice to know that the people outside of their families are thinking of the men over here."

Nearly 70 Start Nursery School

School opened Monday for nearly 70 three and four-year-olds from the greater Kingston area. They will attend Fair Street Nursery School on a regular schedule until June—following the calendar of the Kingston Consolidated Schools—learning physical skills and social attitudes which will make them welcome additions to their future kindergarten classes, and give them a firm foundation on which to build a successful school career.

Fair Street is the only nursery school in the area to be registered with the New York State Department of Education, and students from New Paltz and Cobleskill have done part of their practice teaching at Fair Street for many years under the direction of its founder and director, Mrs. Benjamin Emerick.

Fair Street Nursery, in its 17th year, is a non-profit, non-sectarian pre-school located in rooms built especially for it in the modern education building of the Fair Street Church. A large, enclosed play-yard adjoins the school and the equipment is comparable to the finest pre-schools in the New York area. Interested parents may telephone Mrs. Emerick at the school concerning the afternoon session from 1 to 3:30 p. m. in which there are still a few openings.

Non-farm employment rose 47 per cent in Nevada between 1961 and 1966. The gain was the biggest increase in the country, figures from the U.S. Department of Labor show.

Beulah Calms Down After Leaving 18 Dead

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Mountain peaks reaching 8,000 feet into Hurricane Beulah tamed the once-mighty storm to 75 miles an hour today but not before Beulah raised its Caribbean death toll to 18 and headed for the tourist resorts of Jamaica.

The U.S. Weather Bureau said Beulah was expected to build up its strength on the march over open water before nearing the island of Jamaica.

At midnight the storm was centered about 700 miles south of Miami and was moving west. A slight turn to the north-west was forecast. Such a turn could affect Cuba, said forecaster Joseph Pellissier.

Arnold Sugg, a forecaster, said it was too early to predict the effect on the United States. Two Atlantic hurricanes, Doria and Chloe, remained far from land.

Chloe, moving west from far out in the Atlantic, was said to pose no threat to land for the next two days.

Doria, a "minimal hurricane" centered 500 miles east of Norfolk, Va., was moving to the east at about 14 m.p.h. She was still kicking up the seas causing heavy surf from Massachusetts to Cape Hatteras, N.C.

China Warns India On Border War

NEW DELHI (AP) — Red China threatened India today with "crushing blows" in the wake of a sharp clash between troops of the two nations on the mountainous border between Tibet and Sikkim.

Recalling the defeat Chinese troops administered to Indian forces in their border war five years ago, a Chinese government note delivered to the Indian Embassy in Peking said: "Do not misjudge the situation and repeat your mistake of 1962."

"For the defense of the sacred territory of their motherland," the note continued, "the great Chinese people and the Chinese People's Liberation Army will certainly deal crushing blows at any enemy that dares invade us."

India proposed an immediate cease-fire and a meeting of the local military commanders "to reduce the tension and prevent the situation from assuming a very serious aspect."

Each side accused the other of opening fire first on Monday. The clash occurred at Nathu La Pass, a Himalayan ridge about 20 miles from Gangtok, the Sikkimese capital where the former Hope Cooke, an American socialite, reigns with her husband the Maharajah Palden Thondup Namgyal.

Red China said 36 of its frontier guards were killed or wounded in the clash, the second outbreak of fighting at the pass in five days.

India said the Chinese opened fire with rifles and machine guns and followed with mortar and artillery barrages, killing and wounding some Indians. Unofficial accounts in New Delhi said eight Indians were wounded and a lesser number killed.

Sikkim, a protectorate of India, has a population of 17,000 and an armed force of 300 palace guards. India is responsible for its defense and foreign relations.

Tension has been mounting between Indian and Chinese patrols facing each other at Nathu La Pass, which lies at the end of a strip of Tibetan territory reaching south between Sikkim and Bhutan.

Two patrols of about 60 men each clashed briefly with bayonets at the pass last Thursday, and the Chinese claimed two of their soldiers were wounded.

New York City Teachers Head Vows to Continue Work Stoppage

NEW YORK (AP) — Albert Shanker, head of the teachers unions, vow its members will continue "until our demands are granted" the day-old work stoppage that disrupted the opening of the fall term Monday for more than a million pupils in New York City schools.

Carrying picket signs instead of roll books, more than 40,000 teachers defied a court order and boycotted classrooms. Nearly 400,00 youngsters also stayed away and those who did show up found only an approximation of normal classes.

Shanker, president of the 49,000-member AFL-CIO United Federation of Teachers, is due in State Supreme Court today to show cause why a temporary injunction forbidding the walkout should not be made permanent.

The action was expected to lead to a test of the new state law forbidding strikes by public employes unions. The union said Monday night it would make a legal counterattack and seek to force the city to close all the schools until the dispute is settled.

To meet the crisis in some schools, parents and community volunteers helped out.

In the afternoon thousands of the teachers gathered outside City Hall, chanting, "We will win! We will win!" Shanker responded, "We will stay out until our demands are granted."

In all, 740 of the city's 900 schools were picketed. The strike drew the support of AFL-CIO President George Meany and two nationally known Negro leaders, A. Philip Randolph and Bayard Rustin.

However, some other Negroes said they see discrimination in the union demand that teachers be allowed to initiate the dismissal from schools of disruptive pupils.

The Board of Education reported that 11,662 of 57,644 assigned teachers showed up for classes Monday. They were augmented by some 8,600 volunteers.

The union said 49,500 teachers stayed out in the dispute over wages and classroom conditions. No new talks were scheduled. The union has rejected a proposed $125-million pact.

Board of Education President Alfred A. Giardino said in a statement, "The schools will remain open tomorrow. I do not expect a long protest. After their initial duty to the union is fulfilled, they will then respond to their obligation to the pupils."

Damage to the nearly mature crops of coffee, bananas, sugar cane and cocoa on the Barahona Peninsula was expected to be severe.

The federation is seeking a salary scale for its teachers of $7,500 to $18,000 a year. A mediation panel recommended a $6,600 to $13,600 scale, which was accepted by the school board. The old contract ranged from $5,400 to $11,950.

The union maintains it is not on strike and had planned to submit its member's resignations en masse. This maneuver was deferred however lest the names be turned over to draft boards. Some teachers hold classroom duties. The resignation tactic was conceived to try and circumvent the state's new Taylor Law which prohibits strikes by public employes unions and carries fines on the union of up to $10,000 a day.

Major Fight Looms

Travia's Welfare Proposal

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The third major Democratic-Republican fight of the Constitutional Convention loomed today as President Anthony J. Travia signalled for approval of his welfare plan.

His proposal is to write into the new Constitution a provision requiring the state to take over the cost of all local welfare programs — about $528 million a year, at the current rate of spending.

"I'm going to oppose it," vowed Republican Minority Leader Earl W. Brydges.

Brydges, who also served as Senate majority leader, argued that, regardless of the merits of Travia's plan, the question was one for the Legislature to decide.

He could expect strong support from upstate Republican colleagues who protest that New York City would be the main beneficiary of a state takeover and that, in any event, the plan would be so costly as to require major increases in state taxes. The welfare item was the major, controversial item on today's agenda, as the convention struggled to mount a drive for adjournment by Sept. 26.

Prolonged debate on the Travia plan was anticipated, however, in the same manner that Republicans and Democrats fought earlier over Travia's free-college proposal and over guidelines for restricting local legislative bodies.

Travia's camp was confident that the Democratic majority would support him on the welfare issue, as it did in the two previous struggles.

The adjournment drive was one area in which Travia and Brydges appeared to be in complete agreement.

Their objective is to send the remodeled Constitution to New York voters in the Nov. 7 election.

Since a six-week interval before the referendum vote is required, the convention must complete its work by Sept. 26.

In an eleventh-hour development, Gov. Rockefeller suddenly objected to the article's provisions on legislative and congressional reapportionment. His basic objection was that the governor would have no say in settling up a proposed five-member commission to do the redistricting — and no approval or veto power over its final product.

The welfare - takeover plan was advanced by Travia midway in the five-month-old effort to remodel the state's basic charter. Later, an all-Democratic study committee of delegates, appointed by Travia, recommended that the convention adopt such a provision.

The committee circulated a staff report Monday arguing that the principal benefit would be to ease the burden on property owners, whose taxes finance the local share of welfare programs. The state and federal governments each now pay about a third of the costs.

New York City Teachers Head Vows to Continue Work Stoppage

NEW YORK (AP) — Albert Shanker, head of the teachers unions, vowed its members will continue "until our demands are granted" the day-old work stoppage that disrupted the opening of the fall term Monday for more than a million pupils in New York City schools.

Carrying picket signs instead of roll books, more than 40,000 teachers defied a court order and boycotted classrooms. Nearly 400,00 youngsters also stayed away and those who did show up found only an approximation of normal classes.

Shanker, president of the 49,000-member AFL-CIO United Federation of Teachers, is due in State Supreme Court today to show cause why a temporary injunction forbidding the walkout should not be made permanent.

The action was expected to lead to a test of the new state law forbidding strikes by public employes unions. The union said Monday night it would make a forceful counterattack and seek to force the city to close all the schools until the dispute is settled.

To meet the crisis in some schools, parents and community volunteers helped out.

In the afternoon thousands of the teachers gathered outside City Hall, chanting, "We will win! We will win!" Shanker responded, "We will stay out until our demands are granted."

In all, 740 of the city's 900 schools were picketed. The strike drew the support of AFL-CIO President George Meany and of two nationally known Negro leaders, A. Philip Randolph and Bayard Rustin.

However, some other Negroes said they see discrimination in the union demand that teachers be allowed to initiate the dismissal from schools of disruptive pupils.

The Board of Education reported that 11,662 of 57,644 assigned teachers showed up for classes Monday. They were augmented by some 8,600 volunteers.

The union said 49,500 teachers stayed out in the dispute over wages and classroom conditions. No new talks were scheduled. The union has rejected a proposed $125-million pact.

Board of Education President Alfred A. Giardino said in a statement, "The schools will remain open tomorrow. I do not expect a long protest. After their initial duty to the union is fulfilled, they will then respond to their obligation to the pupils."

The federation is seeking a salary scale for its teachers of $7,500 to $18,000 a year. A mediation panel recommended a $6,600 to $13,600 scale, which was accepted by the school board. The old contract ranged from $5,400 to $11,950.

The union maintains it is not on strike and had planned to submit its member's resignations en masse. This maneuver was deferred however lest the names be turned over to draft boards. Some teachers hold draft exemptions because of classroom duties. The resignation tactic was conceived to try and circumvent the state's new Taylor Law which prohibits strikes by public employes unions and carries fines on the union of up to $10,000 a day.

Major Fight Looms

Travia's Welfare Proposal

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The third major Democratic-Republican fight of the Constitutional Convention loomed today as President Anthony J. Travia signalled for approval of his welfare plan.

His proposal is to write into the new Constitution a provision requiring the state to take over the cost of all local welfare programs — about $528 million a year, at the current rate of spending.

"I'm going to oppose it," vowed Republican Minority Leader Earl W. Brydges. Brydges, who also served as Senate majority leader, argued that, regardless of the merits of Travia's plan, the question was one for the Legislature to decide.

He could expect strong support from upstate Republican colleagues who protest that New York City would be the main beneficiary of a state takeover and that, in any event, the plan would be so costly as to require major increases in state taxes.

The welfare item was the major, controversial item on today's calendar, as the convention struggled to mount a drive for adjournment by Sept. 26.

Prolonged debate on the Travia plan was anticipated, however, in the same manner that Republicans and Democrats fought earlier over Travia's free-college proposal and over guidelines for redistricting local legislative bodies.

Travia's camp was confident that the Democratic majority would support him on the welfare issue, as it did in the two previous struggles.

The adjournment drive was one area in which Travia and Brydges appeared to be in complete agreement.

Their objective is to send the remodeled Constitution to New York voters in the Nov. 7 election. Since a six-week interval before the referendum vote is required, the convention must complete its work by Sept. 26.

To achieve the leaders' goal, Brydges told radio interviewers Monday that he was confident the convention could finish on time and "in an orderly fashion."

Otherwise, he said, "the convention would be apt to drag on — if the pressure of a deadline were removed."

During a relatively brief session Monday, the delegates gave final approval to an article spelling out powers and duties of the governor and lieutenant governor.

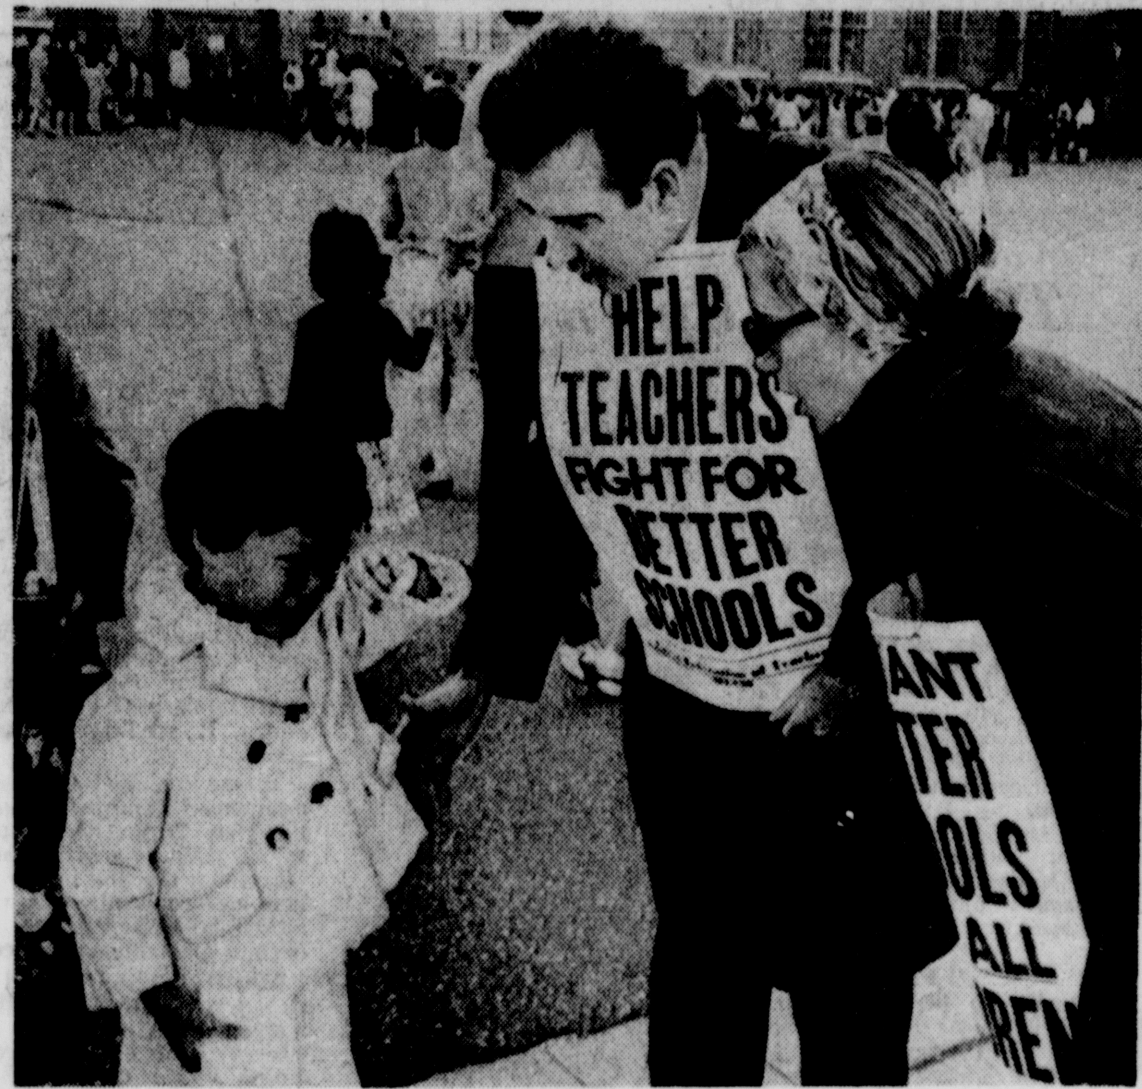

They also adopted an amendment to the new conservation article specifying that, before forest preserve land may be sold, two sessions of the Legislature and New York voters must give their approval. This is required now by the present Constitution.

A minor change was made in the article prescribing powers and functions of the legislature, and that article was ticketed for final passage at today's session.

In a levent-hour development, Gov. Rockefeller suddenly objected to the article's provisions on legislative and congressional reapportionment. His basic objection was that the governor would have no say in setting up a proposed five-member commission to do the redistricting — and no approval or veto power over its final product.

The welfare — takeover plan was advanced by Travia midway in the five-month-old effort to remodel the state's basic charter. Later, an all-Democratic study committee of delegates, appointed by Travia, recommended that the convention adopt such a provision.

The committee circulated a staff report Monday arguing that the principal benefit would be to ease the burden on property owners, whose taxes finance the local share of welfare programs. The state and federal governments each now pay about a third of the costs.

Beulah Calms Down After Leaving 18 Dead

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Mountain peaks reaching 8,000 feet into Hurricane Beulah tamed the once-mighty storm to 75 miles an hour today but not before Beulah raised its Caribbean death toll to 18 and headed for the tourist resorts of Jamaica.

The U.S. Weather Bureau said Beulah was expected to build up its strength on the march over open water before nearing the island of Jamaica.

At midnight the storm was centered about 700 miles southeast of Miami and was moving west. A slight turn to the north-west was forecast. Such a turn could affect Cuba, said forecaster Joseph Pellissier.

Arnold Suggs, a forecaster, said it was too early to predict the effect on the United States. Two Atlantic hurricanes, Doria and Chloe, remained far from land.

Chloe, moving west from far out in the Atlantic, was said to pose no threat to land for the next two days.

Doria, a "minimal hurricane" centered 500 miles east of Norfolk, Va., was moving to the east at about 14 m.p.h. She was still kicking up the seas causing heavy surf from Massachusetts to Cape Hatteras, N.C.

On Monday 200,000 people were evacuated to emergency shelters from the exposed Barahona Peninsula on the south shore of Hispaniola, the island shared by Haiti and the Dominican Republic. A report from Barahona said 1,000 were homeless there.

Two deaths were reported from the Barahona Peninsula. A man was killed Sunday in Puerto Rico and 15 others died last week in the Martinique area of the east Caribbean as Beulah was forming.

Damage to the nearly mature crops of coffee, bananas, sugar cane and cocoa on the Barahona Peninsula was expected to be severe.

China Warns India On Border War

NEW DELHI (AP) — Red China threatened India today with "crushing blows" in the wake of a sharp clash between troops of the two nations on the mountainous border between Tibet and Sikkim.

Recalling the defeat Chinese troops administered to Indian forces in their border war five years ago, a Chinese government note delivered to the Indian Embassy in Peking said: "Do not misjudge the situation and repeat your mistake of 1962."

"For the defense of the sacred territory of their motherland," the note continued, "the great Chinese people and the Chinese People's Liberation Army will certainly deal crushing blows at any enemy that dares invade us."

India proposed an immediate cease-fire and a meeting of the local military commanders "to reduce the tension and prevent the situation from assuming a very serious aspect."

Each side accused the other of opening fire first on Monday. The clash occurred at Nathu La Pass, a Himalayan ridge about 20 miles from Gangtok, the Sikkimese capital where the former Hope Cooke, an American socialite, reigns with her husband the Maharajah Palden Thondup Namgyal.

Red China said 36 of its frontier guards were killed or wounded in the clash, the second outbreak of fighting at the pass in five days.

India said the Chinese opened fire with rifles and machine guns and followed with mortar and artillery barrages, killing and wounding some Indians. Unofficial accounts in New Delhi said eight Indians were wounded and a lesser number killed.

Sikkim, a protectorate of India, has a population of 17,000 and an armed force of 300 palace guards. India is responsible for its defense and foreign relations.

Tension has been mounting between Indian and Chinese patrols facing each other at Nathu La Pass, which lies at the end of a strip of Tibetan territory reaching south between Sikkim and Bhutan.

Two patrols of about 60 men each clashed briefly with bayonets at the pass last Thursday, and the Chinese claimed two of their soldiers were wounded.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, SEPTEMBER 12, 1967

Eye Test Required

Under provisions of a state law which became effective July 1, all New York State motorists must pass an eye test when renewing their operator's license.

There are two methods in which applicants may qualify in order to meet the vision requirements. They may submit a certificate from their doctor or take a test when applying for their renewal. The doctor's examination must be made within six months of the date of expiration of the driver's license.

Under the old law, an eye test was required only once every nine years. Licensed drivers who have suffered a disabling illness since last receiving a license must present a physician's certificate testifying to the licensee's ability to drive safely.

With heavy traffic and increased speeds today, it is imperative that motor vehicle operators have proper vision.

If there was an enforceable law requiring licensed drivers to be considerate of others, we would soon see a sharp decline in the appalling highway death and injury toll.

Contempt for Law

The decision of teachers throughout the country to boycott the opening of schools is a new display of contempt for law, which is particularly dangerous in view of the deteriorating atmosphere for law and order this year.

The direct defiance of law by these men and women to whom we entrust our children's education sets a very bad example for young students and especially those who have been woefully shortchanged on education.

There has been a gratifying indication that the public has begun to understand the signal importance of teaching with an elevation of the teacher's prestige in the community. A general awareness that the teacher should be accorded high status in this vital human enterprise. However, the reaction of the general public to the latest moves on the part of these educators will be felt deeply by the devoted teacher dedicated to the high ideals of service to society.

Already there has been an expression by students. Even before school strikes prevented tens of thousands of children from starting school on time, President Johnson predicted that more than 900,000 would not return to their schoolrooms to complete their secondary education. He launched a stay-in-school drive to persuade them to return, but the strikes have discouraged many who might have heeded his call.

Those Me-Too Raises

One by one the unions involved in a 77-day maritime officer strike in 1965 have pyramided employment costs for the merchant marine demanding "parity" with something won by another union in arbitration proceedings based on the 1965 contracts. The most recent was a grant of $1.78 a day to the seagoing engineer officers' union because an arbitrator had granted an excess to another officers' union.

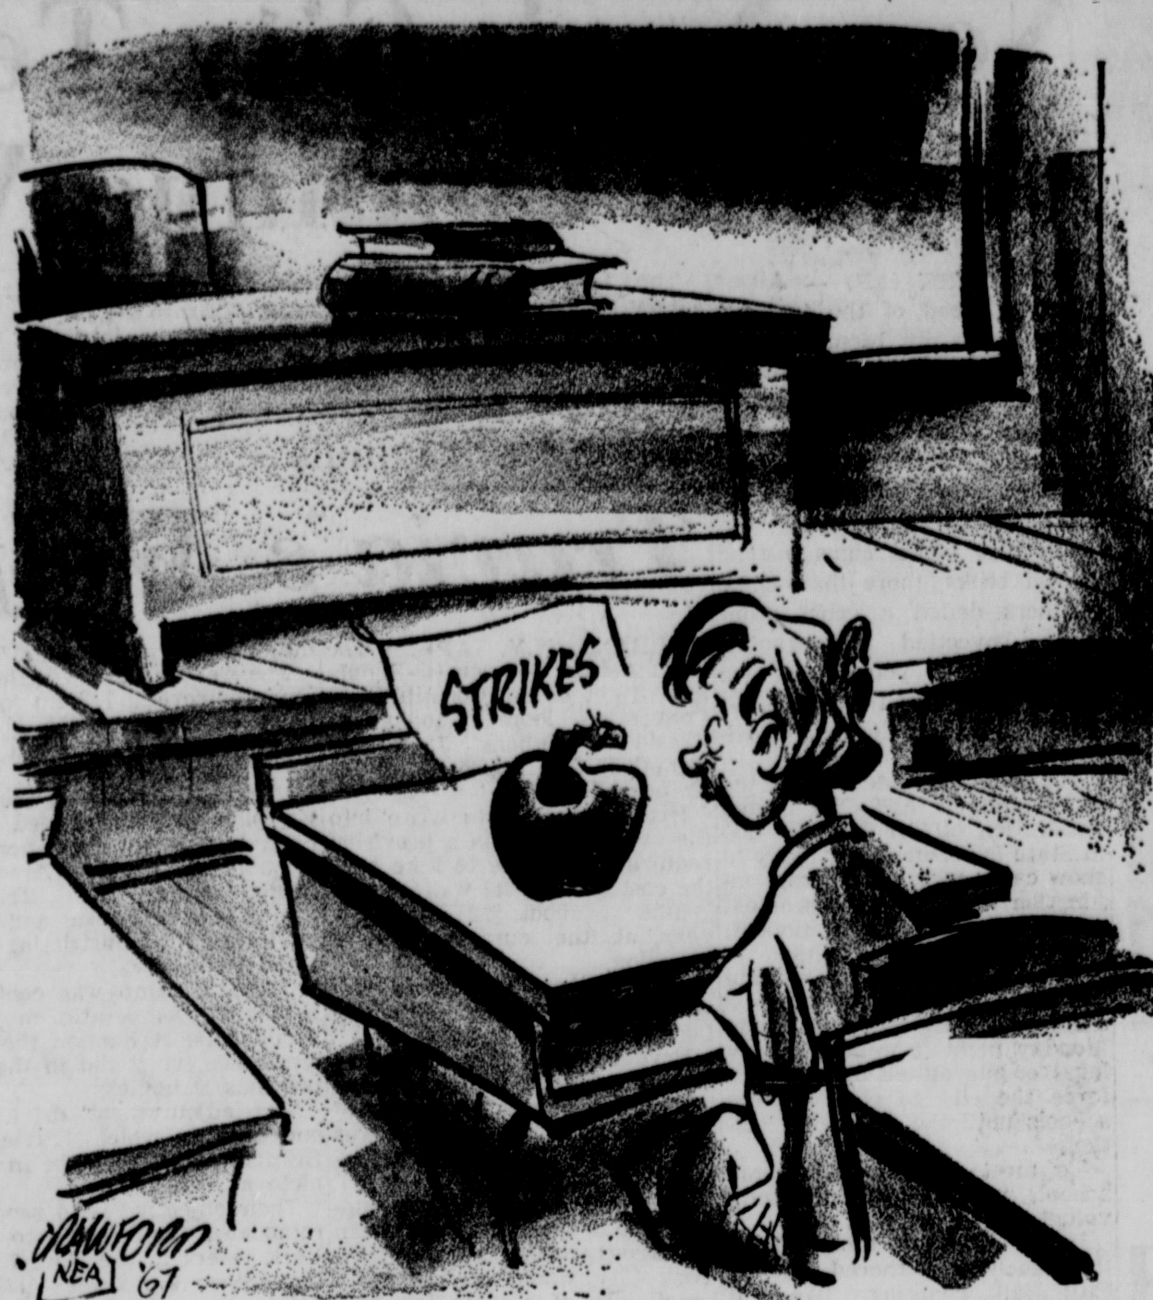

This is to hail the engineers for calling for a halt to these "me-too raises" and refusing their own award as a starter. The Marine Engineers Beneficial Association said it is vitally concerned in "the sound economic structure of the industry and prefer not to cause unnecessary imbalance" by continuing the spiral.

The three unions involved—engineers, masters and radiomen, originally each accepted a 3.2 per cent raise over three years on condition that they would benefit if any additional raise were given for others. That opened the way for continuing raises as an arbitrator in each union found ways to raise their award, until the 3.2 per cent became 4.11 per cent.

The American merchant marine has difficulty enough competing with low-cost foreign ships. The me-too raises increase their difficulties. The engineers should be commended for moving to end it. In fact, the whole economy would benefit if raises were on merit, not on a me-too pattern that loaded industry with added cost without commensurate returns.

Each year half a million American servicemen "stack their arms" on completion of their statutory military duty. Pointing this out, President Johnson said there are now 5 million veterans of the "Vietnam era." That must amaze most people, who do not realize how widespread has been the military service given in the Vietnam war.

The 42,000 youngsters who worked in the youth corps all summer in New York, supervising playgrounds, cleaning lots, killing rats, and doing other useful chores were credited for keeping the metropolis cool. Now, they want year round work at meaningful jobs after school, a good idea. City officials are mindful that the cost of $16 million would be much less than a riot would cost.

An Apple for the Pupil

David Lawrence Says
New Light on Perils
Of Nuclear Conflict

WASHINGTON — Most people do not understand the problems involved in trying to avert a nuclear war. They have assumed that America is strong enough to deter any country from making such an attack. But it is not so simple. There are developments which indicate that the United States will have to do far more than has been planned to protect the American people against a "surprise attack."

Two speeches made over the weekend tell a significant story. One was delivered in London by professor William Polk, director of the Center for Middle East Studies at the University of Chicago. The other was given by Senator John O. Pastore, Democrat of Rhode Island, who is chairman of the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy. Their statements shed new light on the risks and perils of nuclear war despite the negotiations going on now for the signing of a treaty to prevent more countries from making weapons of the nuclear type.

Professor Polk pinpoints a potentially dangerous situation in the Middle East. He says that either Russia or Red China may endeavor to set up nuclear missile bases in Egypt. This might, incidentally, explain why the Soviets have been investing so many millions of dollars in giving arms to Egypt. Most people have been puzzled over Russia's continuing interest in Egypt. Professor Polk declares that a Soviet medium-range-missile base, established in Egypt, could be used as a threat to force the U. S. Sixth Fleet and polaris submarine units from the Mediterranean. He says: "This would be a rational Soviet objective, particularly if it involved—as it probably would—a substantial increase in the Communist position in the Arab countries."

Professor Polk, whose talk was presented by the British government's broadcasting system, suggested the net result might be an apprehensive reaction by Israel to the setting up of either a Russian or Red Chinese nuclear base on its doorstep. He remarked that Israel has "both the capacity to manufacture and to deliver a nuclear weapon."

All this has a direct relationship to the facts revealed in an address Saturday at Groton, Conn., by Senator Pastore at the ceremony launching a new nuclear submarine. He declared the Senate Joint Committee on atomic energy will soon start hearings to consider a program of expansion of both polaris submarines and nuclear-attack submarines. He stressed that another Senate committee soon would take up the question of an anti-ballistic-missile system. He added:

"There is little doubt that the polaris submarine represents our most formidable deterrent to an all-out war."

"The Soviet Union's offensive nuclear striking power is increasing in comparison to our own—while at the same time they are deploying one and probably two anti-ballistic-missile systems to defend their country—which we are not doing—I repeat—which we are not doing."

"We cannot live in a world of atomic energy and discount completely the possibility of 'surprise attack' on our nation."

"Our offensive weapons are second to none—but it has been our announced and continuing policy for generations never to strike first. Today—in effect—we are asking the American people to be prepared to accept near nuclear annihilation because our strategy calls for absorbing the first nuclear strike."

"With all our offensive power, our defense posture could be our Achilles' Heel. We cannot sit back and let ourselves be lulled into a sense of false security, relying only on the hope that fear of retaliation will deter potential aggressors."

"Development of an ABM system is, I repeat, extremely expensive but, indeed, necessary. In this kind of a world, the alternatives are few. The security of our country—the ultimate in its defense—deserves the highest national priority. An affluent America—with so much to lose—must not face this mortal challenge cheaply."

For several months now, there have been reports that American naval experts are urging a plan to help defend India and other friendly countries on the Indian Ocean from coming under Communist control through nuclear blackmail. The idea is for the U. S. Navy to station Polaris submarines permanently in the waters bordering Asia. It is argued that this would furnish a way to reach a new set of targets in Russia and Red China as a part of the American plan of defense. The program of "deterrence" of a nuclear war has by no means been completed.

The World Today

Michigan Governor Romney
Often Changes His Mind

BY JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Gale W. McGee, Wyoming Democrat, says Michigan's Gov. George Romney must have "the cleanest mind in America, he changes it so often." But it's when Romney himself talked of "brainwashing" that he got into trouble.

Here are some samples of how Romney says one thing at one time and something else at another, going back to 1965.

On Feb. 8 of that year he backed President Johnson's decision to launch retaliatory air strikes against North Vietnam. And a month later Romney was saying the United States should take a stronger stand.

But by Dec. 10, 1965, asked if American air strikes should be stepped up, he said this country should be cautious, "weighing every step we take." And by last May he was against heavier bombing because that would cause more problems.

On Nov. 16, 1965 he said he didn't expect the war to end at the bargaining table "but only when the Viet Cong decide they'd rather till their farms than risk their lives." He had already said a negotiated settlement would be a mistake.

By May 9, 1967 he was saying the United States should encourage the South Vietnamese to negotiate with the Viet Cong. And last Aug. 16 he said anyone who thought

North Vietnam could be brought to the bargaining table by just bombing wasn't thinking soundly.

Goes to Saigon

In November, 1965 Romney went with some other governors, conferred with American officials there, and came away saying "we are doing the morally right thing." The officials couldn't have given him a sunnier picture because he said things might get worse before they got better.

But on April 5, 1966 he was already questioning whether the United States had a valid reason to fight the war, on July 5 said he wasn't sure the time and place were right for a showdown, and on March 5, 1967 Romney said he was going to have to determine whether outside aggression or civil war sparked the conflict before he could pass on the "moral right" of the United States to fight in Vietnam.

And by May 24, 1967 he was saying "the biggest mistake we have made in the Vietnam war is in getting involved."

Twice, in 1965 after a White House briefing by Johnson and other top officials for him and other governors, and in 1966 at a governors' conference, Romney generally endorsed Johnson's policy. But at the same conference he said he could not give a blanket endorsement to administration policy. On Nov. 16, 1965 the only specific point of disagreement he raised about Johnson's Vietnamese policy was in continuing aid to countries whose ships carried supplies to North Vietnam.

But later he said Johnson didn't have an "effective policy," that Johnson had made a mistake in getting involved, and called his policy "clumsy, ill-timed and poorly coordinated."

Starting as far back as Nov. 25, 1965 he was saying there was need for more information about the war and that Johnson was misleading the people by covering up mistakes. He has made repeated statements like that.

Was 'Brainwashed'

Then last week, referring to his 1965 visit to Saigon when he said this country had a "moral right" to be in Vietnam, he said he had been "brainwashed" and now thinks we had no need to get involved.

This was too much for the Detroit News, which had supported his three successful bids for the Michigan governorship. It suggested he abandon any idea he might have about the presidency, saying he lacked the ability to achieve stability in presidential politics. Last July the newspaper said Romney must be abysmally ignorant of what the realities are in Vietnam.

This wasn't all. Robert S. McNamara, secretary of defense, said of the "brainwashing" complaint: Romney "cannot recognize the truth when he sees it. . . I think he is blind to the truth."

Drew Pearson Says

THE McNAMARA LINE

On February 6 Drew Pearson reported a conversation between Secretary of Defense McNamara and Congressional freshmen at a White House briefing, at which McNamara said it was perfectly possible to deploy men and supplies on the ground, along the border between North and South Vietnam, to prevent supplies from coming south. He revealed that he had been working on a plan to this end.

On September 7 McNamara publicly announced a "Magnet Line" running south of the demilitarized zone.

WASHINGTON—It's going to be a long, rough autumn at Ford factories around the nation.

The United Auto Workers have blood in their eye. As early as last April Walter Reuther confided to his advisers that once he lined the men up to march, it would be difficult to keep them from marching.

Simultaneously Ford management also has blood in its eye. Ford has had the most liberal labor policy of any of the big three and Ford executives resent being rewarded in return by this strike. They figured Reuther picked on them because they were likely to cave more easily. It was Henry Ford Sr., who startled the industrial world many years ago by paying his men a flat $5 a day. Other business leaders called him crazy.

Wages have now increased in the automobile industry so the average is around $145 a week. The three major companies offered Reuther a 50 cents-an-hour increase, but he held out for profit sharing.

What has roused the auto workers is the tremendous amount being spent by the Ford Foundation for education and philanthropy. Actually the Ford Foundation, now under former White House aide McGeorge Bundy, gets no funds from the Ford Motor Company. It has done a most constructive job, and all its money comes from previously donated funds. However, a new foundation, The Ford Motor Company Foundation, was established in 1951, which between then and 1966 has received $95,300,000 from the Ford Company.

Prod Dirksen to Bless
Percy as Favorite Son

By BRUCE BROSSAT
NEA Washington Correspondent

CHICAGO (NEA)—Illinois Sen. Everett Dirksen may personally anoint his junior colleague, Sen. Charles Percy, as presidential favorite son for 1968.

Such status, thus strongly blessed, would be a big boost to his prospects as a fall-back candidate for the Republican moderates should Michigan's Gov. George Romney fail in the primaries. This is especially so since Percy is increasingly disinclined to mix in those primaries himself.

Some Illinois Republicans argue that if Percy is ultimately to be designated their favorite son, a blessing from Dirksen is the only good way. They feel this would quiet the freshly stirring animosities between Percy and Dirksen forces.

Party urgings upon Dirksen to sprinkle the anointing oil are now being made. A certain urgency has crept into the matter since the recent flurry over the favorite son issue, which Percy forces, incidentally, blame in part on Illinois supporters of Gov. Ronald Reagan of California.

Three weeks ago, Percy and Dirksen met privately for their first important discussion of 1968 matters. Dirksen told Percy he does not want the favorite son designation himself, even though he may have a tough opponent (for instance, State Treasurer Adlai Stevenson III) in his 1968 re-election bid. Dirksen wants the delegation chairmanship and a place on the platform committee for the GOP convention at Miami Beach next August.

In their unheralded talk, he did not give Percy any sign he might endorse him as favorite son, but neither did he interpose objection. Percy aides are encouraged to believe that, one way or another, he will be designated.

If it is to happen, the 58-member Illinois delegation will do it in their key meeting soon after they are elected in the state primary next June. There is no disposition on Percy's part to press his case upon the delegates by getting into a possibly competitive situation through entry into the purely advisory Illinois presidential primary.

A Dirksen endorsement clearly would be the best pressure. Party professionals in Illinois are well aware that, as a man who might emerge in a fall-back situation, Percy would be handicapped if he did not have strong backing to a sour start in Detroit when Malcolm L. Denise, Ford labor relations vice president and a skilled negotiator, opened the talks by announcing: "I want to present the company's offer."

He tended to stress the word "the," which brought an immediate reaction from Reuther.

"Do you mean your first offer?" asked Reuther.

"No, I mean the Ford offer—our proposals for a settlement," declared Denise.

"If you mean your final offer, as I assume, that represents an attitude that is rather shocking to me," snapped Reuther. "In other words, you are taking a firm and hard position. You refuse to budge. You really don't want to bargain with us."

At another point, Reuther was demanding pre-lunch "washup time" for auto workers who engaged in grimy work on the assembly line.

"Some of this work, as you know, is so dirty that it requires fifteen minutes for a man to properly wash the dirt and grease from his hands," he said.

"That may be true," replied Denise. "But management should not be assessed for that. Washing hands before eating is still a matter of personal choice."

"I do not agree," shot back Reuther. "Even the clothes of some workers get so filthy that the company sets aside an area in the cafeteria where canvas is placed on the benches where they eat. Apparently the company feels it is more important to keep the benches clean than the workers' hands."

"I don't want to get into a debate with you on that aspect," replied Denise. "The company still feels that washing hands before eating is a matter of personal choice."

The auto workers say they've got some repairs to do on their houses, have been looking forward to taking trips, have put away some money, and they're ready for a long, hard vacation.

On the other hand, there are a million cars stacked up in the automobile industry. Management can afford a vacation too. How long Ford holds out will depend on how much General Motors and Chrysler cut into Ford's sales. If they don't, the strike could be one of the longest in automobile history.

New York's Riot Calm

It's been no accident that Harlem, biggest Negro community in the world, has been fairly quiet this summer, while Newark and Detroit have flared. Mayor John Lindsay and Sen. Jack Javits, R., are largely responsible.

It was Sen. Javits who recommended Sanford D. Garelik, New York's new inspector of police, an officer who was down the line in the police hierarchy bit was promoted to top job. He has been a phenomenal success.

Mayor Lindsay helped to put across the $75 million appropriation for the big cities summer program. Javits, who is on the Senate Appropriations Committee, also helped. Once the money was voted and New York got its quota, $7 million, Lindsay knew exactly where to put it. He had 9,000 jobs filled right away.

New York's police force has long been integrated, with Puerto Rican policemen detailed to Puerto Rican Harlem and Negro cops detailed to Negro Harlem.

Basic slum conditions in both Harlems continue to be abominable. The root causes for unrest are still there. How long Lindsay and Javits can keep the lid on remains to be seen.

Note: One Lindsay antidote for the long hot summer is free motion pictures shown in Harlem. Special trucks carry projection equipment, and the streets are blocked off to serve as theaters.

Merry-Go-Round

George Hamilton may have been given the gate by Lynda Bird Johnson but it hasn't hurt his acting career. He will play the lead in "Funny Girl" on tour this fall, and as a result of the publicity Lynda Bird gave him his salary will be $7,500 a week, plus 25 per cent of the gross if "Funny Girl" grosses over $47,000 a week. . . . Says Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman:

"When an editor read his own death notice in his own newspaper, he telephoned his news room to ask, 'I want to talk to the man who wrote the announcement of my death.' There was a long pause. 'Where are you speaking from?' was the reply."

authorities there decree him

"a national candidate." To get out, he would have to certify in writing that he is not. Unlike Reagan, he sees nothing illogical in a potential favorite son making that disclaimer.

Beyond doubt, Percy is concerned over some moderates' complaints that any move by him into the primaries would divide their vote and advantage the candidates of Nixon or Reagan. It seems further evident that Percy forces fear primary tests, since most polls suggest he is little known in the country at large. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Eye Test Required

Under provisions of a state law which became effective July 1, all New York State motorists must pass an eye test when renewing their operator's license.

There are two methods in which applicants may qualify in order to meet the vision requirements. They may submit a certificate from their doctor or take a test when applying for their renewal. The doctor's examination must be made within six months of the date of expiration of the driver's license.

Under the old law, an eye test was required only once every nine years. Licensed drivers who have suffered a disabling illness since last receiving a license must present a physician's certificate testifying to the licensee's ability to drive safely.

With heavy traffic and increased speeds today, it is imperative that motor vehicle operators have proper vision.

If there was an enforceable law requiring licensed drivers to be considerate of others, we would soon see a sharp decline in the appalling highway death and injury toll.

Contempt for Law

The decision of teachers throughout the country to boycott the opening of schools is a new display of contempt for law, which is particularly dangerous in view of the deteriorating atmosphere for law and order this year.

The direct defiance of law by these men and women to whom we entrust our children's education sets a very bad example for young students and especially those who have been woefully shortchanged on education.

There has been a gratifying indication that the public has begun to understand the signal importance of teaching with an elevation of the teacher's prestige in the community. A general awareness that the teacher should be accorded high status in this vital human enterprise. However, the reaction of the general public to the latest moves on the part of these educators will be felt deeply by the devoted teacher dedicated to the high ideals of service to society.

Already there has been an expression by students. Even before school strikes prevented tens of thousands of children from starting school on time, President Johnson predicted that more than 900,000 would not return to their schoolrooms to complete their secondary education. He launched a stay-in-school drive to persuade them to return, but the strikes have discouraged many who might have heeded his call.

Those Me-Too Raises

One by one the unions involved in a 77-day maritime officer strike in 1965 have pyramided employment costs for the merchant marine demanding "parity" with something won by another union in arbitration proceedings based on the 1965 contracts. The most recent was a grant of $1.78 a day to the seagoing engineer officers' union because an arbitrator had granted an excess to another officers' union.

This is to hail the engineers for calling for a halt to these "me-too raises" and refusing their own award as a starter. The Marine Engineers Beneficial Association said it is vitally concerned in "the sound economic structure of the industry and prefer not to cause unnecessary imbalance" by continuing the spiral.

The three unions involved—engineers, masters and radiomen, originally each accepted a 3.2 per cent raise over three years on condition that they would benefit if any additional raise were given for others. That opened the way for continuing raises as an arbitrator in each union found ways to raise their award, until the 3.2 per cent became 4.11 per cent.

The American merchant marine has difficulty enough competing with low-cost foreign ships. The mee-too raises increase their difficulties. The engineers should be commended for moving to end it. In fact, the whole economy would benefit if raises were on merit, not on a mee-too pattern that loaded industry with added cost without commensurate returns.

Each year half a million American servicemen "stack their arms" on completion of their statutory military duty. Pointing this out, President Johnson said there are now 5 million veterans of the "Vietnam era." That must amaze most people, who do not realize how widespread has been the military service given in the Vietnam war.

The 42,000 youngsters who worked in the youth corps all summer in New York, supervising playgrounds, cleaning lots, killing rats, and doing other useful chores were credited for keeping the metropolis cool. Now, they want year round work at meaningful jobs after school, a good idea. City officials are mindful that the cost of $16 million would be much less than a riot would cost.

An Apple for the Pupil

David Lawrence Says New Light on Perils Of Nuclear Conflict

WASHINGTON — Most people do not understand the problems involved in trying to avert a nuclear war. They have assumed that America is strong enough to deter any country from making such an attack. But it is not so simple. There are developments which indicate that the United States will have to do far more than has been planned to protect the American people against a "surprise attack."

Two speeches made over the weekend tell a significant story. One was delivered in London by professor William Polk, director of the Center for Middle East Studies at the University of Chicago. The other was given by Senator John O. Pastore, Democrat of Rhode Island, who is chairman of the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy. Their statements shed new light on the risks and perils of nuclear war despite the negotiations going on now for the signing of a treaty to prevent more countries from making weapons of the nuclear type.

Professor Polk pinpoints a potentially dangerous situation in the Middle East. He says that either Russia or Red China may endeavor to set up nuclear missile bases in Egypt. This might, incidentally, explain why the Soviets have been investing so many millions of dollars in giving arms to Egypt. Most people have been puzzled over Russia's continuing interest in Egypt. Professor Polk declares that a Soviet medium-range missile base, established in Egypt, could be used as a threat to force the U. S. Sixth Fleet and polaris submarine units from the Mediterranean. He says: "This would be a rational Soviet objective, particularly if it involved—as it probably would—a substantial increase in the Communist position in the Arab countries."

Professor Polk, whose talk was presented by the British government's broadcasting system, suggested the net result might be an apprehensive reaction by Israel to the setting up of either a Russian or Red Chinese nuclear base on its doorstep. He remarked that Israel has "both the capacity to manufacture and to deliver a nuclear weapon."

All this has a direct relationship to the facts revealed in an address Saturday at Groton, Conn., by Senator Pastore at the ceremony launching a new nuclear submarine. He declared the Senate Joint Committee on atomic energy will soon start hearings to consider a program of expansion of both polaris submarines and nuclear-attack submarines. He stressed that another Senate committee soon would take up the question of an anti-ballistic-missile system. He added:

"There is little doubt that the polaris submarine represents our most formidable deterrent to an all-out war."

"The Soviet Union's offensive nuclear striking power is increasing in comparison to our own—while at the same time they are deploying one and probably two anti-ballistic-missile systems to defend their country—which we are not doing—I repeat—which we are not doing. . . . We cannot live in a world of atomic energy and discount completely the possibility of 'surprise attack' on our nation. . . .

"Our offensive weapons are second to none—but it has been our announced policy never to strike first. Today—in effect—we are asking the American people to be prepared to accept near nuclear annihilation because our strategy calls for absorbing the first nuclear strike. . . .

"With all our offensive power, our defense posture could be our Achilles' Heel. We cannot sit back and let ourselves be lulled into a sense of false security, relying only on the hope that fear of retaliation will deter potential aggressors."

"Development of an ABM system is, I repeat, extremely expensive but, indeed, necessary. In this kind of a world, the alternatives are few. The security of our country—the ultimate in its defense—deserves the highest national priority. An affluent America—with so much to lose—must not face this mortal challenge cheaply."

For several months now, there have been reports that American naval experts are urging a plan to help defend India and other friendly countries on the Indian Ocean from coming under Communist control through nuclear blackmail. The idea is for the U. S. Navy to station Polaris submarines permanently in the waters bordering Asia. It is argued that this would furnish a way to reach a new set of targets in Russia and Red China as a part of the American plan of defense. The program of "deterrence" of a nuclear war has by no means been completed.

Michigan Governor Romney Often Changes His Mind

BY JAMES MARLOW

AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Gale W. McGee, Wyoming Democrat, says Michigan's Gov. George Romney must have "the cleanest mind in America, he changes it so often." But it's when Romney himself talked of "brainwashing" that he got into trouble.

Here are some samples of how Romney says one thing at one time and something else at another, going back to 1965.

On Feb. 8 of that year he backed President Johnson's decision to launch retaliatory air strikes against North Vietnam. And a month later Romney was saying "the United States should take a stronger stand."

But by Dec. 10, 1965, asked if American air strikes should be stepped up, he said this country should be cautious, "weighing every step we take." And by last May he was against heavier bombing because that would cause more problems.

On Nov. 16, 1965 he said he didn't expect the war to end at the bargaining table "but only when the Viet Cong decide they'd rather till the fields than risk their lives." He had already said a negotiated settlement would be a mistake.

By May 9, 1967 he was saying the United States should encourage the South Vietnamese to negotiate with the Viet Cong. And last Aug. 16 he said anyone who thought

North Vietnam could be brought to the bargaining table by just bombing wasn't thinking soundly.

Goes to Saigon

In November, 1965 Romney went with some other governors, conferred with American officials there, and came away saying "we are doing the morally right thing."

The officials couldn't have given him a sunnier picture because he said things might get worse before they got better.

But on April 5, 1966 he was already questioning whether the United States had a valid reason to fight the war, on July 5 said he wasn't sure the time and place were right for a showdown, and on March 5, 1967 Romney said he was going to have to determine whether outside aggression or civil war sparked the conflict before he could pass on the "moral right" of the United States to fight in Vietnam.

And by May 24, 1967 he was saying "the biggest mistake we have made in the Vietnamese war is in getting involved."

Twice, in 1965 after a White House briefing by Johnson and other top officials for him and other governors, and in 1966 at a governors' conference, Romney generally endorsed Johnson's policy. But at the same conference he said he could not give a blanket endorsement to administration policy. On Nov. 16, 1965 the only specific point of disagreement he raised about Johnson's Vietnamese policy was in continuing aid to countries whose ships carried supplies to North Vietnam.

But later he said Johnson didn't have an "effective policy," that Johnson had made a mistake in getting involved, and called his policy "clumsy, ill-timed and poorly coordinated."

Starting as far back as Nov. 25, 1965 he was saying there was need for more information about the war and that Johnson was misleading the people by covering up mistakes. He has made repeated statements like that.

Was 'Brainwashed'

Then last week, referring to his 1965 visit to Saigon when he said this country had a "moral right" to be in Vietnam, he said he had been "brainwashed" and now thinks we had no need to get involved.

This was too much for the Detroit News, which had supported his three successful bids for the Michigan governorship. It suggested he abandon any idea he might have about the presidency, saying he lacked the ability to achieve stability in presidential politics. Last July the newspaper said Romney must be abysmally ignorant of what the realities are in Vietnam.

Drew Pearson Says Tempers Up in Ford Strike

THE McNAMARA LINE

On February 6 Drew Pearson reported a conversation between Secretary of Defense McNamara and Congressional freshmen at a White House briefing, at which McNamara said it was perfectly possible to deploy men and supplies on the ground, along the border between North and South Vietnam, to prevent supplies from coming south. He revealed that he had been working on a plan to this end.

On September 7 McNamara publicly announced a "Maginot Line" running south of the demilitarized zone.

WASHINGTON—It's going to be a long, rough autumn at Ford factories around the nation.

The United Auto Workers have blood in their eye. As early as last April Walter Reuther confided to his advisers that once he lined the men up to march, it would be difficult to keep them from marching.

Simultaneously Ford management also has blood in its eye. Ford has had the most liberal labor policy of any of the big three and Ford executives resent being rewarded in return by this strike. They figured Reuther picked on them because they were likely to cave more easily. It was Henry Ford Sr., who started the industrial world many years ago by paying his men a flat $5 a day. Other business leaders called him crazy.

Wages have now increased in the automobile industry so the average is around $145 a week. The three major companies offered Reuther a 30 cents-an-hour increase, but he held out for profit sharing.

What has rankled the auto workers is the tremendous amounts being spent by the Ford Foundation for education and philanthropy. Actually the Ford Foundation, now under former White House aide McGeorge Bundy, gets no funds from the Ford Motor Company. It has done a most constructive job, and all its money comes from previously donated funds. However, a new foundation, The Ford Motor Company Foundation, was established in 1957, which between then and 1966 has received $95,300,000 from the Ford Company.

A Sour Start

Wage negotiations got off to a sour start in Detroit when Malcolm L. Denise, Ford labor relations vice president and a skilled negotiator, opened the talks by announcing: "I want to present the company's offer."

He tended to stress the word "the," which brought an immediate reaction from Reuther.

"Do you mean your first offer?" asked Reuther.

"No, I mean the Ford offer—our proposals for a settlement," declared Denise.

"If you mean your final offer, as I assume, that represents an attitude that is rather shocking to me," snapped Reuther. "In other words, you are taking a firm and hard position. You refuse to budge. You really don't want to bargain with us."

At another point, Reuther was demanding pre-lunch "washup time" for auto workers who engaged in grimy work on the assembly line.

"Some of this work, as you know, is so dirty that it requires fifteen minutes for a man to properly wash the dirt and grease from his hands," he said.

"That may be true," replied Denise. "But management should not be assessed for that. Washing hands before eating is still a matter of personal choice."

"I do not agree," shot back Reuther. "Even the clothes of some workers get so filthy that the company sets aside an area in the cafeteria where canvas is placed on the benches where they eat. Apparently the company feels it is more important to keep the benches clean than the workers' hands."

"I don't want to get into a debate with you on that aspect," replied Denise. "The company still feels that washing hands before eating is a matter of personal choice."

The auto workers say they've got some repairs to do on their houses, have been looking forward to taking trips, have put away some money, and they're ready for a long, hard vacation.

On the other hand, there are a million cars stocked up in the automobile industry. Management can afford a vacation too. How long Ford holds out will depend on how much General Motors and Chrysler cut into Ford's sales. If they don't, the strike could be one of the longest in automobile history.

from his own state. Not universally approved by Republicans in his home base, a fact understood by his people, he needs the unifying move Dirksen can make.

It is plain that Percy himself wants favorite son status partly as a means of keeping him in the presidential ball park in case other moderates fail.

One Percy man thinks that the first moderate alternative to a beaten Romney would be Percy, as many party leaders imagine but, instead, New York's Gov. Nelson Rockefeller. The latter is seen as a man with some vocal backing from other moderate governors and with immense name value which by then might be sharply reflected in opinion polls. By this judgment, Percy would be third choice.

The junior senator several times commended Rockefeller but thereafter was told by party leaders to ease off to avoid alienating party conservatives who dislike the New York governor intensely.

Percy wants to exert leadership and has said he would make a personal choice for 1968 GOP nominee before the convention, but it is evident he could not take a unified delegation to Rockefeller's banner.

Though some county leaders want the 1968 delegation to hang loose, a favorite son Percy would find it easier to throw in with Richard Nixon or possibly Romney, both of whom he is prepared to back if either gains a commanding position.

They are apparently going to have full chance from Percy. It now seems very unlikely he will let his name stay in the all-candidate primaries in Wisconsin, Nebraska and Oregon should

Car Prices Increased by Chrysler

DETROIT (AP)—An increase in car prices was a new factor in auto labor-management relations today as negotiators prepared to resume bargaining between the struck Ford Motor Co. and the United Auto Workers.

Chrysler Corp., citing increased costs of labor and new health and safety items required by federal law, Monday became the first of the four major U.S. automakers to announce a price increase. It said 1968 models would cost an average of $133 or 4.6 per cent more than 1967's.

General Motors, American Motors and Ford are also preparing higher price listings on new models but it was not immediately known when their prices will be announced.

Ford and the UAW have agreed to return to the bargaining table Friday in an effort to end a six-day-old strike by 160,000 Ford workers. The UAW had no immediate comment on Chrysler's announcement, but it was expected to study the new prices to get an indication of what kind of second contract offer the company might make.

The union has rejected nearly identical offers made by the Big Three. One GM official estimated the original offer would add $4 an hour to the $4.70 an hour in wages and fringe benefits the average worker now draws.

The Big Three offers included raising the current average straight time hourly rate of $3.41 an hour by 13 cents the first year and by 2.8 per cent each successive year.

The strike is not expected to delay Ford's price announcement since the company has 85,000 new models ready for introduction by dealers Sept. 22. Chrysler's new models will go on display Sept. 14, earliest of the four Detroit car builders. Chrysler's changes in its "suggested U.S. retail prices" ranged from a boost of $256 on a three-seat Chrysler station wagon to a cut of $144 on the Dodge Charger, the only one of 115 models whose price was dropped.

Based strictly on price tags, with no other consideration, an Associated Press analysis of the 115 models showed the average price increase was $152.70. Pricing is complicated by the fact that, as usual, some equipment that was optional on old models was made standard on new ones, which was reflected in price tags.

DA's Discuss New Penal Law

District Attorney Joseph P. Torraca last week attended a special meeting of the Executive Committee of the New York State District Attorneys Association in New York City. Among the various matters considered by the Committee were: wiretapping, electronic eavesdropping, confessions, bail, searches and seizures and the waiver of defendant's rights to be held by the Grand Jury and be prosecuted by information instead of by indictment. All of these matters are or have been pending before the Constitutional Convention at Albany.

The report of the Executive Committee District Attorney Torraca stated, opposed proposition 1131 of the Constitutional Convention which seeks to abolish the office of sheriff and proposition 895c which provides for mandatory preliminary examination of defendants and

The present law is unsettled as to whether he has the right to shoot at the fleeing perpetrators. The incident in Brooklyn last week pointed up the very problem.

A New York City patrolman came upon the scene of a 72-year-old man being beaten by a group of four or five young men and as the muggers dispersed the patrolman shot and in, he assumes the risk of killed one of the fleeing men. Question presented is: Does the patrolman have the right to shoot or must he first inquire as well as the lawbreaker.

Car Prices Increased by Chrysler

DETROIT (AP)—An increase in car prices was a new factor in auto labor-management relations today as negotiators prepared to resume bargaining between the struck Ford Motor Co. and the United Auto Workers.

Chrysler Corp., citing increased costs of labor and new health and safety items required by federal law, Monday became the first of the four major U.S. automakers to announce a price increase. It said 1968 models would cost an average of $133 or 4.6 per cent more than 1967s.

General Motors, American Motors and Ford are also preparing higher price listings on new models but it was not immediately known when their prices will be announced.

Ford and the UAW have agreed to return to the bargaining table Friday in an effort to end a six-day-old strike by 160,000 Ford workers. The UAW had no immediate comment on Chrysler's announcement, but it was expected to study the new prices to get an indication of what kind of second contract offer the company might make.

The union has rejected nearly identical offers made by the Big Three. One GM official estimated the original offer would add $4 an hour to the $4.70 an hour in wages and fringe benefits the average worker now draws.

The Big Three offers included raising the current average straight time hourly rate of $3.41 an hour by 13 cents the first year and by 2.8 per cent each successive year.

The strike is not expected to delay Ford's price announcement since the company has 85,000 new models ready for introduction by dealers Sept. 22.

Chrysler's new models will go on display Sept. 14, earliest of the four Detroit car builders.

Torraca stated that much of the Executive Committee's discussions centered around the controversial Revised Penal Law, Article 35 which provides for a standard conduct for law abiding citizens and police officers to use "deadly force" against a lawbreaker. The District Attorneys Association opposed certain aspects of this new section as it applies to the limitation of the use of deadly physical force imposed on the police officers and private law abiding citizens in apprehending or defending oneself against a lawbreaker or criminal.

For example: Does the homeowner who is awakened in the middle of the night by a burglar have the right to use deadly force against the intruder? If there is no evidence of the use of a weapon, gun, knife or other deadly weapon, the home-from the victim if any deadly force was used against him and let the criminals escape.

District Attorney Torraca stated that the new section is less than 10 days old that we will give the section some time to function and await rulings by the court; that the section is untested in the courts. If we find that the statute is impossible to live with, in that it seriously hampers the policeman from enforcing the law or inadequately protects the average homeowner and law abiding citizen, remedial legislation must be undertaken in January, when the Legislature convenes.

Logan Files Charges Against Radio Station

John M. Logan, Kingston representative of Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick revealed today that he has filed formal charges against radio station WKNY and its manager, Larry Swarz, alleging illegal and improper taping of conversations of persons who speak to Swarz on the telephone at the radio station.

Logan said notice of the charges had been submitted to the offices of District Attorney Joseph P. Torraca, the Federal Communications Commission, the New York Telephone Company and the New York State Public Service Commission.

"By his own admission to me," Logan said, "Mr. Swarz said that every time I spoke to his station I was taped. He also said that he taped everyone who calls the station."

"There is no beeper on the tape," Logan charged, "and there is no way anyone could possibly know his conversation is being recorded." Logan contended that such a move is "illegal and improper use of the New York Telephone Company equipment."

District Attorney Torraca said he had received Logan's complaint and added, "I will look into it as I do all complaints." He explained that he was preparing an answer to Logan's letter.

Commenting on Logan's charges, Swarz said WKNY radio station does not use telephone conversations over the air unless a beeper is on. He added, "this station does not editorialize, we only report the news."

Swarz said the tapes taken at the station are strictly for the station's records and are used for office reference. "We do not use personal conversations on the air," the station manager said.

Council Meets Tonight; Judge Revenue Requests

Kingston Common Council will be asked to approve two revenue anticipation notes for $140,000 each tonight at its monthly meeting in City Hall at 7:30.

The notes are being issued by the city treasurer Orrie R. Riehl, to meet expenses and to cover uncollected taxes in the amount of $197,000.

Other proposals before the aldermen include a request from the Finance Ways and Means Committee for $8,910 to pay for the recent emergency work on the Broadway Underpass.

A third measure, described by City Clerk Thomas R. Lyle as "long overdue" is the codification of city laws and regulations. The cost is put at $14,000 but the end product would be about a 700-page book with all city laws included. It is expected to take six months to complete.

The Laws and Rules Committee and the Urban Renewal Committee has a request in for municipal participation for the proposed flood control program on Esopus Creek from Murphy Street to the Kingston Plaza. Under the agreement with the Army Corps of Engineers, the city would be responsible for a minimum of maintenance on the proposed dike.

Mayor Garrahan's proposals on a city hall downtown are still in committee. However, the committee, headed by Alderman Joseph Epstein (D) Sixth Ward, has not been idle. Epstein told The Freeman this morning that his committee met with a space engineer last week who drew plans, showed slides, and gave them a "good idea" of what a new city hall would entail.

Epstein said that his committee will meet with one other space engineer for a cost comparison. He said the first engineer gave a fee of $10,500 for any studies.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Blonde Actress Zsa Zsa Gabor walked over and asked brightly: "May I borrow your comb?" And for June Billeby, 33, it meant the end of a jury assignment.

Mrs. Billeby, a cosmetologist, said she was in the rest room during a recess Monday when she talked to the actress, loaned her the comb and obtained an autograph.

Back in court—where Miss Gabor was defending herself against a $35,000 suit over a luxurious house—both sides agreed to continue the trial without Mrs. Billeby.

Court Reform Amendments Of Bell Heard in Committee

H. Clark Bell, Constitutional Convention delegate of Ulster and Dutchess Counties (38th Senatorial District) on Monday appeared before Convention President Travia's Rules Committee in support of amendments he will offer to the Judiciary Article.

The Judiciary Committee was unable to report a complete Article to the convention floor. This responsibility was assumed by President Travia's powerful Rules Committee. President Travia appointed a select subcommittee of the Rules Committee to consider proposed amendments to the Judiciary Article. It is believed Travia's Rules Committee will report its own Judiciary Article to the floor.

The Bell amendments would provide for uniform terms of office and compensation for judges of the Supreme Court, Surrogate's Court, Court of Claims, County Courts and Family Courts. The amendments also would provide for temporary assignment of any judge to any court. The determination as to necessity and desirability for temporary assignment would be made by the uniform court system administrator.

In urging adoption of the amendments, Bell said: "It is obvious the convention delegates wish to retain and preserve the identity of our various courts. The basis appears to be retention of expertise in the various fields of law."

"Today we are in an era of increased specialty and specialized knowledge. The field of law is no exception and daily the law is becoming more complex and specialized. I believe the amendments I am offering will, in effect, create a de-facto merger of the courts wherein the judicial manpower of the various courts will serve for the same term, receive the same compensation and be assigned wherever their skill can best be utilized for the overall administration of justice. The identity of our individual courts will be retained and their specialized knowledge preserved."

The 40-year-old governor returned to the hospital as an outpatient Monday and, after tests designed to gauge her recovery from the operation, received a prescription for cobalt-60 treatments. They are intended to destroy any traces of malignant material.

None of the new members wanted to make any statements on their plans for urban renewal in the city until they'd had a chance to study the situation.

With the appointments today, Kingston Urban Renewal Agency is back in business. The main task confronting them is the choosing of an executive director. They have an attorney, City Judge George A. Beck, who was appointed by the old agency at their last meeting Sept. 6.

Another appointment by the former KURA was Ward Tongue, temporary executive director. Whether or not the new agency will retain the appointees of the old agency is not known at this time.

Memorial
In Memoriam of Grandmother Higby September 12, 1955. Here on Earth we are gathered in families. Our Dear Ones become inexplicably precious. The associations are intimate; parents, marriage, children, grandparents. After being a part of life many years, a change comes over the horizon, suddenly.

The light of life disappears, they cannot speak to us nor we to them. They are gone, and we are left stunned and heavy at heart. It seems such a cold, hopeless realization. Then like a melody of music from a mighty organ, or the sound of rippling waters, comes the marvelous words of Jesus Christ, "I am He who lived and was dead, and behold I am alive forevermore."

Then we know! We have not forever lost the departed. Of course the separation leaves an empty lonely place in our hearts. It will always be there, but the sorrow has been removed by our Christian Faith in Christ.

There is a vast difference between those precious memories, loneliness, pain of separation on one hand, and a sorrow that ruins and blights our lives on the other, by an attitude of futility and unbelief.

Nicely kept houses mutilated with black paint... trees torn down... school rooms ruined... windows smashed... tires slashed... memorials in cemeteries shockingly defaced. Inexcusable destruction is rampant. What causes it? Explanations and excuses are plentiful but the real reason is lack of discipline; brutishness vs. spirituality. Logan Files Charges Against Radio Station

John M. Logan, Kingston representative of Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick revealed today that he has filed formal charges against radio station WKNY and its manager, Larry Swarz, alleging illegal and improper taping of conversations of persons who speak to Swarz on the telephone at the radio station.

Logan said notice of the charges had been submitted to the offices of District Attorney Joseph P. Torraca, the Federal Communications Commission, the New York Telephone Company and the New York State Public Service Commission.

"By his own admission to me," Logan said, "Mr. Swarz said that every time I spoke to his station I was taped. He also said that he taped everyone who calls the station."

"There is no beeper on the tape," Logan charged, "and there is no way anyone could possibly know his conversation is being recorded." Logan contended that such a move is "illegal and improper use of the New York Telephone Company equipment."

District Attorney Torraca said he had received Logan's complaint and added, "I will look into it as I do all complaints." He explained that he was preparing an answer to Logan's letter.

Commenting on Logan's charges, Swarz said WKNY radio station does not use telephone conversations over the air unless a beeper is on. He added, "This station does not editorialize, we only report the news."

Swarz said the tapes taken at the station are strictly for the station's records and are used for office reference. "We do not use personal conversations on the air," the station manager said.

Council Meets Tonight; Judge Revenue Requests

Kingston Common Council will be asked to approve two revenue anticipation notes for $140,000 each tonight at its monthly meeting in City Hall at 7:30.

The notes are being issued by the city treasurer Orrie R. Riehl, to meet expenses and to cover uncollected taxes in the amount of $197,000.

Other proposals before the aldermen includes a request from the Finance Ways and Means Committee for $8,910 to pay for the recent emergency work on the Broadway Underpass.

A third measure, described by City Clerk Thomas R. Lyle as "long overdue" is the codification of city laws and regulations.

The cost is put at $14,000 but the end product would be about a 700-page book with all city laws included. It is expected to take six months to complete.

Incumbent Emily W. Card will run again for town clerk, along with incumbent, Fred W. Wolven, tax collector, Superintendent of Highways Paul G. Mercier, four year Assessor William J. Zacher, and Justice of the Peace Allan Dargie.

Newcomers to the race will be Andrew Auringemma for two year assessor and Oscar Lambert for councilman.

Ullster

Over 600 people attended the GOP caucus in Ullster and saw two contests along with Thaddeus Musialkiewicz' unopposed bid for renomination to the post of supervisor.

The justice of the peace race produced a runoff between Attorney Sherwood E. Davis and incumbent Robert S. Stedje. Davis edged out Stedje 236 to 218. A third candidate, Edward Devine, dropped out after the first ballot.

In the contest for tax collector, Harold Atkins outdistanced Nick Valenzano by 137 votes. The final tally was Atkins 344 and Valenzano 207. Present collector, Richard R. Nace chose to run for the office of county legislator and was not up to succeed himself.

Alma M. Macholdt, the incumbent, will run again for town clerk. Joseph Lohmeyer will also attempt to succeed himself as four year assessor, and Edwin Callihan will seek the two year assessor post. Incumbent Superintendent of Highways Edgar P. Elliot will again go after the post and so will incumbent Councilman Anthony Clorica.

Olive's GOP nominated incumbent Supervisor Lester S. Davis, along with incumbent Town Clerk Oliver A. Crawford, Superintendent of Highways Marcel Maier, four year Assessor James A. Clemens, and Justice of the Peace Frank C. Carle.

Gladys Van DeMark will make the run for tax collector, James J. Quick will seek the two year assessor post, and Everett Cook will go for councilman.

The Democrats again put up their only successful votegetter, incumbent Tax Collector Margaret Kunkle.

They also nominated Robert M. Steen for supervisor, Nancy Paterson for clerk, Howard Trowbridge for superintendent of highways, Robert O. Johnson for two year assessor and Henry J. Rank for four year assessor. Donald F. Warren was given the nod to run for

The Laws and Rules Committee and the Urban Renewal Committee has a request in for municipal participation for the proposed flood control program on Exopus Creek from Murphy Street to the Kingston Plaza.

Under the agreement with the Army Corps of Engineers, the city would be responsible for a minimum of maintenance on the proposed dike.

Mayor Garraghan's proposals on a city hall downtown are still in committee. However, the committee, headed by Alderman Joseph Epstein (D) Sixth Ward, has not been idle.

Epstein told The Freeman this morning that his committee met with a space engineer last week who drew plans, showed slides, and gave them "a good idea" of what a new city hall would entail.

Epstein said that his committee will meet with one other space engineer for a cost comparison. He said the first engineer gave a fee of $10,500 for any studies.

Court Reform Amendments Of Bell Heard in Committee

H. Clark Bell, Constitutional Convention delegate of Ulster and Dutchess Counties (38th Senatorial District) on Monday appeared before Convention President Travia's Rules Committee in support of amendments he will offer to the Judiciary Article.

The Judiciary Committee was unable to report a complete Article to the convention floor. This responsibility was assumed by President Travia's powerful Rules Committee. President Travia appointed a select subcommittee of the Rules Committee to consider proposed amendments to the Judiciary Article. It is believed Travia's Rules Committee will report its own Judiciary Article to the floor.

The Bell amendments would provide for uniform terms of office and compensation for judges of the Supreme Court, Surrogate's Court, Court of Claims, County Courts and Family Courts. The amendments also would provide for temporary assignment of any judge to any court. The determination as to necessity and desirability for temporary assignment would be made by the uniform court system administrator.

In urging adoption of the amendments, Bell said: "It is obvious the convention delegates wish to retain and preserve the identity of our various courts. The basis appears to be retention of expertise in the various fields of law."

"Today we are in an era of increased specialty and specialized knowledge. The field of law is no exception and daily the law is becoming more complex and specialized. I believe the amendments I am offering will, in effect, create a de-facto merger of the courts wherein the judicial manpower of the various courts will serve for the same term, receive the same compensation and be assigned wherever their skill can best be utilized for the overall administration of justice. The identity of our individual courts will be retained and their specialized functions preserved."

This morning, Richard Thaler, Tompkins County district attorney, spoke before the conference on narcotics. His speech, entitled "Narcotics in Our Schools and Colleges," outlined the inherent dangers that result from the use of drugs.

To date the schedule facing the magistrates has been crowded. Most sessions have been conducted in seminar form to allow " . . . free exchanges of ideas."

Sea Cutting Into Coastline Costs Homeowners $Millions

By HAL COOPER
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The sea is busily eating up great chunks of U.S. coastline, costing land and home owners millions of dollars a year.

In Florida alone, a survey showed today, annual losses have been running at a rate of $10.6 million.

Cost $31 Million

Excluding Florida, a recent federal study estimated erosion damage along the Gulf and Atlantic coasts from Texas to New England at $31 million annually. The multicolored "painted cliffs" which bring thousands of tourists to Martha's Vineyard off Massachusetts are being slowly chewed away.

Waves and storms have washed out 3,000 acres of oyster beds and beach along Willapa Bay on the Pacific coast of Washington.

Virginia Beach, a Virginia resort area, pumps sand 20 hours daily during the off-season to replace what is lost to the encroaching waters.

The Montauk Point lighthouse on the southern tip of Long Island, whose beacon has guided mariners since 1797, stands on a cliff which has been eroded almost away. The Coast Guard plans to eventually replace the light with another on a more stable site.

In Cape May, N.J., two convents, two lighthouses, a Coast Guard radar station and nearly a fourth of the community's land area have been claimed by the Atlantic Ocean.

3-Year Study

Sen. Joseph D. Tydings, D-Md., recently introduced a bill which would provide for a three-year, million-dollar study by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers of the 93,000 miles of tidal and Great Lakes shoreline.

"Virtually every inch of this shoreline is the site of an ancient battle, the struggle between land and sea," Tydings told the Senate.

Mayor Jay Dermer of Miami Beach, Fla., is pushing a major Florida beach control $30-million program including such projects as extending the city beach an average of 200 feet into the ocean, mainly to replace sand eroded during the past 10 years. Dermer hopes to obtain $17.5 million in federal funds and the rest from state and municipal sources.

Col. R. P. Tabb, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers district head for Florida, said that with more than 1,000 miles of sandy shoreline, much of it heavily used, the state has a continuing erosion problem.

Lists 10 Projects

Congress has authorized 10 major Florida beach control erosion projects costing $52 million. In most cases the required contribution of the counties involved has still to be raised.

A study of Maine's winding coast by the federal Soil Conservation Service found that 500 miles of property, most of it privately owned, was suffering from serious erosion damage.

The study said about half of this shoreline, with a $250-million value as real estate, could be stabilized by planting vegetation and building revetments at a cost of $83 million. The other half would require even more expensive treatment, including breakwaters.

Beach erosion is a problem along much of California's lengthy coastline, forcing the construction of seawalls and the dredging of sand for replacement purposes.

Slowed Down

Dr. Fredric Raichlen, a civil engineering teacher at the California Institute of Technology, said many rivers and streams have been slowed down by flood control and water conservation projects and no longer deliver sand to the coast.

Near Port Isabel, Tex., eroded soil from the shoreline has piled up in small bays, creating 11,200 acres of mud flats.

Winds whip sand and clay out of the flats, often reducing visibility on the coastal roads to the point where drivers use their headlights in daytime. "A half a dozen years ago these mud flats were not there," said Richard A. Roloff, a real estate man at Laguna Vista, near Port Isabel.

"Instead there was water and it was a sportsman's paradise—fish were caught by the truckload and ducks were so thick you couldn't see the water."

Roloff said waterfront lots with a depth of 150 feet had lost 100 feet to erosion since the 1930s.

South Carolina is spending $273,000 this year for shore erosion control. The beach at popular Hunting Island State Park has receded as much as 27 feet in a year.

"The tides, winds and currents along the entire Atlantic Coast are generally trying to move the beaches in a southwesterly direction," said Salvador LaTorre, beach erosion engineer for the South Carolina Highway Department.

Sea Cutting Into Coastline Costs Homeowners $Millions

By HAL COOPER
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The sea is busily eating up great chunks of U.S. coastline, costing land and home owners millions of dollars a year.

In Florida alone, a survey showed today, annual losses have been running at a rate of $10.6 million.

Cost $31 Million
Excluding Florida, a recent federal study estimated erosion damage along the Gulf and Atlantic coasts from Texas to New England at $31 million annually. The multicolored "painted cliffs" which bring thousands of tourists to Martha's Vineyard off Massachusetts are being slowly chewed away.

Waves and storms have washed out 3,000 acres of oyster beds and beach along Willapa Bay on the Pacific coast of Washington.

Virginia Beach, a Virginia resort area, pumps sand 20 hours daily during the off-season to replace what is lost to the encroaching waters.

The Montauk Point lighthouse on the southern tip of Long Island, whose beacon has guided mariners since 1797, stands on a cliff which has been eroded almost away. The Coast Guard plans to eventually replace the light with another on a more stable site.

In Cape May, N.J., two convents, two lighthouses, a Coast Guard radar station and nearly a fourth of the community's land area have been claimed by the Atlantic Ocean.

3-Year Study

Sen. Joseph D. Tydings, D-Md., recently introduced a bill which would provide for a three-year, million-dollar study by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers of the 93,000 miles of tidal and Great Lakes shoreline.

"Virtually every inch of this shoreline is the site of an ancient battle, the struggle between land and sea," Tydings told the Senate.

Mayor Jay Dermer of Miami Beach, Fla., is pushing a $30-million program including such projects as extending the city beach an average of 200 feet into the ocean, mainly to replace sand eroded during the past 10 years.

Dermer hopes to obtain $17.5 million in federal funds and the rest from state and municipal sources.

Col. R. P. Tabb, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers district head for Florida, said that with more than 1,000 miles of sandy shoreline, much of it heavily used, the state has a continuing erosion problem.

Lists 10 Projects
Congress has authorized 10 major Florida beach control erosion projects costing $52 million. In most cases the required contribution of the counties involved has still to be raised.

A study of Maine's winding coast by the federal Soil Conservation Service found that 500 miles of property, most of it privately owned, was suffering from serious erosion damage.

The study said about half of this shoreline, with a $250-million value as real estate, could be stabilized by planting vegetation and building revetments at a cost of $83 million. The other half would require even more expensive treatment, including breakwaters.

Beach erosion is a problem along much of California's lengthy coastline, forcing the construction of seawalls and the dredging of sand for replacement purposes.

Slowed Down

Dr. Fredric Raichlen, a civil engineering teacher at the California Institute of Technology, said many rivers and streams have been slowed down by flood control and water conservation projects and no longer deliver sand to the coast.

Near Port Isabel, Tex., eroded soil from the shoreline has piled up in small bays, creating 11,200 acres of mud flats.

Winds whip sand and clay out of the flats, often reducing visibility on the coastal roads to the point where drivers use their headlights in daytime. "A half a dozen years ago these mud flats were not there," said Richard A. Roloff, a real estate man at Laguna Vista, near Port Isabel. "Instead there was water."

It was a sportsman's paradise—fish were caught by the truckload and ducks were so thick you couldn't see the water.

Roloff said waterfront lots with a depth of 150 feet had lost 100 feet to erosion since the 1930s.

South Carolina is spending $273,000 this year for shore erosion control. The beach at popular Hunting Island State Park has receded as much as 27 feet in a year.

"The tides, winds and currents along the entire Atlantic Coast are generally trying to move the beaches in a southerly direction," said Salvador LaTorre, beach erosion engineer for the South Carolina Highway Department.

Burglars Strike Twice In Kingston

General's Grill at the corner of Broadway and Newkirk Avenue, was burglarized last night for the second time in three days, Kingston's Detective Division reports.

According to detectives, entrance was gained when a back window was broken. Police said several liquor bottles were stolen and the vending machines emptied.

Authorities noted that the grill was also broken into Friday night. Police said entrance was gained the same way Friday night as last, and that beer and whiskey were listed as missing.

However, the division said it doubted whether the same culprit was involved. The case is under investigation.

Also Monday night, the Home Delivery News Service, at 7 Railroad Avenue, was entered, but nothing was reported stolen. The police said the office had been ransacked.

Entrance was gained through a window.

Financial and Commercial

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market posted a moderate gain early Tuesday. Trading was fairly active.

Gains outnumbered losers by almost 2 to 1.

The Dow Jones industrial average posted a gain of about a point.

Strength in Chrysler pushed that stock ahead more than a point while General Motors and Ford gained fractions.

Advances of around a point or so were made also by Boeing, RCA, American Cyanamid, IBM, Westinghouse Electric, Southern Railway and Getty Oil.

Lesser gains were posted by Tenneco, Lorain Corp., El Paso Natural Gas, Sperry Rand, Diebold and General Dynamics — all of them on heavier volume than the general run of issues.

Steels recovered slightly. Fractional losses were scattered throughout the list of leading issues. Many were unchanged.

News that Chrysler's line of 1968 cars would go on sale this week at higher prices was credited with some of the buying in that stock.

The inflationary implications of Chrysler's price rise and others, as well as the record for retail sales in August, furnished an encouraging background for the market.

Liken Ford Strike Calm to Hurricane

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — At first glance the statements from Washington and from some industries affected by the Ford Motor Co. strike indicate an apparent calm. But this calm is the type found in the center of hurricanes.

No company and no nation can take calmly a walkout that involves nearly 160,000 workers in 25 states who produce about 10,000 trucks and cars a day. Indirectly, more workers, more millions and more products also are involved.

Seen as Pose

An examination of these statements made from the calm eye of the storm show they are highly qualified. The relaxed style is a pose, for turbulence threatens at any time.

In Washington, Gardner Ackley, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, told the President that the Ford strike's main effect on the economy will be "to postpone production, sales and incomes into later months."

This seems to dismiss the strike as merely disruptive rather than destructive. But, Ackley qualified his statement by saying "so long as confined to one producer."

Some steel executives, whose biggest single customer is the automotive industry, said in recent days that a short strike at Ford would not be very serious to their industry. But the word "short" is a big qualification.

The steelmakers can afford to make this statement because Ford makes rather than buys 50 per cent of its steel needs. They must concede that the impact would be disastrous if other companies were struck.

Not Despondent

Even some dealers, for the moment, seem not to be despondent. But, those who claim not to worry are bargaining on a brief strike, Ford's new cars don't go on sale until Sept. 22 and dealers already have a small inventory on hand.

Even the stock market seems to have shrugged off the strike. Automotive stocks, Ford included, are much nearer to their highs for the year than to their 1967 lows. But, matched against 1966, the are decidedly lower. What most of these statements and facts indicate is that some of Ford's dealers and suppliers, the stock market and even the economy itself, can tolerate a strike of short duration involving only one auto company.

Should the strike involve other companies — as many in both labor and management seem to think might happen — and should it exist for many months, then irreparable damage would be done. Workers, suppliers, customers and the economy would be hurt, for autos represent more than three per cent of the nation's factory output.

If the over-all economy shows no great measurable damage yet, elements of it already are suffering. Workers are losing $5.2 million in pay each day.

Zinc, lead and battery companies are being hit in the pocket-book.

May Cut Ads

If the strike continues Ford certainly will have to reduce its advertising spending. Railroads will lose revenue. Incomes and jobs will be reduced at thousands of companies dependent on auto production.

In Detroit, which this summer was battered by urban riots, the strike will make it more difficult financially and psychologically to bring about a recovery.

The longer the strike continues the broader and the more progressively larger will be the effects radiating from Detroit. After a month, a noticeable dent will appear in the nation's economy.

One of the most far reaching effects, if the strike spreads or lasts for several months, could be a delay in scheduling an income tax increase, now being advocated by the Johnson administration.

Prior to the strike, Ackley indicated that it would not change his attitude on the need for a tax increase. But Congress, which must vote on the proposal, may feel differently. Regardless, therefore, of the apparent lack of distress over the automotive difficulties, there is a potentially damaging storm. It cannot be taken calmly.

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Negotiations on local contract issues have been resumed by officials of the Ford Motor Co. stamping plant in nearby Woodlawn and a union local representing 3,800 striking production workers.

As the daily talks began again Monday in a suburban Hamburg motel, a token force of strikers continued to picket the plant in support of a nationwide walkout against Ford by members of the United Auto Workers Union (AFL-CIO).

A spokesman for UAW Local 897 said the talks here concerned such local issues as air conditioning, job preferences and extra relief time. The matters are expected to be resolved by the end of next week, he said.

Cigarette Bootleggers Robbing State; Rocky

NEW YORK (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller warned today that widespread cigarette bootlegging was robbing New York State this year of about $40 million and "making the usual law-abiding citizen an accomplice of big-time racketeers and small-time hoodlums."

The governor told a conference on cigarette tax enforcement that more cooperation among states and the federal government was necessary to combat the many ways smokers avoid paying taxes on cigarettes.

His speech was for the conference at the New York Hilton Hotel.

He also warned that racketeers might not be content merely to smuggle and sell untaxed cigarettes.

"How long will it be before they decide to move in on the supply end of the business, just as they did during prohibition if they haven't already done so?"

Because of this possibility the governor said he was particularly pleased to see at the conference a representative of the State of North Carolina, the nation's leading supplier of cigarettes.

Rockefeller asked the conference, which includes representatives from a number of states, to consider the need for strengthened laws in cities, states and at the federal level, an expanded role for the FBI, a plan for the collection of taxes at the source by the cigarette manufacturer and the possibility of desirability of centralized collection by the federal government.

New York State's problems with collecting the tax became serious in April 1965 when it doubled the tax on a pack from 5 to 10 cents.

Candidates Visit Ulster GOP Fete

Among the guests who stopped by at the Town of Ulster Republican Club picnic Sunday at East Kingston was Hamilton Fish Jr., Assemblyman Kenneth L. Wilson, County Judge Raymond J. Mino, District Attorney Joseph Torrecia and C. John Bechtold, Republican candidate for mayor of Kingston. Town candidates, who had been nominated at the Saturday night Town of Ulster caucus, were also present.

Approximately 900 people attended the picnic which proved to be one of the most successful in years.

Yallum's Price

Randy Tennis Sneakers are selling at Yallum's, 317 Wall Street, for $3.25 a pair. This item was incorrectly advertised in the Monday issue of The Freeman.

Queens Mother Charged With Murder of Two Tots

NEW YORK (AP) — Detectives arrested a 28-year-old Queens woman today, charging that she murdered her 4-year-old daughter in Queens more than two years ago. Her 5-year-old son also was slain.

Authorities took Alice Crimmins into custody in the early morning hours in a parking lot outside her Whitestone, Queens, apartment on a first-degree murder indictment reportedly handed up Monday night.

The indictment charged Mrs. Crimmins with her daughter's murder.

Mrs. Crimmins' children vanished from the family apartment — then in Flushing, Queens — in July, 1965. The girl, Alice, was found dead in a vacant lot shortly after her disappearance.

A widely publicized search failed to turn up any sign of the boy, Edmund, but within a week after his disappearance, a passer-by found his body under a blanket on an embankment overlooking the World's Fair.

The attractive, red-haired Mrs. Crimmins, estranged from her husband, told police at the time she had put the children to bed on the night of July 13 and that, as late as midnight, had looked in on them.

Sometime between midnight and the next morning, the children apparently were abducted. Mrs. Crimmins told police. She said she discovered that they were gone about 9 a.m., and that she had heard no strange noises during the night.

Dems Strategy Meet Slated on Wednesday

A top level strategy meeting involving Ulster's Democratic candidates and committeemen will take place Wednesday 8 p. m. at the Granit Hotel, in Accord.

William A. Zeck and Harriet Allen Kerr will speak to the Democrats on "The duties and functions of committeemen, and campaign methods."

Attorney Zeck has an impressive background in both legal and political affairs. He recently submitted a paper to the Constitutional Convention on Municipal-federal relationships. He has served as the chairman of Independent Democrats in New York City's 17th Congressional District and as chairman of the Rockland County Democratic Committee.

In 1964 Zeck was the regional coordinator in seven Hudson Valley counties to Senator Robert F. Kennedy, and in 1965 he was state Democratic campaign chairman.

Mrs. Kerr is known in Ulster County as one who has an extensive background in political activities. She has been a candidate for the State Senate, is a former state committeewoman, and was a prime organizer and first president of the Ulster County Women's division.

Young Man Should Aim For Stronger Growth

Q "I am 34, single and own E bonds; $12,000 savings; Kroger; American Telephone; Bethlehem Steel; Brooklyn Union Gas. I would like to round out my holdings by buying a cement, drug, tobacco or any other stock you care to suggest." G.R.

A I should first like to offer some suggestions about your present holdings, if I may. I believe that at your age and in your situation you should aim for much stronger growth than is represented by your present list. Bethlehem Steel is a good stock in a cyclical industry where profit margins have been under pressure from rising costs. I would hold for now, but on any substantial price upturn I would switch to Cenco Instruments.

Kroger, like other food chains, has been hurt by intensified competition. I believe you will be better off with Jewel Companies which is in much the same business but appears to be expanding more aggressively. I would avoid cement and tobacco shares which are faced with problems particular to each industry. I like the drug group for growth and suggest Norwich Pharmacal; also Plough, Inc., in drugs and cosmetics; and Georgia-Pacific, a leader in timber products.

Q "Will you give me your opinion of Kansai Electric Power of Japan? I am retired and have pension, Social Security, annuities and income from blue chips. I am now buying Virginia Electric & Power; Texas Utilities and possibly American Electric Power." K.N.

A Kansai Electric Power, the second largest utility in Japan, is in my opinion a good holding for relatively high yield, if that is required. Kansai ADR's are subject to a withholding tax on dividends but are exempt from the interest equalization tax if bought from a United States holder. The shares have some attraction because of stock dividends and rights, but I believe a person in your circumstances will find greater growth and more satisfactory long term performance with American Electric Power, or another good domestic utility.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market posted a moderate gain early Tuesday. Trading was fairly active.

Gains outnumbered losers by almost 2 to 1.

The Dow Jones industrial average posted a gain of about a point.

Strength in Chrysler pushed that stock ahead more than a point while General Motors and Ford gained fractions.

Advances of around a point or so were made also by Boeing, RCA, American Cyanamid, IBM, Westinghouse Electric, Southern Railway and Getty Oil.

Lesser gains were posted by Tenneco, Loral Corp., El Paso Natural Gas, Sperry Rand, Diebold and General Dynamics.

Most of them on heavier volume than the general run of issues.

Steels recovered slightly. Fractional losses were scattered throughout the list of leading issues. Many were unchanged.

News that Chrysler's line of 1968 cars would go on sale this week at higher prices was credited with some of the buying in that stock.

The inflationary implications of Chrysler's price rise and others, as well as the record for retail sales in August, furnished an encouraging background for the market.

Liken Ford Strike Calm to Hurricane

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — At first glance the statements from Washington and from some industries affected by the Ford Motor Co. strike indicate an apparent calm. But this calm is the type found in the center of hurricanes.

No company and no nation can take calmly a walkout that involves nearly 160,000 workers in 25 states who produce about 10,000 trucks and cars a day. Indirectly, more workers, more millions and more products also are involved.

Seen as Pose

An examination of these statements made from the calm eye of the storm show they are highly qualified. The relaxed style is a pose, for turbulence threatens at any time.

In Washington, Gardner Ackley, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, told the President that the Ford strike's main effect on the economy will be "to postpone production, sales and incomes into later months."

This seems to dismiss the strike as merely disruptive rather than destructive. But, Ackley qualified his statement by saying "so long as confined to one producer."

Some steel executives, whose biggest single customer is the automotive industry, said in recent days that a short strike at Ford would not be very serious to their industry. But the word "short" is a big qualification.

The steelmakers can afford to make this statement because Ford makes rather than buys 50 per cent of its steel needs. They must concede that the impact would be disastrous if other companies were struck.

Not Despondent

Even some dealers, for the moment, seem not to be despondent. But, those who claim not to worry are bargaining on a brief strike, Ford's new cars don't go on sale until Sept. 22 and dealers already have a small inventory on hand.

Even the stock market seems to have shrugged off the strike. Automotive stocks, Ford included, are much nearer to their highs for the year than to their 1967 lows. But, matched against 1966, they are decidedly lower. What most of these statements and facts indicate is that some of Ford's dealers and suppliers, the stock market and even the economy itself, can tolerate a strike of short duration involving only one auto company.

Should the strike involve other companies — as many in both labor and management seem to think might happen — and should it exist for many months, then irreparable damage would be done. Workers, suppliers, customers and the economy would be hurt, for autos represent more than three per cent of the nation's factory output.

If the over-all economy shows no great measurable damage yet, elements of it already are suffering. Workers are losing $5.2 million in pay each day.

Zinc, lead and battery companies are being hit in the pocket-book.

May Cut Ads

If the strike continues Ford certainly will have to reduce its advertising spending. Railroads will lose revenue. Incomes and jobs will be reduced at thousands of companies dependent on auto production.

In Detroit, which this summer was battered by urban riots, the strike will make it more difficult financially and psychologically to bring about a recovery.

The longer the strike continues the broader and the more progressively larger will be the effects radiating from Detroit. After a month, a noticeable dent will appear in the nation's economy.

One of the most far reaching effects, if the strike spreads or lasts for several months, could be a delay in scheduling an income tax increase, now being advocated by the Johnson administration.

Prior to the strike, Ackley indicated that it would not change his attitude on the need for a tax increase. But Congress, which must vote on the proposal, may feel differently. Regardless, therefore, of the apparent lack of distress over the automotive difficulties, there is a potentially damaging storm. It cannot be taken calmly.

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Negotiations on local contract issues have been resumed by officials of the Ford Motor Co. stamping plant in nearby Woodlawn and a union local representing 3,800 striking production workers.

As the daily talks began again Monday in a suburban Hamburg motel, a token force of strikers continued to picket the plant in support of a nationwide walkout against Ford by members of the United Auto Workers Union (AFL-CIO).

A spokesman for UAW Local 897 said the talks here concerned such local issues as air conditioning, job preferences and extra relief time. The matters are expected to be resolved by the end of next week, he said.

Cigarette Bootleggers Robbing State; Rocky

NEW YORK (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller warned today that widespread cigarette bootlegging was robbing New York State this year of about $40 million and "making the usually law-abiding citizen an accomplice of big-time racketeers and small-time hoodlums."

The governor told a conference on cigarette tax enforcement that more cooperation among states and the federal government was necessary to combat the many ways smokers avoid paying taxes on cigarettes.

His speech was for the conference at the New York Hilton Hotel.

He also warned that racketeers might not be content merely to smuggle and sell untaxed cigarettes.

"How long will it be before they decide to move in on the supply end of the business, just as they did during prohibition if they haven't already done so?"

Because of this possibility the governor said he was particularly pleased to see at the conference a representative of the State of North Carolina, the nation's leading supplier of cigarettes.

Rockefeller asked the conference, which includes representatives from a number of states, to consider the need for strengthened laws in cities, states and at the federal level.

An expanded role for the FBI, a plan for the collection of taxes at the source by the cigarette manufacturer and the possibility of desirability of centralized collection by the federal government.

New York State's problems with collecting the tax became serious in April 1965 when it doubled the tax on a pack from 5 to 10 cents.

Candidates Visit Ulster GOP Fete

Among the guests who stopped by at the Town of Ulster Republican Club picnic Sunday at East Kingston was Hamilton Fish Jr., Assemblyman Kenneth L. Wilson, County Judge Raymond J. Mino, District Attorney Joseph Torrecia and C. John Bechtold, Republican candidate for mayor of Kingston. Approximately 900 people attended the picnic which proved to be one of the most successful in years.

Young Man Should Aim For Stronger Growth

Q) "I am 34, single and own Georgia-Pacific, a leader in E. bonds; $12,000 savings; timber products."

Kroger: American Telephone: Bethlehem Steel; Brooklyn Union Gas. I would like to round out my holdings by buying a cement, drug, tobacco or any other stock you care to suggest."

A) I should first like to offer some suggestions about your present holdings, if I may. I believe that at your age and in your situation you should aim for much stronger growth than is represented by your present list. Bethlehem Steel is a good stock in a cyclical industry where profit margins have been under pressure from rising costs. I would hold for now, but on any substantial price upturn I would switch to Cenco Instruments.

Kroger, like other food chains, has been hurt by intensified competition. I believe you will be better off with Jewel Companies which is in much the same business but appears to be expanding more aggressively. I would avoid cement and tobacco shares which are faced with problems particular to each industry. I like the drug group for growth and suggest Norwich Pharmaceutical; also Plough, Inc., in drugs and cosmetics; and opinion of Kansai Electric Power of Japan? I am retired and have pension, Social Security, annuities and income from blue chips. I am now buying Virginia Electric & Power; Texas Utilities and possibly American Electric Power."

A) Kansai Electric Power, the second largest utility in Japan, is in my opinion a good holding for relatively high yield, if that is required. Kansai ADR's are subject to a withholding tax on dividends but are exempt from the interest equalization tax if bought from a United States holder. The shares have some attraction because of stock dividends and rights, but I believe a person in your circumstances will find greater growth and more satisfactory long term performance with American Electric Power, or another good domestic utility.

Rosendale Vols Hear Reports On New Truck

Active Hose Company No. 1 received the report of the truck specification committee at its regular meeting last week.

Committee co-chairman Robert Markle reported that the specifications for the new fire truck were almost completed.

He apologized for the long delay in completing this project and said that it was due to the great amount of detailed research by committee members that was required to write a good set of specifications so that the Village Fire Department would be able to obtain the best possible fire truck for its use.

Markle reported that as soon as the specifications were completed, a special meeting of the fire company would be called to obtain the approval of the members. After that, a meeting of the fire company trustees and the village board will be called and when their approval is obtained, the specifications will be sent out for bid.

Markle said that if everything goes well, Rosendale Active Hose Co. No. 1 should have the new fire truck in service by mid-summer 1968.

Channel Master Signs Pact with Teamsters Local

After four years of negotiations, following certification of the Union by the National Labor Relations Board in September 1963, Channel Master Corporation and Local 445 of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters have entered into a labor agreement covering approximately 30 of Channel Master's over-the-road drivers.

The agreement, signed on September 7, runs for three years and provides, among other things, that the company immediately stop making any further contributions to the Channel Master Corporation Profit-Sharing Plan covering these drivers. The company will further discontinue life insurance, hospitalization, and certain other fringe benefits.

In addition to providing for two general wage increases of 15 cents over the agreement period, the company will contribute to the Union Pension and Welfare Plan.

The Union was represented by Raymond F. Ebert, William Cleary, and Joseph Rosenthal, counsel. Channel Master's representatives were Louis Berger, general counsel; Francis B. Conrad, labor counsel; and Harold Stangel, director of personnel.

Rosendale Vols Hear Reports On New Truck

Active Hose Company No. 1 received the report of the truck specification committee at its regular meeting last week.

Committee co-chairman Robert Markle reported that the specifications for the new fire truck were almost completed. He apologized for the long delay in completing this project and said that it was due to the great amount of detailed research by committee members that was required to write a good set of specifications so that the Village Fire Department would be able to obtain the best possible fire truck for its use.

Markle reported that as soon as the specifications were completed, a special meeting of the fire company would be called to obtain the approval of the members. After that, a meeting of the fire company trustees and the village board will be called and when their approval is obtained, the specifications will be sent out for bid.

Markle said that if everything goes well, Rosendale Active Hose Co. No. 1 should have the new fire truck in service by mid-summer 1968.

Channel Master Signs Pact with Teamsters Local

After four years of negotiations, following certification of the Union by the National Labor Relations Board in September 1963, Channel Master Corporation and Local 445 of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters have entered into a labor agreement covering approximately 30 of Channel Master's over-the-road drivers.

The agreement, signed on September 7, runs for three years and provides, among other things, that the company immediately stop making any further contributions to the Channel Master Corporation Profit-Sharing Plan covering these drivers. The company will further discontinue life insurance, hospitalization, and certain other fringe benefits.

In addition to providing for two general wage increases of 15 cents over the agreement period, the company will contribute to the Union Pension and Welfare Plan.

The Union was represented by Raymond F. Ebert, William Cleary, and Joseph Rosenthal, counsel. Channel Master's representatives were Louis Berger, general counsel; Francis B. Conrad, labor counsel; and Harold Stangel, director of personnel.

MEXICO CITY (AP)—The Ministry of the Interior said Thursday night 36 Americans who established headquarters in a remote village of the state of Oaxaca to consume hallucinatory mushrooms have been ousted from the country in the past two days.

A spokesman from the ministry said the hippies had been slowly concentrating during the last few months in Huatla de Jimenez, in Mexico's southern state of Oaxaca, where some of the best magic mushrooms are cropped.

Ask Voice of Reason In All Classrooms

The State Teachers Association today called upon its members to help relieve "interclass and interracial" tensions generated this summer by letting the voice "of calm reason be heard clearly every day in the classroom."

In a letter to all presidents of local teachers associations this week, Executive Secretary G. Howard Gould suggested the State Association's Equal Educational Opportunity project as a logical medium for helping develop solutions on a local level.

The letter said, in part: "This summer New York State and other sections of the country have witnessed a number of urban disturbances. We know that underlying social and economic problems helped to aggravate the tensions. We also know that education provides the only real solution for most of the problems."

"The riots which graphically illustrated the educational job to be done also helped make that job more difficult."

"A number of the children who will come into our classrooms this fall will have interclass and interracial feelings more highly intensified than in the past."

"I have been trying to get Ulster County to move on air pollution for the past two and a half years, with little success," Bell said, adding, "I hope this resolution will be adopted at an early date, with a minimum of delay, so that Ulster County can proceed with this needed program of air pollution abatement."

The Sixth Ward supervisor went on to say, "I am asking the support of all public officials, the health professions, and the general public. Without wide public support, we will never have a decent program of air pollution control in this county."

The purpose of the commission is to make investigations into causes of air pollution in Ulster County, to hire the professional staff for such an investigation, recommend legislation to the board of supervisors designed to curb air pollution, and promote any other means of improving air quality in the county.

The commission would be appointed by the chairman of the board of supervisors and would consist of seven members: a doctor, a representative of industry, an organized labor official, two citizens not associated with a political party and not holding public office, plus two members of the board of supervisors.

Tax Reform Bill Proposed By Resnick; Curb Loopholes

A tax reform bill, designed to raise needed federal revenue by closing a series of major loopholes in the present Internal Revenue Code, will be introduced by Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick.

In a speech last week before the Rochester Democratic Club, the Ellenville Democrat said that present tax laws "place an unfair burden on the wage earner, the apartment dweller, and those of low and moderate income, while providing loopholes for the wealthy."

The bill, called the Tax Equity Act of 1967, would reinstate many wartime excise taxes on luxuries, while providing that some of the items previously taxed as luxuries be recognized as essential.

"For example," Resnick said, "I would not tax baby preparations, costume jewelry—up to $10—or briefcases and handbags—up to $10 retail price—but I do think that taxing the purchase of mink coats and country club dues is preferable to increasing the income tax of families with three children and an income of from $6,000 to $7,000."

Major Provisions

One of the provisions would eliminate the provision whereby by millionaires can deduct all charitable contributions (including two tax-exempt foundations) if, in eight of the previous 10 years his contributions plus taxes (including state and local) reach 90 per cent of his income. Ordinary taxpayers can deduct only up to 30 per cent of income.

The stock option loophole would vanish. The stock option is believed to be a device for corporations to allow high paid executives to buy stock at less than market price and then pay only the capital gains taxes on the difference when they later sell.

Eliminated also will be the special exemption for the first $100 of dividends from stock deductions now enjoyed by one in seven taxpayers (mainly the more affluent), along with the so-called multiple corporation tax dodge whereby a corporation divides itself into several entities for tax purposes. Its profits are divided among them and each pays taxes at a lower rate than if the parent company paid on the total income itself.

The bill would also end the deductibility on interest on municipal development bonds floated to provide free factories and facilities for profit making companies.

If the act were passed, there would be a restoration of excise taxes on furs, jewelry over $10, social club dues over $25 per year, cosmetics which sell for more than $2, handbags and luggage which sell for over $10, cameras, photo equipment, etc.

Minimum Tax

The act would establish a minimum tax of 10 per cent on income in excess of $10,000 a year and 20 per cent on income in excess of $100,000 for individuals or corporations. This would be to prevent pyramiding of loopholes.

One of the more interesting features of the bill concerns the famous oil depletion allowance. Such allowances are set at 27 1/2 per cent of gross income from oil wells up to 50 per cent of income. A comparable deduction of 23 per cent now exists for 41 minerals. The bill would reduce this to 15 per cent.

It must be remembered that President Lyndon B. Johnson was always considered to be the champion of the oil depletion cause whereas the late President John F. Kennedy was against it.

Recently, New York Senator Robert F. Kennedy lashed out at tax loopholes in a Poughkeepsie speech, bringing out many of the points incorporated in the Resnick bill.

Railway Car Sealed

KWINTSA, B.C. (AP)—A seven-foot sea lion was destroyed when it strayed from nearby Skeena River and invaded a garden at this community's railway station. Game officials killed the 500-pound animal after it climbed aboard a railway flatcar.

Dodge to Run For Onteora School Post

Pat Dodge, a resident of Shokan, has filed his petition for a five-year term on the Onteora School Board.

With his wife and six children, he has lived at Laurel Lane, Shokan for approximately two years.

Dodge, formerly of Omaha, Neb., has been an employee of IBM since 1954 and has served two years in the Marine Corps.

His wife, Lorrie, is active in school projects and is presently publicity chairman for the Bennett P-TA.

Their children are Gregory, age 13, who attends eighth grade at Onteora High School, Patrick, age 11, Debra, age 10, Barbara, age 9, Laurie, age 7, who attend Bennett Elementary School, Cynthia, age 5, will attend kindergarten this fall. The Dodges are members of Our Lady of La Salette Church Boiceville.

Dodge said he is vitally interested in education and "would like to participate in the continued development of the good education system already established in the Onteora School District."

Ask Voice of Reason In All Classrooms

The State Teachers Association today called upon its members to help relieve "interclass and interracial" tensions generated this summer by letting the voice "of calm reason be heard clearly every day in the classroom."

In a letter to all presidents of local teachers associations this week, Executive Secretary G. Howard Gould suggested the State Association's Equal Educational Opportunity project as a logical medium for helping develop solutions on a local level.

The letter said, in part: "This summer New York State and other sections of the country have witnessed a number of urban disturbances. We know that underlying social and economic problems helped to aggravate the tensions. We also know that education provides the only real solution for most of the problems."

"The riots which graphically illustrated the educational job to be done also helped make that job more difficult."

He suggested that solutions must be worked out in each school district through local initiative and enterprise.

"Most significant changes in the Equal Educational Opportunity project, originated last year by the Council of Classroom Teachers, is guided by an Advisory Committee with State Education Commissioner James E. Allen Jr. as honorary chairman.

"I hope that your local association will work with your school administration and interested community members in the development of programs which will meet the needs of your district."

Commission on Air Pollution Formation Sought in County

A proposal to create a citizens commission on air pollution control will be submitted as a resolution to the board of supervisors by its author, Supervisor Irving Bell (D), of Kingston's Sixth Ward. The board will meet Thursday, 8 p. m.

The commission would be appointed by the chairman of the board of supervisors and would consist of seven members: a doctor, a representative of industry, an organized labor official, two citizens not associated with a political party and not holding public office, plus two members of the board of supervisors.

The purpose of the commission is to make investigations into causes of air pollution in Ulster County, to hire the professional staff for such an investigation, recommend legislation to the board of supervisors designed to curb air pollution, and promote any other means of improving air quality in the county.

"I have been trying to get Ulster County to move on air pollution for the past two and a half years, with little success," Bell said, adding, "I hope this resolution will be adopted at an early date, with a minimum of delay, so that Ulster County can proceed with this needed program of air pollution abatement."

The Sixth Ward supervisor went on to say, "I am asking the support of all public officials, the health professions

Kingston Girl Returns From Europe

A local resident has returned home this week after spending the summer vacation in England and Ireland. She is Susan Marie Adams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Adams of 82 Crane Street.

While in London, Miss Adams was employed by a leading department store. She roomed with two girls from Scotland, friends of the family. Together they toured London and the countryside after working hours and during the weekends. Her letters home indicated she was hip deep in culture visiting museums, summer resorts and attending plays, concerts and operas.

During a tour of Ireland she had the pleasure of visiting the home of her maternal grandparents and seeing many second and third cousins for the first time.

Miss Adams will resume her studies at Ulster County Community College.

Doctor's Mailbag

TWO SETS OF GLOVES MAY KEEP HANDS FROM CRACKING

By Wayne G. Brandstadt, M.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Q—I have detergent eczema of my hands. Everything my doctor has tried, including lanolin creams, makes my hands dry, crack open and bleed. What can I do for this condition?

A—Detergents remove the protective oils from your skin. As a result it first becomes watertight, then dries out and cracks. The best protection is to get some thin, white cotton gloves. Turn them inside out so the smooth side will be next to your skin and wear rubber gloves over these when you wash the dishes. The cotton will absorb your perspiration and prevent your skin from drying out.

Silicone ointments may also be applied to your hands to protect them from soaps and other chemical irritants.
Q—The ski on the ends of my fingers loosens and peels off in tiny pieces. These loose ends are annoying. When they are pulled at they quickly tear down to the quick but when I leave them alone they form hard, scratchy edges. What is your advice?

A—My advice is to refrain from pulling or tearing the loose ends. Gently smooth the rough edges with a nail file or a razor blade. Have your doctor find out whether the peeling is due to contact with a chemical irritant, ringworm or some other cause, then treat the cause.

Q—My eyelids are puffy in the morning. Is it possible that I cry in my sleep without being aware of it? What other cause could there be?

A—The lower lids swell as a result of loss of elasticity of the skin in that area. It is unlikely that crying in your sleep is the cause. A tendency to puffy lids runs in families. It may be aggravated by insufficient sleep. No treatment is necessary but a plastic operation will remove the puffiness if it bothers you too much.

Q—Could the use of antibiotics cause itching of various parts of the body? What should be done to relieve it?

A—Chloramphenicol and the tetracycline's sometimes cause a skin rash. Then penicillins may cause allergic reactions including hives. If the itching is caused by an allergy to the drug an antihistamine should relieve it. Whatever the cause, a soothing lotion or spray should give some relief.

Hospital Auxiliary In Ellenville Will Meet Sept. 18th

The Ellenville Community Hospital Auxiliary will hold its first general meeting of the fall season on Monday, Sept. 18, at 8 p. m. in the hospital meeting room, it was announced by Mrs. Alfred Feldshuh, president of the hospital service organization.

Mrs. Feldshuh urged all members to attend and to bring friends who might be interested in joining.

The meeting will be devoted to business and to reports of activities which the organization has sponsored since its last meeting.

In addition, the meeting will highlight the in-service projects undertaken by auxiliaries in the hospital. The work of the Gift Cart Committee will be featured at the September meeting.

"We hope that we will see many new faces," Mrs. Feldshuh noted, "not only at our meetings, but on our volunteer committees. Auxiliary services bring a great deal of satisfaction to the hospital patients and their families. For the volunteer, in-hospital service is one of the most gratifying of all activities. There is a constant need for new volunteers to fill the ranks. We hope that this meeting will stimulate interest in these programs, so that they can be continued and expanded."

Brazilian Wigs Are Way of Life; Tourists Like Them

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) —

Female tourists in Brazil have discovered a new prize to take home with them. Along with their aquamarine jewelry and alligator shoes, they are now packing Brazilian wigs into their vanity cases.

And the well-dressed ladies of the beachside suburb of Copacabana don't think the wigs are just for the tourists.

Wigs, they say, are the practical answer for their way of life. They can spend the day on the beach and still have a coiffure at night.

Says Copacabana hairdresser Celio, "I see less and less of my patrons and more and more of their wigs. They prefer to stay on the beach and send their wigs to be set."

Celio has been making wigs for two years now. He says they are very popular and sell almost as fast as he can make them.

The best hair, he believes, comes from the interior of the country where women don't treat their hair with too many chemicals and where they don't wash it too often.

Hair sells for about $16 a pound. The amount of hair used in any one wig depends on the wig's styling and construction. French hair stylists have made buying excursions into Brazil.

The major wigmakers are in Rio de Janeiro and Sao Paulo, Brazil's two largest cities. However, it is mainly a cottage industry—usually the wigmaker works in or owns a beauty salon and makes wigs in his spare time.

What has made women from other countries take note is the price tag. A full head wig sells for from $60 to $200—and every bit of it is high-grade natural human hair.

Doctor's Mailbag

TWO SETS OF GLOVES MAY KEEP HANDS FROM CRACKING
By Wayne G. Brandstadt, M.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Q—I have detergent eczema of my hands. Everything my doctor has tried, including lanolin creams, makes my hands dry, crack open and bleed. What can I do for this condition?

A—Detergents remove the protective oils from your skin. As a result it first becomes watertight, then dries out and cracks. The best protection is to get some thin, white cotton gloves. Turn them inside out so the smooth side will be next to your skin and wear rubber gloves over these when you wash the dishes. The cotton will absorb your perspiration and prevent your skin from drying in it.

Silicone ointments may also be applied to your hands to protect them from soaps and other chemical irritants.

Q—The ski on the ends of my fingers loosens and peels off in tiny pieces. These loose ends are annoying. When they are pulled at they quickly tear down to the quick but when I leave them alone they form hard, scratchy edges. What is your advice?

A—My advice is to refrain from pulling or tearing the loose ends. Gently smooth the rough edges with a nail file or a razor blade. Have your doctor find out whether the peeling is due to contact with a chemical irritant, ringworm or some other cause, then treat the cause.

Q—My eyelids are puffy in the morning. Is it possible that I cry in my sleep without being aware of it? What other cause could there be?

A—The lower lids swell as a result of loss of elasticity of the skin in that area. It is unlikely that crying in your sleep is the cause. A tendency to puffy lids runs in families. It may be aggravated by insufficient sleep. No treatment is necessary but a plastic operation will remove the puffiness if it bothers you too much.

Q—Could the use of antibiotics cause itching of various parts of the body? What should be done to relieve it?

Q—Could the use of antibiotics cause itching of various parts of the body? What should be done to relieve it?

A—Chloramphenicol and the tetracycline's sometimes cause a skin rash. Then penicillins may cause allergic reactions including hives. If the itching is caused by an allergy to the drug an antihistamine should relieve it. Whatever the cause, a soothing lotion or spray should give some relief.

Hospital Auxiliary In Ellenville Will Meet Sept. 18th

The Ellenville Community Hospital Auxiliary will hold its first general meeting of the fall season on Monday, Sept. 18, at 8 p. m. in the hospital meeting room. It was announced by Mrs. Alfred Feldshuh, president of the hospital service organization.

Mrs. Feldshuh urged all members to attend and to bring friends who might be interested in joining.

The meeting will be devoted to business and to reports of activities which the organization has sponsored since its last meeting.

In addition, the meeting will highlight the in-service projects undertaken by auxiliaries in the hospital. The work of the Gift Cart Committee will be featured at the September meeting.

"We hope that we will see many new faces," Mrs. Feldshuh noted, "not only at our meetings, but on our volunteer committees. Auxiliary services bring a great deal of satisfaction to the hospital patients and their families. For the volunteer, in-hospital service is one of the most gratifying of all activities. There is a constant need for new volunteers to fill the ranks. We hope that this meeting will stimulate interest in these programs, so that they can be continued and expanded."

Price Protests: Futile

(Second of a Series)
By GAYLORD MADDOX
NEA Food Editor

NEW YORK (NEA)—To today's homemakers, economy means how to get the most nutrition and the most meal enjoyment at the going price. The over-all trend of food prices is up and, according to market analysts, will continue up until the cost of food is more in line with cost of other products used by the American family.

An increase in market and kitchen know-how can offset the increase in pennies on food items, home economists insist. "Instead of futile protests against food costs that are inevitable in our strong economy, the best way for a woman to maintain her high standard of meals at current prices is to learn more about sharp buying, modern cooking techniques and how to get 100 per cent use out of every ounce of food and equipment she pays for," states Helen Mandigo, president of the American Home Economics Association.

A top banana of this 55,000-member organization of men and women home economists in teaching, research, health and welfare, dietetics, business and management, she is quite at home with food problems of modern women, a third of them exactly. Don't use any substiwith jobs and homes to manage. "Accept the facts of economic life; learn basic nutrition to safeguard your family's health and realize that the way your mother used to cook isn't good enough today," she advises.

● As to basic nutrition: "Plan meals which have four colors in them—red, green, yellow and white—and you'll usually come out well nutritionally."

● As to marketing: "Make a list of foods needed for well-planned enjoyable meals. When shopping, try to stick to this list. But be flexible. If you find an item on sale, substitute it for the item on the list. Be sure, however, the sale item is truly a bargain for you, taking into consideration your family's size, taste, time, storage space and social schedule. For example, a roast with bone in may be on sale. But a boned roast (not on sale) may cost less per serving. Check to make sure. Though packaged hamburger may be on sale, remember a large piece of beef trimmed of fat and ground by the meat cutter is often less expensive because there is usually a lot less fat content in the butcher-trimmed ground meat. Learn about different cuts of meat. You can keep down costs with-out lowering quality."

● As to recipes: "Choose only reliable recipes and those within your cooking skills. Follow them exactly. Don't use any substitutes for the main ingredients. If your recipe fails, much food is wasted."

● As to appliances: "Make sure your appliances are in good working order to insure best results. Temperature-controlled surfaces and programmed ovens automatically insure against burning and boiling over. An automatic meat thermometer also helps prevent waste of food through burning and overcooking."

Economist Mandigo stresses the relatively small increase in cost of gas and electricity over the past 35 years while other prices have gone way up. Today in most areas, she reports, a modern electric range cooks an average meal for about four cents and a modern gas range does it for around three cents.

Most experts anticipate that prices on most foods may go up about 1½ per cent by the first of the year. In market cart terms, that means that what $5 will buy today would then cost around $5.08. But as Helen Mandigo sees it, the homemaker can offset that increase and still serve the same high quality meals her family has become used to in our prosperous society.

"How can she do it? By increasing her marketing and kitchen know-how," she explains.

Trim Down, Shape Up

NEW YORK — (NEA) — A brief daily workout is the best way to give your body the fall tone-up it probably needs.

If you've had a lazy relaxing-in-the-sun summer, you've neglected your figure. Getting through the dog days is difficult enough and too little thought is given to exercise and keeping in shape.

Now that it's time to slither into fall and winter knits you'll want to look your best at all times. No one wants a sagging figure, poor posture or a droopy bosom. And no one has to have a poor figure.

Fifteen minutes a day, preferably in the morning, is all it takes to put you in proper condition by using simple exercises. Most women have specific figure faults and with the right exercise they can narrow hips that have grown too wide, reduce or develop a decent bust line and firm flabby arms. General conditioning exercises will keep your entire body firm and youthful.

If you have allowed yourself to get really out of shape and you are very much overweight (10 pounds in excess will put you in this category), you will need the discipline of a good diet as well. Better consult your family doctor about the diet best suited for you.

To begin, get on a scale and record your weight. Then single out the exercises which deal with your particular problems and start by doing them two or three times each day and finally working up to 20 to 25 times a day. Before you begin your routine, take your measurements and record them next to your weight. Weigh yourself and take measurements once a week to check your progress. Once your goal is achieved it's smart to weigh yourself every morning before breakfast. And at the first sign of backsliding just remember all the time you put into getting yourself in shape. You wouldn't waste your money; don't waste your effort.

Hints From Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise:

Did you know that those oversized, decorative brandy sniffers also make excellent punch bowls?

I bought a plastic ladle at the dime store and some smaller brandy sniffers to use as punch cups.

It looks very attractive on the table and when not in use, the small sniffers can be stored in the larger one.

Mrs. L. K. H.

You do!

That is really a nifty idea—especially when we won't need a real large punch bowl.

I'll bet lots of women who can't afford expensive punch sets are going to love your idea. I do.

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

To get the musty, damp smell out of closets, drawers, overstuffed chairs, etc., I use whole cloves. I just slip some under the chair cushions, into drawers and on top of closet shelves.

It's surprising how clean-smelling everything is in no time at all.

Mary Nartowicz

Dear Heloise:

The best way I know of to clean an enameled sauce pan that has been burned is to put four tablespoons of salt in it and fill with cold water. Let it remain overnight.

The next morning, I just bring the salt water to a boil and my pans come clean every time.

Mrs. Farnsworth

Dear Heloise:

All summer now I have been ruining the heels of my pastel shoes on the rubber flooring under the driver's seat of my car. That dirty black rubber has left marks on every pair I own and cleaning them isn't easy.

I finally got good and mad and decided to use a piece of leftover carpeting to cover that whole area, extending it up a little under the heel of the pedal.

Well, I'm just writing to let you know that it's the best idea I've ever had. Not one pair of shoes has been damaged since. And it makes for a more comfortable heel rest, too!

Eileen

Dear Heloise:

I have found that a one-pound coffee can saves me time and undue work when I prepare that new whipped dessert mix.

After putting the ingredients in, I only use one beater on my mixer and it doesn't spatter at all.

Then I put it in the refrigerator to chill right in the can.

Mrs. Frances Craver

Letter of Laughter

Dear Heloise:

Just heard rumor that you were really a man. Believe me, any such humor would have been started by a MAN!

At the Markets

MEATS—Shoppers have no doubt noticed the frequent and attractive sale prices for broilers. Low prices are expected to prevail—broilers are listed among the plentiful foods for October, according to a recent announcement made by the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Pork continues favorably priced with specials also widespread. Sale prices have been at quite substantial reductions.

FISHERY PRODUCTS

Whiting is currently an economical fish choice according to market specialists. Good supplies are also reported for fresh bluefish, butterfish, cod, flounder, mullet, and swordfish.

Bay scallops and frozen shrimp are leading shellfish items.

EGGS—Eggs continue an outstanding protein-rich food buy, particularly the medium sizes. The current price spread between a dozen large and a dozen medium size eggs is as much as 10 to 15 cents in some markets. With this much difference, the mediums offer more weight of egg for the money than the large. Minimal egg weights for each size of eggs are set by law and have no relationship to quality. Grades indicate quality.

VEGETABLES—Heavy rains have recently slowed shipments of locally grown vegetables, but shoppers should find the following to be top selections: cabbage, carrots, celery, eggplant, iceberg lettuce, potatoes, onions and radishes. Good quality cauliflower is available, but prices should decrease later on as the season progresses.

FRUITS—In addition to Thompson Seedless grapes, shoppers will find both cantaloupe and honeydew melons among the better fruit buys this week. Other suggested choices include fresh purple Italian prunes and nectarines.

FINE OSTRICH FEATHERS—Underneath all those ostrich feathers, model Sonia Pugin gets down to the bare essential, a miniskirt. The dress, a printed chiffon with a double hem of ostrich feathers, is one featured during a winter 1967 collection by Clive, a young London designer. (UPI CABLEPHOTO)

Look Here!

Mrs. Homemaker

In 1967, the "average" American family will spend between $485 and $490 for food for each person in the family, says Louise M. Kakargo, Extension Home Economist. This is about $15 more than the average amount spent per person in 1965. Higher food prices and the selection of higher priced foods will account for only about half this increase in food expenditures. American will also be spending more money on food because they'll be eating more! In 1967, food shoppers are expected to buy 19 per cent more frozen fruits and juices, 6 per cent more frozen vegetables, 6 per cent more pork, 13 per cent more turkey, 4 per cent more fresh citrus fruit, and 3 per cent more margarine. Food shoppers in 1967 are going to be buying less veal, non-citrus fruits, most dairy products, and dry edible beans.

In one California supermarket chain, shoppers are stepping up to check out counters at 41 stores and saying "Charge it!" Unlike other kinds of stores, the grocery units are passing the cost of this service to the customers. Shoppers pay 25 cents to charge purchases of less than $8.49. If the grocery bill is more, the service charge is 3 per cent. Because food stores have such a small profit margin, they cannot absorb the cost involved in letting customers charge their merchandise, as clothing and department stores seem to do. The supermarket chain feels that although charge accounts reduce cash intake, they also reduce the losses from cashing bad checks customers sometimes pass.

At the Markets

MEATS—Shoppers have no doubt noticed the frequent and attractive sale prices for broilers. Low prices are expected to prevail—broilers are listed among the plentiful foods for October, according to a recent announcement made by the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Pork continues favorably priced with specials also widespread. Sale prices have been at quite substantial reductions. FISHERY PRODUCTS—Whiting is currently an economical fish choice, according to market specialists. Good supplies are also reported for fresh bluefish, butterfish, cod, flounder, mullet, and swordfish. Bay scallops and frozen shrimp are leading shellfish items.

EGGS—Eggs continue an outstanding protein-rich food buy, particularly the medium sizes. The current price spread between a dozen large and a dozen medium size eggs is as much as 10 to 15 cents in some markets. With this much difference, the mediums offer more weight of egg for the money than the large. Minimal egg weights for each size of eggs are set by law and have no relationship to quality. Grades indicate quality.

VEGETABLES—Heavy rains have recently slowed shipments of locally grown vegetables, but shoppers should find the following to be top selections: cabbage, carrots, celery, eggplant, iceberg lettuce, potatoes, onions, and radishes. Good quality cauliflower is available, but prices should decrease later on as the season progresses.

FRUITS—In addition to Thompson Seedless grapes, shoppers will find both cantaloupe and honeydew melons among the better fruit buys this week. Other suggested choices include fresh purple Italian prunes and nectarines.

RESTAURANT PERSONNEL

SHOULD GET

MINIMUM WAGE

The subject of tipping—especially in restaurants—arouses strong feelings, both pro and con. Many letters arrived from waiters and waitresses, and from them came the only possible solution. A number of these writers suggested that if their profession were covered by the minimum wage laws, so that their salaries were commensurate with those in other professions, they would not expect tips. If this were the case,

I'm sure that customers would gladly, rather than grudgingly, give small tips in the spirit they were originally intended—as a thank-you for extra or especially good service. So may

I suggest to anyone who wishes to bring restaurant tipping into proper proportion, that he write his legislators. Restaurant prices would undoubtedly rise somewhat to cover the salary increases, but the elimination of irritation and the reduction in the amount paid in tips would make it well worthwhile.

heartfelt remarks—pro and con:

"Write your legislators! Demand that we be included in all and all minimum wage statutes."

"Fifteen percent is too much.

For instance, when one dines in a very nice restaurant and orders items that are more expensive, the bill is higher but actually does not require any greater service on the part of the waitress...has to rely on her tips and this assures her customers of good service."

"I make a salary of $2 cents, an hour, plus I have to pay taxes on my tips. For these tips a waitress has to put up with all kinds of people..."

Please don't begrudge her her tip."

"If people can afford to buy six dollar steak dinners, they can surely afford to tip a waitress who has shown them good service."

"There was a time when I assumed you left a tip when you were especially well-pleased with the service. Instead it is something that must be done if the service is sloppy, lazy, insulting, etc. Therefore, tipping seems to have lost all meaning."

"Why don't the tippers who are always complaining get a labor law passed so restaurant owners will have to pay at least one dollar and twenty-five cents an hour? We would rather get our salary at the end of the month than pick up nickels and dimes from a table which makes us feel like beggars."

And one, and only one, waitress wrote: "Of course a person shouldn't be expected to tip if the service is bad."

Hurley Optimistic as KHS Gridders Prep for Opener

Locals Play Vincentian On Sept. 22

By ED PALLADINO
Freeman Sports Staff

Though he only has two starters from the Thanksgiving Day game against Newburgh returning, don't send Kingston High coach Bill Hurley a crying towel.

When the Maroon gridders commence their season Friday, Sept. 22 at night against Vincentian Institute in Albany, Hurley is optimistic this year's eleven will be full of pleasant surprises.

Tim Bowens, converted from end to fullback and halfback Greg Rios are the returnees.

Fullback Gerard Boggs and halfback Bill Dugan, the double running threats, have been graduated but there are several hard hitting backs ready to move in.

Backing Bowens at fullback are Paul Byrd and Dave Carey. Rios, who played mostly on defense, is teamed with Jeff Perry at the halfback slots. However, they will have plenty of competition from among juniors Dana Clearwater, Bruce Brown and Ken Williams and sophs Marshall Byrd and Ed Adams.

Four Signal Callers

The KHS coach is counting his blessings at quarterback. He has not one, but four top flight candidates for the starting job. Though they haven't had varsity experience, the talent is there.

Kingston High

STRENGTH—Promise of good quarterbacking, excellent speed, balance and much depth.

WEAKNESSES—Lack of game experience and large number of underclassmen.

OFFENSE—Nebraska T (split end and three set backs) and Power I.

DEFENSE—Basic 5-4 and 6-2 with variations.

COACHING STAFF—Bill Hurley, head; George Neher, assistant; Ron Cole and Floyd McCormick, jayvees; Frank Modica and George Ford, frosh; Ron Gabriel (Bailey Jr. High) and Mike Rienzo (Michael Jr. High).

Mike Hoffman, a rugged 200-pounder, is the leading prospect. He was injured last season, just when it appeared he had the number one job under lock and key. Only a junior, the southpaw throwing Hoffman has been impressive in practice.

Larry Harris, a talented end, was counted on to grab the passes at that position. However, he has moved to Schenectady and the two slots are open for grabs from among Russ Wilber, Kevin Ross, Fred Kachura and Joe Holland.

Bill Kidd, a terror on defense and John Berardi, who saw some action, are leading tackle candidates. Others are Ray Schrader, Randy Kelder and Bob Clausi. Mike Perry and Harry Lyons return at guard. They earned letters in '66. Prospects at that position are Rich Oakley and Vince Rapp.

Mike Rosinski and Jim Esposto are battling for the starting berth at center.

Hurley sees the DUSO race as a battle between Newburgh and Middletown but doesn't count the KHS club out of it. "If the boys jell and we are free from serious injuries, we should be right in the thick of things," he said.

Series Opener Set October 4, But Only Maybe

BOSTON (AP) — Even if the American League's regular season ends in a four-way tie, there's only slight chance the World Series will start or finish on the latest date in history.

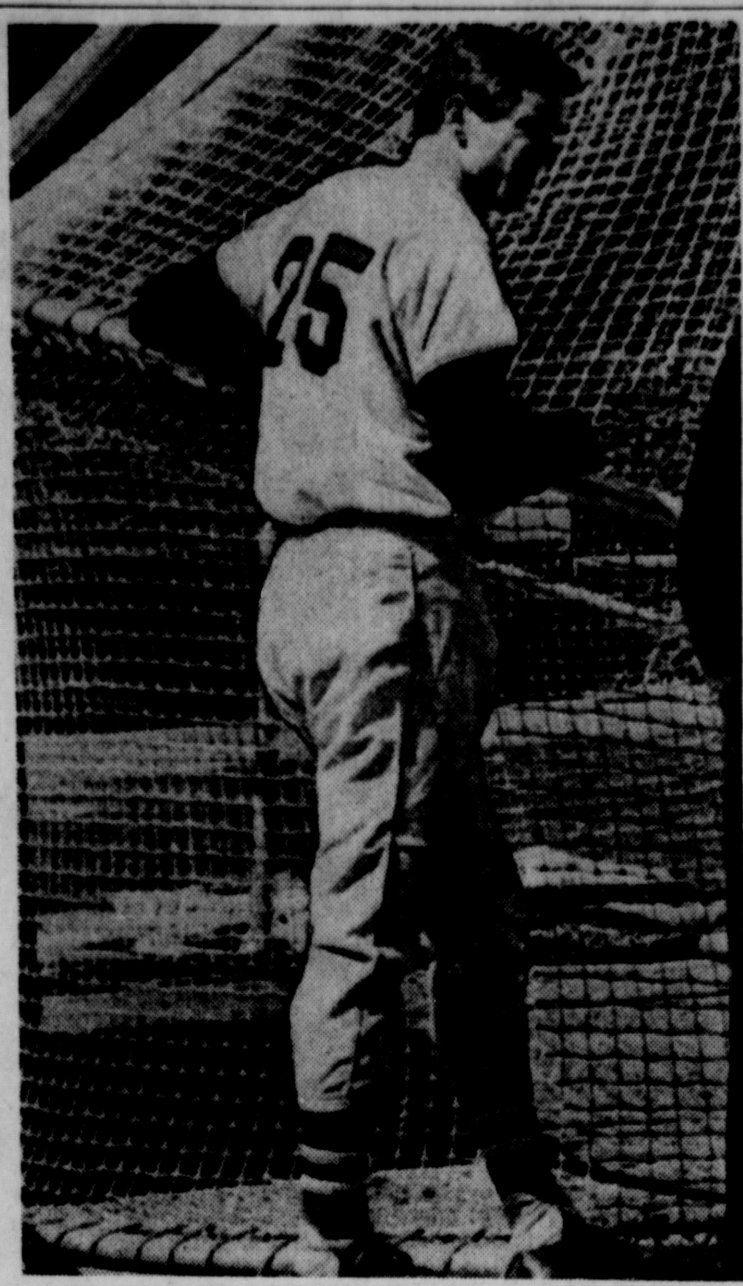

A check of record books disclosed today that the latest start of the World Series was Oct. 17 in 1910. The latest windup was a year later, on Oct. 27.

The World Series is scheduled to start in the home of the AL champion Oct. 4 this year. However, with Minnesota, Boston, Chicago and Detroit involved in a wild pennant fight, arrangements are being made for possible playoffs between two, three and four teams.

Should two teams tie for the lead after the regular schedule of 162 games on Oct. 1, they would play a best-of-3 series for the championship and a berth in the World Series.

If three teams tie, there would be a round-robin series of a maximum of five games. The two teams losing two games would be eliminated.

In the event of a four-way deadlock, two sets of best-of-3 series would be played, with survivors meeting in another three-game set for the title. A drawing will be held in New York Thursday morning to determine sites and opponents for possible playoffs. Any playoffs will start Oct. 2.

Mrs. Harris Annexes Twaalfskill Title

Mrs. William D. (Chris) Harris has won The Twaalfskill Club's women's championship for an unprecedented eighth time.

Mrs. Harris, wife of the prominent Port Ewen dentist, defeated Mrs. George Rusk, 4 and 3, in the spirited 18 hole championship finals.

En route to the finals, Mrs. Harris eliminated Mrs. Harry Thayer and Mrs. V. J. Andretta. Mrs. Rusk survived a 21-hole scare from Mrs. Edward Minasian in the semi-final round.

Leads at Nine

A font nine 44 put Mrs. Harris, an infrequent player this season, 2 up on Mrs. Rusk. They halved the 10th hole and Mrs. Rusk took the 11th. Mrs. Harris swept the next three holes to close out the match at the 15th to win 4 and 3. They played the last three holes for score and Mrs. Harris finished with a 42 for 86.

Mrs. Harris' victory was something of a surprise at Twaalfskill. Although the club's best player over the past 12 years, Mrs. Harris had not played much this year and was considered tournament rusty.

MRS. W. D. HARRIS

The pre-tournament speculation was not upheld by the results.

All three area clubs have now crowned their women's champions for 1967 — Mrs. Harris; Mrs. Richard Davenport at Wiltwyck; and Mrs. Harry Kennedy at Woodstock.

Irish Picked as Repeat Champs

By BEN OLAN

Associated Press Sports Writer

Notre Dame, expected to produce another football powerhouse despite the loss of several star players, is picked to repeat as national college champions this year, according to The Associated Press' annual preseason poll.

Alabama also drew heavy support from the national panel of 32 sports writers and broadcasters participating in the voting. Michigan State placed third, followed by Texas, Miami, California, UCLA, Tennessee and Colorado.

Notre Dame, which beat out runner-up Michigan State by 35 points in last season's final poll, collected 17 first place votes and 296 points in the 1967 pre-season balloting. Alabama, third a year ago, was selected as the top team by 11 voters and accumulated a second place 282 points on a basis of 10 for a first place vote, 9 for second, 8 for third, etc.

MSU Ignored

Michigan State drew only one vote for first place and 183 points while Texas, unranked in last year's final poll, was a close fourth with two votes for the top spot and 176 points.

The final 1966 rankings in order were Notre Dame, Michigan State, Alabama, Georgia, UCLA, Nebraska, Purdue, Georgia Tech, Miami of Florida and Southern Methodist.

The Fighting Irish from South Bend, Ind., and Michigan State's Spartans locked up in an interesting duel for the poll lead through most of last year. Their dramatic late season meeting produced a 10-10 tie and Notre Dame pulled ahead in the voting in the final weeks.

The Irish have lost such stalwarts as Nick Eddy, Larry Conjar, Jim Lynch, Alan Page and Pete Duranko. However, they still have their crack passing combination of Terry Hanratty and Jim Seymour plus speedy halfback Rocky Bleier and huge Kevin Hardy on the defensive line. There's an excellent sophomore group on hand, too.

Alabama on Spree

Alabama will start the season with 18 straight victories, including two smashing bowl triumphs over Nebraska. The Tide hasn't tasted defeat in its last 21 games, dating back to its 1965 opener when it lost to Georgia 18-17.

Michigan State retained the nucleus for a strong squad despite the loss of Bubba Smith, Clint Jones, Gene Washington and Jerry West, among others. Jimmy Raye at quarterback, Bob Apisa at fullback and Al Brenner at end are among the holdover standouts.

Texas appears ready to take command of the Southwest Conference once more after several relatively unimpressive campaigns. The Longhorns have a brilliant backfield consisting of Bill Bradley, Chris Gilbert, Linus Baer and Greg Lott plus fine personnel on both lines and about a dozen highly regarded sophomores.

Opens Saturday

UCLA and Tennessee, the No. 8 and No. 9 teams, respectively, meet in their opening games this Saturday.

The top three in the preseason voting play their first games Sept. 23, Notre Dame against Florida State and Michigan State against Houston.

The pre season voting, with first-place votes in parentheses and total points on a 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 basis:

1. Notre Dame (17)	286
2. Alabama (11)	289
3. Michigan State (9)	183
4. Texas (2)	176
5. Miami, Fla.	154
6. Georgia	128
7. Southern California (1) ..	114
8. UCLA	113
9. Tennessee	88
10. Colorado	48

Others receiving (1) votes, listed alphabetically: Arkansas, Army, Clemson, Georgia Tech, Illinois, Minnesota, Mississippi, Nebraska, Ohio State, Texas A&M, Texas Tech, Washington, Wyoming.

Herbel Whitewashes LA, 4-0

By DICK COUCH

Associated Press Sports Writer

Ron Herbel is giving the San Francisco Giants a much-needed helping hand. . . and just about everybody is pitching in for the Houston Astros.

Herbel, recently promoted from the bullpen to help fill the gap left by Juan Marichal's leg injury, scattered eight hits Monday night in hurling the Giants to a 4-0 victory over Los Angeles.

The Astros, meanwhile, tied a National League record by employing eight pitchers over the way to an 11-10 verdict over the Chicago Cubs.

Nelson Briles, like Herbel an ex-relief specialist, rolled to his seventh straight victory as a starter as league-leading St. Louis whipped Philadelphia 5-1 and Cincinnati struck for two ninth-inning runs to nip Pittsburgh 4-3 in other NL action.

Herbel's second September victory gave the Giants a 8-1 mark for the month and continued a run of brilliant pitching that began on Aug. 1 with Marichal shelved by a pulled hamstring muscle in his left leg.

Beat Drysdale

Willie McCovey, who drove in three runs in Herbel's 4-3 victory over Cincinnati nine days ago, delivered two more against the Dodgers with a single and his 25th homer. Willie Mays chipped in with two doubles and a single as the Giants beat Don Drysdale and took a 12-4 bulge in their season set with the Dodgers.

The Astros overcame a 5-2 deficit with a five-run salvo in the sixth inning, but barely survived a ninth-inning rally by the Cubs, who tossed six pitchers into the slugfest.

Pat House, the eighth Houston hurler, got the last out after Dave Giusti, Carroll Sembera, Chris Zachary, Dan Schneider, winner Dave Eilers, Tom Dukes and Larry Sherry had come and gone.

Jim Wynn smacked his 37th homer and drove in three runs for the Astros while Sonny Jackson's two-run single keyed the sixth-inning uprising.

The 14 pitchers used by both clubs equalled the major league mark for a nine-inning game and the Astros fell one short of the all-time high of nine pitchers put to work by the old St. Louis Browns in a 1940 game against Chicago.

Briles, touched for a run in the second inning, blanked the Phils on five hits the rest of the way to register his 12th victory in 17 decisions.

Singles by Tim McCarver, who had four hits, and Phil Gagliano triggered a three-run burst in the fourth inning that carried the Cardinals another step closer to the NL pennant.

The Reds tailed 3-2 in the ninth when two walks around Deron Johnson's double filled the bases with one out. Maury Wills then booted Don Pavlich's grounder as the tying run scored and Pete Rose won it with a bloop single to right center.

Willie Stargell knocked in all three Pittsburgh runs with a single and homer.

Ermer Joked, Stanky Didn't

By RON RAPOPORT

Associated Press Sports Writer

The talk turned to streaks. As befits the manager of a club that has just won a laugh, Minnesota's Cal Ermer made a joke. As befits the manager of a club whose pennant hopes were damaged by a defeat, Chicago's Eddie Stanky did not.

"If we win 17 more, we're in," said Ermer, whose Twins, in first place in the American League by a game, have 17 games left to play. The Twins murdered Washington 13-5 Monday so Ermer had a right to indulge his whimsy.

"That makes a winning streak necessary now," said Stanky, whose White Sox, in fourth place 2½ games behind the Twins, lost to Baltimore 6-1. "We can't afford to stagger any more."

Boston and Detroit, in second and third place respectively in the close race, were idle Monday as were Cleveland, Kansas City, California and New York.

Three Killerbrew Hits
Minnesota's Dean Chance gave up five unearned runs in the first inning, but the Twins came back for seven runs in the fourth and four more in the fifth to win their third straight game.

Harmon Killebrew had three hits and drove in two runs and Bob Allison had three hits and three RBI as the Twins ganged up on five Senators' pitchers. Rich Reese hit a key two-run double, his fifth pinch hit in his last eight trips.

The White Sox fell victim to three runs batted in by the Orioles' Frank Robinson, who homered and doubled. Jim Hardin stopped the Sox on four hits as only 4,048 turned out to see the home-town contenders.

"That's twice that stanky man has beaten us," said Stanky. "And I guess Frank Robinson is going after that second batting title. I hope he clinches it when Baltimore plays Detroit and Boston."

What should you ask of a bottle of whiskey?

We think you ought to ask for your money's worth. And to us that means three things.

But if you have your doubts remember this:

Last year alone it far outsold the next two best-sellers combined

COACHING STAFF—Bill Hurley, head; George Neher, assistant; Ron Cole and Floyd McCormick, Jayvee; Frank Modica and George Ford, frosh; Ron Gabriel (Bailey Jr. High) and Mike Rienzo (Michael Jr. High).

Mike Hoffman, a rugged 200-pounder, is the leading prospect. He was injured last season, just when it appeared he had the number one job under lock and key. Only a junior, the sophomore throwing Hoffman has been impressive in practice.

Larry Harris, a talented end, was counted on to grab the passes at that position. However, he has moved to Schenectady and the two slots are open for grabs from among Russ Wilber, Kevin Ross, Fred Kachura and Joe Holland.

Bill Kidd, a terror on defense and John Berardi, who saw some action, are leading tackle candidates. Others are Ray Schrader, Randy Kelder and Bob Clausi. Mike Perry and Harry Lyons return at guard. Prospects at that position are Rich Oakley and Vince Rapp.

Mike Rosinski and Jim Esposito are battling for the starting berth at center.

Hurley sees the DUSO race as a battle between Newburgh and Middletown but doesn't count the KHS club out of it. "If the boys jell and we are free from serious injuries, we should be right in the thick of things," he said.

Series Opener Set October 4, But Only Maybe

BOSTON (AP) — Even if the American League's regular season ends in a four-way tie, there's only slight chance the World Series will start or finish on the latest date in history.

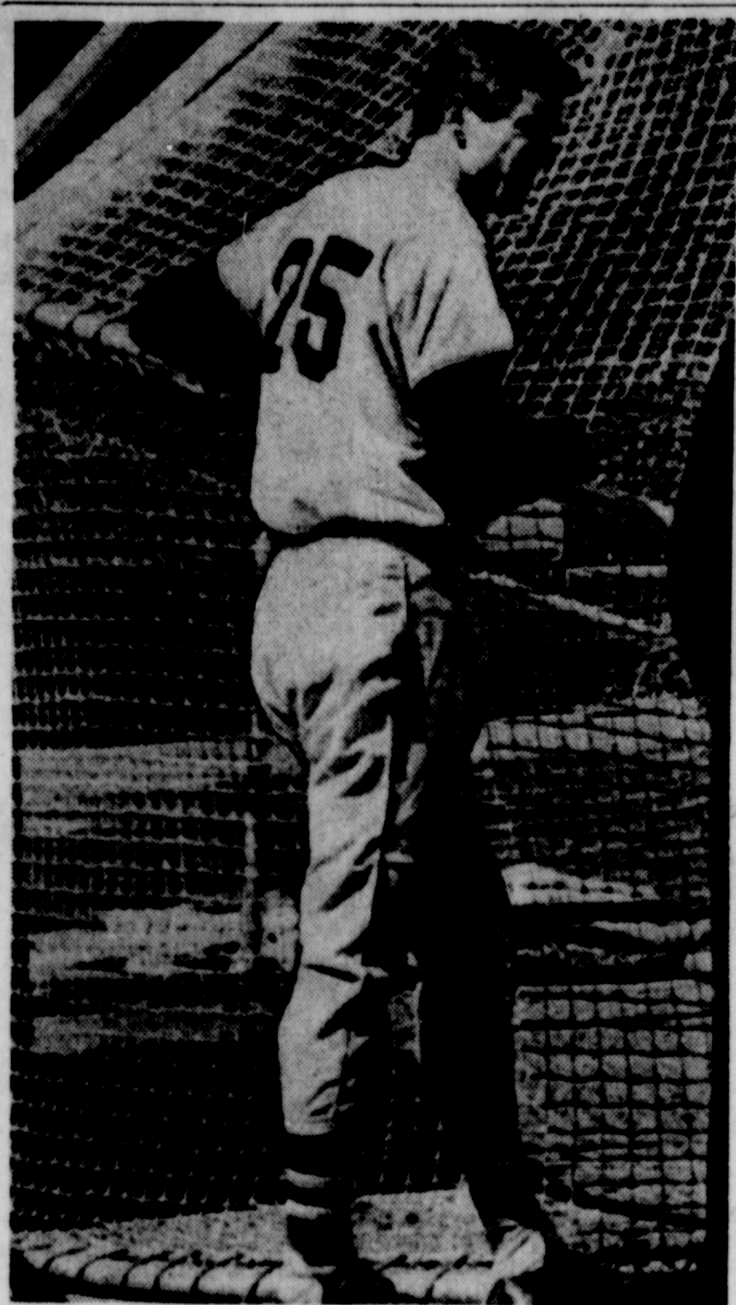

A check of record books disclosed today that the latest start of the World Series was Oct. 17 in 1910. The latest windup was a year later, on Oct. 27.

The World Series is scheduled to start in the home of the AL champion Oct. 4 this year. However, with Minnesota, Boston, Chicago and Detroit involved in a wild pennant fight, arrangements are being made for possible playoffs between two, three and four teams.

Should two teams tie for the lead after the regular schedule of 162 games on Oct. 1, they would play a best-of-3 series for the championship and a berth in the World Series.

If three teams tie, there would be a round-robin series of a maximum of five games. The two teams losing two games would be eliminated.

In the event of a four-way deadlock, two sets of best-of-3 series would be played, with survivors meeting in another three-game set for the title. A drawing will be held in New York Thursday morning to determine sites and opponents for possible playoffs. Any playoffs will start Oct. 2.

Mrs. Harris Annexes Twaalfskill Title

Mrs. William D. (Chris) Harris has won the Twaalfskill Club's women's championship for an unprecedented eighth time.

Mrs. Harris, wife of the prominent Port Ewen dentist, defeated Mrs. George Rusk, 4 and 3, in the spirited 18 hole championship finals.

En route to the finals, Mrs. Harris eliminated Mrs. Harry Thayer and Mrs. V. J. Andretta. Mrs. Rusk survived a 21-hole scare from Mrs. Edward Minasian in the semi-final round.

Leads at Nine
A font nine 44 put Mrs. Harris, an infrequent player this season, 2 up on Mrs. Rusk. They halved the 10th hole and Mrs. Rusk took the 11th. Mrs. Harris swept the next three holes to close out the match at the 15th to win 4 and 3. They played the last three holes for score and Mrs. Harris finished with a 42 for 86.

Mrs. Harris' victory was something of a surprise at Twaalfskill. Although the club's best player over the past 12 years, Mrs. Harris had not played much this year and was considered tournament rusty.

Bill Kidd, a terror on defense and John Berardi, who saw some action, are leading tackle candidates. Others are Ray Schrader, Randy Kelder and Bob Clausi. Mike Perry and Harry Lyons return at guard. Prospects at that position are Rich Oakley and Vince Rapp.

MRS. W. D. HARRIS

The pre-tournament speculation was not upheld by the results. All three area clubs have now crowned their women's champions for 1967 — Mrs. Harris; Mrs. Richard Davenport at Wiltyck; and Mrs. Harry Kennedy at Woodstock.

Irish Picked as Repeat Champs

By BEN OLAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Notre Dame, expected to produce another football powerhouse despite the loss of several star players, is picked to repeat as national college champions this year, according to The Associated Press' annual preseason poll.

Alabama also drew heavy support from the national panel of 32 sports writers and broadcasters participating in the voting. Michigan State placed third, followed by Texas, Miami, California, UCLA, Tennessee and Colorado.

Notre Dame, which beat out runner-up Michigan State by 35 points in last season's final poll, collected 17 first place votes and 295 points in the 1967 pre-season balloting. Alabama, third a year ago, was selected as the top team by 11 voters and accumulated a second place 282 points on a basis of 10 for a first place vote, 9 for second, 8 for third, etc.

MSU Ignored

Michigan State drew only one vote for first place and 183 points while Texas, unranked in last year's final poll, was a close fourth with two votes for the top spot and 176 points.

The final 1966 rankings in order were Notre Dame, Michigan State, Alabama, Georgia, UCLA, Nebraska, Purdue, Georgia Tech, Miami of Florida and Southern Methodist.

The Fighting Irish from South Bend, Ind., and Michigan State's Spartans locked up in an interesting duel for the poll lead through most of last year. Their dramatic late season meeting produced a 10-10 tie and Notre Dame pulled ahead in the voting in the final weeks.

The Irish have lost such stalwarts as Nick Eddy, Larry Conjar, Jim Lynch, Alan Page and Pete Duranko. However, they still have their crack passing combination of Terry Hanratty

and Jim Seymour plus speedy halfback Rocky Bleier and huge Kevin Hardy on the defensive line. There's an excellent sophomore group on hand, too.

Alabama on Spree

Alabama will start the season with 18 straight victories, including two smashing bowl triumphs over Nebraska. The Tide hasn't tasted defeat in its last 21 games, dating back to its 1965 opener when it lost to Georgia 18-17.

Michigan State retained the nucleus for a strong squad despite the loss of Bubba Smith, Clint Jones, Gene Washington and Jerry West, among others. Jimmy Raye at quarterback, Bob Apisa at fullback and Al Brenner at end are among the holdover standouts.

Texas appears ready to take command of the Southwest Conference once more after several relatively unimpressive campaigns. The Longhorns have a brilliant backfield consisting of Bill Bradley, Chris Gilbert, Linus Baer and Greg Lott plus fine personnel on both lines and about a dozen highly regarded sophomores.

Openers Saturday

UCLA and Tennessee, the No. 8 and No. 9 teams, respectively, meet in their opening games this Saturday.

The top three in the preseason voting play their first games Sept. 23. Notre Dame against Florida State and Michigan State against Houston.

The pre season voting, with first-place votes in parentheses and total points on a 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 basis:

1. Notre Dame (17)	286
2. Alabama (11)	283
3. Michigan State (1)	183
4. Texas (2)	176
5. Miami, Fla.	154
6. Georgia	128
7. Southern California (1) ..	114
8. UCLA	113
9. Tennessee	88
10. Colorado	42

Others receiving (1) votes, listed alphabetically: Arkansas, Army, Clemson, Georgia Tech, Illinois, Minnesota, Mississippi, Nebraska, Ohio State, Texas A&M, Texas Tech, Washington, Wyoming.

Herbel Whitewashes LA, 4-0

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Ron Herbel is giving the San Francisco Giants a much-needed helping hand. . . and just about everybody is pitching in for the Houston Astros.

Herbel, recently promoted from the bullpen to help fill the gap left by Juan Marichal's leg injury, scattered eight hits Monday night in hurling the Giants to a 4-0 victory over Los Angeles.

The Astros, meanwhile, tied a National League record by employing eight pitchers on the way to an 11-10 verdict over the Chicago Cubs.

Nelson Briles, like Herbel an ex-relief specialist, rolled to his seventh straight victory as a starter as league-leading St. Louis whipped Philadelphia 5-1 and Cincinnati struck for two ninth-inning runs to nip Pittsburgh 4-3 in other NL action.

Herbel's second September victory gave the Giants a 9-1 mark for the month and continued a run of brilliant pitching that began on Aug. 1 — with Marichal shelved by a pulled hamstring muscle in his left leg.

Beat Drysdale

Willie McCovey, who drove in three runs in Herbel's 4-3 victory over Cincinnati nine days ago, delivered two more against the Dodgers with a single and his 25th homer. Willie Mays chipped in with two doubles and a single as the Giants beat Don Drysdale and took a 12-4 bulge in their season set with the Dodgers.

The Astros overcame a 5-2 deficit with a five-run salvo in the sixth inning, but barely survived a ninth-inning rally by the Cubs, who tossed six pitchers into the slugfest.

Pat House, the eighth Houston hurler, got the last out after Dave Giusti, Carroll Sembera, Chris Zachary, Dan Schneider, winner Dave Eilers, Tom Dukey and Larry Sherry had come and gone.

Jim Wynn smacked his 37th homer and drove in three runs for the Astros while Sonny Jackson's two-run single keyed the sixth-inning uprising.

The 14 pitchers used by both clubs equalled the major league mark for a nine-inning game. The Astros fell one short of the all-time high of nine pitchers put to work by the old St. Louis Browns in a 1940 game against Chicago.

Briles, touched for a run in the second inning, blanked the Phils on five hits the rest of the way to register his 12th victory in 17 decisions.

Singles by Tim McCarver, who had four hits, and Phil Gagliano triggered a three-run burst in the fourth inning that carried the Cardinals another step closer to the NL pennant.

The Reds tailed 3-2 in the ninth when two walks around Deron Johnson's double filled the bases with one out. Maury Wills then batted Don Pavletich's grounder as the tying run scored and Pete Rose won it with a bloop single to right center.

Willie Stargell knocked in all three Pittsburgh runs with a single and homer.

Ermer Joked, Stanky Didn't

By RON RAPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

The talk turned to streaks. As befits the manager of a club that has just won a laughter, Minnesota's Cal Ermer made a joke. As befits the manager of a club whose pennant hopes were damaged by a defeat, Chicago's Eddie Stanky did not.

"If we win 17 more, we're in," said Ermer, whose Twins, in first place in the American League by a game, have 17 games left to play. The Twins murdered Washington 13-5 Monday so Ermer had a right to indulge his whimsy.

"That makes a winning streak necessary now," said Stanky, whose White Sox, in fourth place 2½ games behind the Twins, lost to Baltimore 6-1. "We can't afford to stagger any more."

Boston and Detroit, in second and third place respectively in the close race, were idle Monday as were Cleveland, Kansas City, California and New York.

Three Killerbrow Hits

hits and drove in two runs and Bob Allison had three hits and three RBI as the Twins ganged up on five Senators' pitchers. Rich Reese hit a key two-run double, his fifth pinch hit in his last eight tries.

The White Sox fell victim to three runs batted in by the Orioles' Frank Robinson, who homered and doubled. Jim Hardin stopped the Sox on four hits as only 4,048 turned out to see the home-town contenders.

"That's twice that young man has beaten us," said Stanky. "And I guess Frank Robinson is going after that second batting title. I hope he clinches it when Baltimore plays Detroit and Boston."

What should you ask of a bottle of whiskey?

We think you ought to ask for your money's worth. And to us that means three things.

Taste that suits you. Quality you can be proud to serve your friends.

And quality that never varies. Bottle to bottle. Year to year.

Maybe you've already found all this in one bottle.

But if you have your doubts remember this:

For the past 20 years Seagram's 7 Crown has been the best-selling whiskey in the nation.

Last year alone it far outsold the next two best-sellers combined.

We haven't built that kind of success by giving people less than the best.

Red Hook Features Solid Backfield

Though he has to replace 17 lettermen, Red Hook High football coach Vic Orthmann has a nifty backfield and feels the Hookers will better their 3-5 record of last season.

Ed Thompson and Don Germain are battling it out for the starting quarterback job. Others in the backfield include full-back Ralph Cort and halfbacks Paul Mueller and Jay Gardner. Steve Miller and Terry Murphy have shots at earning starting backfield berths.

Up front, Orthmann has only ends Joe Burd and Terry White and guard Tim Coie returning. Bob Guelnder and Dennis Griffin loom as starters at the tackle slots, George Greene is the center and Ed Mead figures to start at the other guard position.

Newcomers include Charles Martin, Hank Matthews, John Perz, Dave Rockefeller, Charles Lazarus and Steve Bayer.

The Hookers, who play five of their eight games at home, will entertain non-league foe Onteora in their opener this Saturday.

Orthmann feels the Bi-Valley League will produce a good race and he tabs Pawling as the club to beat.

Tony C. to Wear Protective Flap

BOSTON (AP) — Tony Conigliaro, sidelined since being hit by a pitch on the left cheekbone Aug. 18, plans to wear a protective batting helmet with an ear flap when he rejoins the Boston Red Sox.

Conigliaro donned the special helmet being adopted by many other players for his first hitting drill Monday since he was hit by a fast ball thrown by California's Jack Hamilton.

Conigliaro, who suffered a cracked cheekbone and hemorrhaging behind the left eye, was eligible to come off the disabled list, but found he wasn't ready during a workout at Fenway Park.

"I'm not going to return to the line-up until the sight in the eye is perfect," he said after the drill.

He is scheduled for another examination by eye specialists Thursday.

Cagle Captures Stock Feature

Will Cagle chalked up his fourth feature win of the season Saturday at the Orange County Fairgrounds in Middletown.

The fast-moving Cagle ran away from the pack in the 30-lap race and set a record at the same time. He finished in a winning time of 13:11.8, eclipsing the mark of Rags Carter, set on Aug. 2.

There was a good battle for second with Frankie Schneider edging Bob Pickell for the spot. Jackie Evans was fourth, followed by Budd Olsen, Ed Farley, Rags Carter, Richie Kolka, Bob Malzahn and Ray Cook.

Richie Eulich, Pine Island, won a heat race and the 20-lap Limited Sportsman feature.

A return of the American Racing Drivers Club will be featured at the track on Saturday, Sept. 23. They will be combined with the midgets, who have not appeared since Aug. 12.

Barry Decides To Sit Out Year

RICK BARRY
OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Rick Barry, last year's high-scoring hero of the San Francisco Warriors, will only be a spectator this season.

The National Basketball Association's top scorer of last year announced Monday he will sit out the 1967-68 season rather than play for the Warriors after signing with the Oakland Oaks of the American Basketball Association.

Barry, who led the Warriors to the NBA playoffs last season, contracted with the Oaks for the reported sum of $225,000 for three years in June.

Extra Innings For A's-Finley

NEW YORK (AP) — The Kansas City Athletics didn't play baseball Monday, but they went into extra innings on the labor relations front, playing to an apparent scoreless tie.

For nearly 12 hours television cables snaked across the floor of baseball Commissioner William D. Eckert's outer office and reporters slept on couches as, inside in the conference rooms, Athletics owner Charles O. Finley tried to settle a dispute with his players.

About the only thing the various parties to the argument could agree to was to meet again today.

Eckert, who sat in on some of the discussions, emerged from the marathon session late in the evening to say only that "substantial progress" was being made.

Eckert had called the session in the wake of the fight between Finley and his players that had left pitcher Lew Krausse suspended and then reinstated, first baseman-outfielder Ken Harrelson traded and Manager Alvin Dark fired.

Meeting with Finley and Eckert were American League President Joe Cronin; Jack Aker, Kansas City pitcher and player representative; Marvin Miller, director of the Major League Players Association and a couple of Finley's lawyers.

Miller has filed an unprecedented unfair labor practices charge against Finley with the National Labor Relations Board and Eckert's avowed purpose was to end the feud before it got as far as that nonbaseball body.

The origin of the fight between the volatile club owner and his players occurred last month when Finley suspended Krausse after an alleged drinking incident on a plane.

Sports Briefs

TOKYO (AP) — An agreement for the exchange of Japanese and U.S. professional baseball players was approved Monday by the Japanese Professional Baseball Executive Committee.

WHEELING, W.Va. (AP) — The Toronto franchise in the Continental League was reinstated Monday by action of club owners in the league.

NEW YORK (AP) — J. Ellis Knowles of Rye, N.Y., was named nonplaying captain of the U.S. team Monday for the first World Senior Amateur Team Golf Championship.

TENNIS KING: Australia's John Newcombe, winner of the U. S. Tennis Championship at Forest Hills, is obviously pleased with the trophy symbolic of Tennis Player of the Year. The trophy is awarded annually to the player who compiles the best record in the five major championships of the world—Wimbledon, U. S., French, Australian and Italian. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Rate Newcombe Top World Tennis Star

NEW YORK (AP) — Pundits say the ideal life is that of the touring amateur tennis player—you travel the world at someone else's expense and you travel with a harem.

The current king of these court gypsies is a tall, handsome Australian named John Newcombe, who added the American to his Wimbledon title this week and Monday received an elegant trophy as the sport's Player of the Year.

As the world's No. 1 player, Newcombe is in a position to call his own shots and dictate his own terms for tournament appearances.

While the straight-laced amateur authorities hush-hush such suggestions, it is known that a top flight star can demand as much as $500 a tournament to play in such places as the French Riviera, the European Continent and the Caribbean.

It's a busy life, but a profitable one. Jack Kramer and Lew Hoad, among others have said that a smart operator can clear as much as $10,000 a year, over and above other sources of income.

Has 'Other' Jobs

"I work for a travel agency in Sydney and I also have a job with a sporting goods company," Newcombe said. "I play tennis 11 months of the year."

Son of a Sydney dentist, Newcombe is an all-around teen-age athlete star in a country famed for its sportsmen. In high school he played football, a form of soccer, and cricket.

At 13, he listened to a Davis Cup broadcast and got interested. He told his dad he wanted a tennis racket.

Newcombe won the Australian Junior at 16 and was named the youngest man ever to represent Australia on the world tour. He's been on the merry-go-round ever since.

Like most Australians, he was through high school at 16. He played at Wimbledon at 17 and was a Davis Cup team member at 19.

Hoople Back Friday With Grid Selections

By Major Amos Barnaby Hoople Football's Foremost Forecaster

Egad, friends, there's good news for you today!

My fabulous football forecasts—kaff-kaff—will be carried in The Kingston Daily Freeman beginning with the high school and collegiate contests slated this Saturday.

This year you can expect big upsets to be the order of the day, and your favored correspondent, properly—hak-kaff—acclaimed the Upset Champion of the World, is prepared to bring them to you as he has in the past.

For the non-believers among you, let me remind you it was the Hoople System—and only the Hoople System—that forecast the 1966 upset of the year—Oklahoma over Nebraska—har-rumph!

And only slightly less startling was the predictions of Georgia knocking Georgia Tech from the ranks of the unbeaten and Baylor's colossal upset of Arkansas.

Neither space nor time permit me to recount for you the many other sterling predictions the redoubtable Hoople System has given its followers over the years um-kumph!

Watch for Friday's selections. They will positively astound you.

Columbus Beats Toledo Hens, 5-0

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Columbus Jets finally got the best deal in a shutout with the Toledo Mud Hens.

It came Monday night as the Ohio teams clashed in the first game of the International League Governor's Cup playoffs' final round.

The Jets claimed a 5-0 victory before a sparse crowd of 1,006 on a nippy night.

In regular season play the Jets were shut out six times by Toledo.

The shutout Monday night was by Bob Moose, a 33-year-old rookie right-hander, who gave up only six hits in the opener of the best-of-7 series.

Moose, recalled from the Southern League on Aug. 5, also scored after he walked in the seventh inning. He came home on singles by Fred Patek and George Spriggs and a fielder's choice.

Moose got in a jam in the fifth when he walked Chris Cannizzaro and gave up a single to Don Dillard. But then he retired the next three batters.

Both teams are shooting for their first Governor's Cup title. Tonight's game here matches the two left-handed pitchers, the Jets' Billy Short and the Hens' Fritz Fisher.

Red Hook Features Solid Backfield

Though he has to replace 17 lettermen, Red Hook High football coach Vic Orthmann has a nifty backfield and feels the Hookers will "better their 3-5 record of last season."

Ed Thompson and Don Germain are battling it out for the starting quarterback job. Others in the backfield include fullback Ralph Cort and halfbacks Paul Mueller and Jay Gardner. Steve Melley and Terry Murphy have shots at earning starting backfield berths.

Up front, Orthmann has only ends Joe Burud and Terry White and guard Tim Cole returning. Bob Guelnder and Dennis Griffin loom as starters at the tackle slots. George Greene is the center and Ed Mead figures to start at the other guard position.

The Hookers, who play five of their eight games at home, will entertain non-league foe Onteora in their opener this Saturday.

Orthmann feels the Bi Valley League will produce a good race and he tabs Pawling as the club to beat.

Barry Decides To Sit Out Year

RICK BARRY

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP)—Rick Barry, last year's high-scoring hero of the San Francisco Warriors, will only be a spectator this season.

The National Basketball Association's top scorer of last year announced Monday he will sit out the 1967-68 season rather than play for the Warriors after signing with the Oakland Oaks of the American Basketball Association.

Barry, who led the Warriors to the NBA playoffs last season, contracted with the Oaks for the reported sum of $225,000 for three years in June.

The Warriors obtained a San Francisco Superior Court injunction preventing Barry from playing with anyone but them until his reserve clause expires Sept. 30, 1968.

Today In Washington

Denies Junta Rule

WASHINGTON (AP) — King Constantine of Greece, meeting with President Johnson and key congressional leaders, has apparently disassociated himself from the actions of the military junta now leading his country.

"What is your government going to do about —," one senator began to ask at a private session with members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

"It's not my government," the king shot back, according to senators present.

The senators said they were impressed with the young monarch's plea for time and patience while he tries to revive constitutional democracy in Greece.

During an informal visit with the President, the king apparently was unaware of a small group of Greek Americans across the street from the White House, demonstrating against the Greek military regime.

One of the protesters was actress Melina Mercouri who has been stripped of her Greek citizenship because of her criticism of the new regime.

Inflation Curb

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Association of Business Economists says three of every four of its members favor a speedy tax increase to curb inflation and cut the federal deficit. The responses came from 284 of the corporations economists polled.

Earlier, 260 economists from scores of colleges and research institutions called in a statement for a tax boost.

Their position was criticized by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., who told the Senate a two-year tax increase effective Jan. 1 would cause unemployment for up to 1 million persons.

The two pro-tax declarations were delivered to the House Ways and Means Committee which starts its final round of hearings today on President Johnson's request for a 10 percent surcharge on personal and corporation taxes.

Troy Area GI Killed in Viet

GREEN ISLAND, N.Y. (AP) — S. Sgt. Marl W. McCutchen Jr., 23, of this Troy suburb, died Saturday of injuries received in a rocket attack on Da Nang Air Base in South Vietnam, his wife has learned.

He was one of four Upstate servicemen whose deaths were announced Monday by the Defense Department.

McCutchen enlisted in the Air Force in June 1961 after graduation from Healy School. He was scheduled to return to the United States later this month.

Among the survivors are his wife, Marion, and two children.

The Defense Department also announced the death in action of Army Pfc. Robert S. Barnes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Barnes of Port Byron, in Cayuga County.

Army Spec. 4 Charles G. Hamilton of Brooktondale, earlier listed as missing, has been killed in action, the department said. He was the husband of Mrs. Donna L. Hamilton of Brooktondale, near Ithaca.

Army CWO Wayne E. Jones of Saranac Lake died of non-hostile causes, the department said. Jones, who had been listed as missing, was the husband of Mrs. Delores J. Jones.

GUARDED—Milwaukee police provided an armed escort for Rev. James Groppi who led another open housing march into the city's south side. UPI TELEPHOTO

Milwaukee Whites Stop Negro March

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — Crowds of whites hurled bottles and rocks at a line of Negro open housing marchers in a virtually all-white South Side Monday night, bringing an abrupt end to Milwaukee's 15th straight night of demonstrations.

Whites packed the sidewalks along 16th Street as the demonstrators, led by Negro comedian Dick Gregory and the Rev. James E. Groppi, a white Roman Catholic priest, moved into the neighborhood.

Two persons were injured including Sydney Finley, a national officer of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People who suffered a head cut.

Police made 13 arrests. The whites, some of whom had made unsuccessful attempts earlier Monday to start marches of their own into the Negro North Side, were waiting for the procession of about 500 Negroes.

Even before the marchers crossed a viaduct into the neighborhood, bottles and firecrackers were tossed at the feet of police. Police had used tear gas in a South Side neighborhood Sunday night to scatter whites aroused by the largest civil rights demonstration in the city's history.

The demonstration had been staged with only minor incidents through another South Side section.

"Sock it to me, Black Power, ooh, aah," chanted the demonstrators as they advanced through the shouting waves of whites. Some whites held banners that read, "Polish Power," or, "White power."

Others threw rocks and bottles, over the heads of the riot-equipped police accompanying the marchers.

The marchers huddled together. Some hid behind signs calling for open housing.

Some police charged toward the white lines. Others urged the marchers to hurry along.

Police pushed the marchers down a darkened residential street.

The whites were sealed off at the corner. A police sergeant pleaded with Father Groppi and other march leaders not to try to push deeper into the neighborhood.

Finally, police led the marchers around the corner and back toward the viaduct leading to the safety of Milwaukee's downtown. The whites jeered as the marchers retreated over the bridge.

Some examples of the guest-host relationship as described by station executives here:

"We refused the revised 'Trip' commercial on grounds that it didn't show the possible bad effects of LSD. We also refused a trailer for movie, 'How Much Love Does a Normal Couple Need?'—on the basis of the title alone."

"Restrictions on 'bait and switch' advertising are pretty standard now. That's where the advertised rebuilt $19 sewing machine falls apart, but there's been a divorce in the family and the salesman just happens to have a $250 machine for $195."

Some specific taboos grow out of advertisers' agreement with such general code provisions as:

"The advertising of beer and wines is acceptable only when presented in the best of good taste and discretion..."

"The advertising of cigarettes should not be presented in a manner to convey the impression that cigarette smoking promotes health..."

wearing a doctor's or nurse's garb while plugging a product now must actually be a doctor or a nurse.

Four Persons Hurt In Cairo Collision

Four persons, including three members of an Upstate family, were injured at 11:10 p. m. Monday and a motorist was cited by State Police from the Leeds substation, after a two-car collision at the intersection of Routes 145 and 23, Town of Cairo.

GE Struck By Union In Syracuse

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP)—Approximately 1,000 members of the International Union of Electrical Workers struck the General Electric Co. facilities here today in a dispute over wages and job classifications.

John Stanley, business agent for IUE Local 320, said the walkout would continue until GE is "willing to sit down and discuss" the local's grievances.

He said the local represents about 1,000 of the 7,000 workers employed at the plant.

Members of the local, employed in departments producing television sets, cathode-ray tubes and electronic military equipment, authorized the strike in a unanimous vote Monday, Stanley said.

A company spokesman said the strike had been expected.

Troopers reported the cars were operated by Hayden G. Becker, 50, of Freehold and Richard B. Sauver, 30, of Grand Gorge. Sauver was cited by Trooper A. J. Petersen for failure to yield the right of way. The summons is returnable later before Justice of the Peace Nicholas Bier.

Becker was driving east on Route 145 and Sauver was traveling south on Route 23 when the crash occurred in the middle of the intersection.

Becker was treated at Greene County Memorial Hospital, Catskill, for lacerations of the face. Sauver sustained lacerations of the forehead. His wife, Montie, 24, received lacerations of the face and mouth, and son, Timothy Scott Sauver, 3, suffered similar injuries.

Denies Junta Rule

WASHINGTON (AP) — King Constantine of Greece, meeting with President Johnson and key congressional leaders, has apparently disassociated himself from the actions of the military junta now leading his country.

"What is your government going to do about —," one senator began to ask at a private session with members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

"It's not my government," the king shot back, according to senators present.

The senators said they were impressed with the young monarch's plea for time and patience while he tries to revive constitutional democracy in Greece.

During an informal visit with the President, the king apparently was unaware of a small group of Greek Americans across the street from the White House, demonstrating against the Greek military regime.

One of the protesters was actress Melina Mercuri who has been stripped of her Greek citizenship because of her criticism of the new regime.

Inflation Curb

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Association of Business Economists says three of every four of its members favor a speedy tax increase to curb inflation and cut the federal deficit.

The responses came from 284 of the corporations economists polled.

Earlier, 260 economists from scores of colleges and research institutions called in a statement for a tax boost.

Their position was criticized by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., who told the Senate a two-year tax increase effective Jan. 1 would cause unemployment for up to 1 million persons.

The two pro-tax declarations were delivered to the House Ways and Means Committee which starts its final round of hearings today on President Johnson's request for a 10 percent surcharge on personal and corporation taxes.

The Navy is testing, for possible fleet use, a five-inch gun that weighs less, shoots farther and takes fewer men to operate than present naval artillery.

The House has passed a bill allowing actors who play the parts of mailmen to wear the U.S. Postal Service's uniform or badge unless the portrayal discredits the service.

Former Sen. Arthur V. Watkins, 80, says he will write a book about his role as chairman of the Senate Committee that investigated and censured Sen. Joseph McCarthy in 1954.

McCarthy, says Watkins, "was terribly bitter and vicious to me after it was over."

The House has passed 310 to 0 a bill providing benefits to state and local law enforcement officers. A similar bill has been approved by the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Troy Area GI Killed in Viet

GREEN ISLAND, N.Y. (AP) — S. Sgt. Marl W. McCutchen Jr., 23, of this Troy suburb, died Saturday of injuries received in a rocket attack on Da Nang Air Base in South Vietnam, his wife has learned.

He was one of four Upstate servicemen whose deaths were announced Monday by the Defense Department.

McCutchen enlisted in the Air Force in June 1961 after graduation from Heatly School. He was scheduled to return to the United States later this month.

Among the survivors are his wife, Marion, and two children.

The Defense Department also announced the death in action of Army Pfc. Robert S. Barnes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Barnes of Port Byron, in Cayuga County.

Army Spec. 4 Charles G. Hamilton of Brooktondale, earlier listed as missing, has been killed in action, the department said. He was the husband of Mrs. Donna L. Hamilton of Brooktondale, near Ithaca.

Army CWO Wayne E. Jones of Saranac Lake died of non-hostile causes, the department said. Jones, who had been listed as missing, was the husband of Mrs. Delores J. Jones.

GUARDED—Milwaukee police provided an armed escort for Rev. James Groppi who led another open housing march into the city's south side. UPI TELEPHOTO

Milwaukee Whites Stop Negro March

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — Crowds of whites hurled bottles and rocks at a line of Negro open housing marchers in the virtually all-white South Side Monday night, bringing an abrupt end to Milwaukee's 15th straight night of demonstrations.

Whites packed the sidewalks along 16th Street as the demonstrators, led by Negro comedian Dick Gregory and the Rev. James E. Groppi, a white Roman Catholic priest, moved into the neighborhood.

Two persons were injured in the riot.

Police had used tear gas in a South Side neighborhood Sunday night to scatter whites aroused by the largest civil rights demonstration in the city's history.

The demonstration had been staged with only minor incidents through another South Side section.

"Sack it to me, Black Power, ooh, aah," chanted the demonstrators as they advanced through the shouting waves of whites. Some whites held banners that read, "Polish Power," or "White Power."

Others threw rocks and bottles, over the heads of the riot-equipped police accompanying the marchers.

The marchers huddled together. Some hid behind signs calling for open housing.

Some police charged toward the white lines. Others urged the marchers to hurry along.

Some demonstrators threw rocks back at the whites. One Negro youth began smashing storefront windows.

Police pushed the marchers down a darkened residential street.

The whites were sealed off at the corner. A police sergeant pleaded with Father Groppi and other march leaders not to try to push deeper into the neighborhood.

Finally, police led the marchers around the corner and back toward the viaduct leading to the safety of Milwaukee's downtown. The whites jeered as the marchers retreated over the bridge.

The four-block march was over within 15 minutes.

Commercials on TV Follow New Standard

By GENE HANDSAKER Associated Press Writer

For Bob homas

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — In television commercials, since the surgeon general's report, no one under 25 smokes a cigarette.

In beer ads, overflowing steins are hoisted on bended elbows and lowered empty. But, a veteran network censor claims, no one is shown actually guzzling.

Such are TV's self-imposed taboos shown in a survey prompted by the National Association of Broadcasters' objections to a commercial for the LSD movie "The Trip." American International studio deleted a nude swimming scene, toned down the language and says the NAB then approved the commercial.

The NAB's TV code tells broadcasters:

"It is the responsibility of television to bear constantly in mind that the audience is primarily a home audience, and consequently that television's relationship to the viewers is that between guest and host."

Some examples of the guest-host relationship as described by station executives here:

"We refused the revised 'Trip' commercial on grounds that it didn't show the possible bad effects of LSD. We also refused a trailer for movie, 'How Much Love Does a Normal Couple Need?'—on the basis of the title alone."

"Restrictions on 'bait and switch' advertising are pretty standard now. That's where the advertised rebuilt $19 sewing machine falls apart, but there's been a divorce in the family and the salesman just happens to have a $250 machine for $195."

Some specific taboos grow out of advertisers' agreement with such general code provisions as:

"The advertising of beer and wines is acceptable only when presented in the best of good taste and discretion..."

"The advertising of cigarettes should not be presented in a manner to convey the impression that cigarette smoking promotes health..."

Four Persons Hurt In Cairo Collision

Four persons, including three members of an Upstate family, were injured at 11:10 p. m. Monday and a motorist was cited by State Police from the Leeds substation, after a two-car collision at the intersection of Routes 145 and 23, Town of Cairo.

GE Struck By Union In Syracuse

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP)—Approximately 1,000 members of the International Union of Electrical Workers struck the General Electric Co. facilities here today in a dispute over wages and job classifications.

John Stanley, business agent for IUE Local 320, said the walkout would continue until GE is "willing to sit down and discuss" the local's grievances.

He said the local represents about 1,000 of the 7,000 workers employed at the plant.

Members of the local, employed in departments producing television sets, cathode-ray tubes and electronic military equipment, authorized the strike in a unanimous vote Monday, Stanley said.

A company spokesman said the strike had been expected.

GE Struck By Union In Syracuse

Troopers reported the cars were operated by Hayden G. Becker, 50, of Freehold and Richard B. Sauver, 30, of Grand Gorge. Sauver was cited by Trooper A. J. Petersen for failure to yield the right of way.

The summons is returnable later before Justice of the Peace Nicholas Bier.

Becker was driving east on Route 145 and Sauver was traveling south on Route 23 when the crash occurred in the middle of the intersection.

Becker was treated at Greene County Memorial Hospital, Catskill, for lacerations of the face. Sauver sustained lacerations of the forehead. His wife, Montie, 24, received lacerations of the face and mouth, and son, Timothy Scott Sauver, 3, suffered similar injuries.

FAMILY POSE—Lynda Bird Johnson and her fiancé, Marine Capt. Charles Robb, are joined by President and Mrs. Johnson, during a picture-taking session on the White House lawn yesterday. The couple will be married in a military ceremony at the White House early in December. UPI TELEPHOTO

Lady Bird Happy Over Nuptials

WASHINGTON (AP) — "I'm happy," said the President's wife, "there are such stars in Lynda's eyes."

Lady Bird Johnson's comment summed up a day of talk about a White House wedding, the complications presented by the prospective bridegroom's forthcoming assignment to Vietnam, and the difficulties involved in the marriage of a Marine captain to the daughter of the commander in chief.

Lynda Bird Johnson, 23, and her fiancé, Capt. Charles S. Robb, 26, met reporters Monday on the South Lawn of the White House. Robb's duty station on occasion as a White House social aide. Robb, whose family lives in Milwaukee, Wis., said he asked President Johnson for Lynda's hand in marriage.

But he said he didn't want to try to recite the reply because "I wouldn't want to misquote him."

Bess Abell, the First Lady's press secretary, said the wedding, set for an unspecified date in early December, would be in the East Room of the White House.

And the Pentagon, reacting to the sudden flood of interest in the tall Marine career officer, assigned him his own press aide—25-year-old Navy Lt. (j.g.) Ryan Lamb of Lafayette, Ind. The White House immediately began referring all queries to Lamb, who is on the staff of the assistant secretary of defense for public affairs.

One of his first tasks was to give out the information that Robb will be assigned to Vietnam in mid-March, not February as first announced.

Lynda and Robb said most of their plans for the future have not been worked out. Lynda said she didn't know whether she will continue to live in the White House after Robb is sent to Vietnam.

Powell Appears At D.C. Hearing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Adam Clayton Powell, ousted from his Harlem congressional seat by the House for alleged financial misconduct, was back in Washington Monday to appear before a federal grand jury investigating similar allegations.

Powell reportedly appeared in response to a subpoena.

Powell is being investigated in connection with sections of federal law dealing with bribery of witnesses, fraudulent or false claims against the government, conspiracy to defraud the government and embezzlement of theft of public money or records.

The House excluded Powell last March after a congressional committee said he made false reports on expenditures and wrongfully appropriated more than $28,000 in public funds to his own use by allowing his wife to draw a salary when she performed no official duties.

He was re-elected in a special election April 11 and has sought court action to get readmitted. He has not asked the House to readmit him.

Powell declined to tell newsmen about his session with the grand jury.

Student Killed

GABRIELS, N.Y. (AP)—Howard J. Carosella, 18, of Schenectady, was killed Monday when his automobile struck four parked cars along Route 192 in this Adirondack community, State Police said.

Carosella was a student at nearby Paul Smiths College. His address was 1347 Sumner Ave.

House lawn yesterday. The couple will be married in a military ceremony at the White House early in December. UPI TELEPHOTO

Lady Bird Happy Over Nuptials

WASHINGTON (AP) — "I'm happy," said the President's wife, "there are such stars in Lynda's eyes."

Lady Bird Johnson's comment summed up a day of talk about a White House wedding, the complications presented by the prospective bridegroom's forthcoming assignment to Vietnam, and the difficulties involved in the marriage of a Marine captain to the daughter of the commander in chief.

Lynda Bird Johnson, 23, and her fiancé, Capt. Charles S. Robb, 28, met reporters Sunday on the South Lawn of the White House. Robb's first station on occasion as a White House social aide, Robb, whose family lives in Milwaukee, Wis., said he asked President Johnson for Lynda's hand in marriage.

County Court Leads In Area Workload

Ulster County Court is one of the busiest courts in the Upper Hudson Valley, according to the official 1967 report of the State Judicial Conference recently published.

County Court Judge Raymond J. Mino, in a speech to the Town of Marlborough Republican Club, said the report shows Ulster County leads the Third Judicial District in the total number of criminal cases disposed of by pleas of guilty and criminal trials. The Third Judicial District includes the Counties of Albany, Schoharie, Sullivan, Columbia, Greene, Rensselaer and Ulster. Albany and Rensselaer Counties have a combined population of more than three times that of Ulster County, but Ulster County still leads both Albany and Rensselaer Counties, despite a greater number of indictments in both these counties. Judge Mino also pointed out that the official report shows a marked increase in the number of civil cases handled in the County Court.

Despite Albany and Rensselaer County's larger population, their report further reflects that Judge Mino has tried, to a final verdict, more civil and criminal cases than any other County Court in the entire Third Judicial District. A continuation of this pattern is indicated by the fact that between January and August 1, the County Court of Ulster County has already tried, to a final verdict more civil and criminal cases than the previous year.

Still Seek Clothes For Gentile Family

An appeal for clothing and furniture was renewed today for the family of Louis Gentile, whose home in Woodstock was destroyed by fire Sunday morning.

Voters Feel Vietnam War Should End

WASHINGTON (AP) — Growing frustration over the war in Vietnam is reported by House members to be the dominant feeling of their constituents.

The prospect of increased taxes and crime, and rioting also are weighing heavily on the minds of the voters.

Interviews with a cross-section of Democratic and Republican House members indicate concern over the conduct of the war is the biggest issue.

Back from a two-week vacation, they reported mounting feeling that the United States should act to win the war quickly or pull out of Vietnam.

The political significance of the unrest was interpreted differently by the two party leaders in the House.

Rep. Carl Albert of Oklahoma, Democratic leader, appeared surprised "that the President is not in nearly as much trouble as I thought he was."

"Vietnam is the No. 1 issue," Albert said. "There is a sense of frustration about the war. I found little talk about taxes but a lot of people are worried about the rioting and there was some criticism of the poverty program and concern over farm prices."

Rep. Gerald R. Ford of Michigan, the Republican leader, said: "I have never seen an administration in such public disfavor."

"The people are concerned about Vietnam and are frustrated about the way the war is being waged," Ford said. "There is grave concern about crime and disregard of the law, and strong opposition to a tax increase."

Rep. George W. Andrews, D-Ala., said the chief concerns of his constituents were "the war, taxes, crime and rioting, in that order."

"The people want this war over with," he added.

Three states—Illinois, Connecticut and Minnesota—have laws calling for compulsory fluoridation of all municipal water supplies.

Egyptians Shoot at Israeli Plane

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israeli and Egyptian troops exchanged fire across the Suez Canal today until U.N. truce observers arranged a cease-fire, an Israeli army spokesman announced.

The Israelis said the Egyptians opened up on an Israeli air force plane flying over Israeli-occupied territory near El Qantara. Israelis on the east bank of the canal replied with small arms and the Egyptians started using mortars and artillery, the Israelis said.

One Israeli soldier was reported wounded.

The Israelis said the Egyptian plane was shot down by Israeli fighters.

Rep. Carl Albert of Oklahoma, Democratic leader, appeared surprised "that the President is not in nearly as much trouble as I thought he was."

"Vietnam is the No. 1 issue," Albert said. "There is a sense of frustration about the war. I found little talk about taxes but a lot of people are worried about the rioting and there was some criticism of the poverty program and concern over farm prices."

Rep. Gerald R. Ford of Michigan, the Republican leader, said: "I have never seen an administration in such public disfavor."

"The people want this war over with," he added.

These men and women, in addition to their duties in AA, hold positions with the following local business: Reaser is in the Cost Accounting Department of IBM, Biom is Senior Accountant at IBM in Kingston, Gusmano is treasurer of Mid-Hudson Bottled Gas Co., Bennett is associated with National Cash Register Co. as a sales representative, Graessle is Assistant Treasurer of Standard Gage, Murray is Comptroller of Chester Cable Co., Soraci is Chief Accountant at Pawling Rubber Corp., and Wells is staff accountant at DeLaval.

Minutes Count
ATLANTIC, Iowa (AP) — Twin sons were born to Mr. and Mrs. Duane Johnson at the Cass County hospital here. But the two boys will have different "birthdays." The first twin was born at 11:58 p.m.; his brother arrived at 12:02 a.m.—the next day.

Religious Film
The award-winning dramatic film, Beloved Enemy, will be shown at the Olive Shokan Baptist Church, West Shokan, Sunday, Sept. 17, at 8 p.m. The public may attend.

Powell Appears At D.C. Hearing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Adam Clayton Powell, ousted from his Harlem congressional seat by the House for alleged financial misconduct, was back in Washington Monday to appear before a federal grand jury investigating similar allegations.

Powell reportedly appeared in response to a subpoena.

Powell is being investigated in connection with sections of federal law dealing with bribery of witnesses, fraudulent or false claims against the government, conspiracy to defraud the government and embezzlement of theft of public money or records.

The House excluded Powell last March after a congressional committee said he made false reports on expenditures and wrongfully appropriated more than $28,000 in public funds to his own use by allowing his wife to draw a salary when she performed no official duties.

He was re-elected in a special election April 11 and has sought court action to get readmitted. He has not asked the House to readmit him.

Powell declined to tell newsmen about his session with the grand jury.

Student Killed

GABRIELS, N.Y. (AP) — Howard J. Carosella, 18, of Schenectady, was killed Monday when his automobile struck four parked cars along Route 192 in this Adirondack community, State Police said.

Carosella was a student at nearby Paul Smiths College. His address was 1347 Summer Ave.

Dear Abby

Father in Need of Help

DEAR ABBY: I salute you for having the courage to publish the letter from the mother who suspected her husband of molesting their 13-year-old child.

When my eldest daughter was a budding young girl, her father would find all kinds of excuses to surprise her in her bedroom, hoping to catch her in some stage of undress. Many times I saw him in her bedroom, standing by her bed, leaning down at her form as she slept uncovered on a hot night. I finally realized that he had become much too generous with gifts, money, and privileges, and learned too late that he had been buying her favors and silencing her with threats to kill her if she told anyone. I hesitated to turn him into the authorities as he held a fine position and was respected in the community. But I finally trapped him into seeing our family doctor. And in spite of the doctor's pleas and explanations, my husband still holds this daughter, whose life he ruined, equally responsible, and he feels no particular guilt.

We have a younger daughter growing up, and if I ever see her father touch her I intend to shoot him, so help me God!

DEAR MOTHER: And what good will a dead husband be after he has violated a second child? So far you have no reason to believe that he has changed. You may catch him and you may not.

But knowing what you do, if he harms your second child, you are as guilty as he. I say if he refuses psychiatric treatment TODAY, take your child and leave him, and haul him in to court!

DEAR ABBY: I hope you will print this letter because I'm sure I speak for many other mothers-in-law.

I have a son who is married to a lovely young woman. I have no daughter, so I am delighted to have a daughter-in-law. I am pleased to report that we get along just fine.

Abby, we are a very affectionate family and I have always kissed my son hello and good-bye from the time he was a small boy, and I still do. After he married, I greeted his wife in the same manner, but Abby, you can tell when a person is not receptive, and I feel that she doesn't seem to care for my kisses. Please don't misunderstand. She is a perfectly lovely girl, but she is rather cool and conservative. I don't feel right kissing my son hello and good-bye, and not kissing his wife. Would it be better if I didn't kiss either one?

WONDERING: DEAR WONDERING: Continue to kiss your son, and greet your daughter-in-law with a warm smile.

DEAR ABBY: This is my first time to write to a newspaper, but I couldn't remain silent after reading the letter signed PUZZLED, whose husband was fired from the garage because he was "too energetic, and showed the other mechanics up." My husband is 56 years old and has been a plumber since the age of 16.

Recently he lost a day's work when he went to his brother's funeral, but when he got his pay envelope it showed no deduction, so he handed it back to the boss explaining the mistake. He was told to keep it and keep his mouth shut.

Hereafter, if it rains and he doesn't work, he still gets paid. This is his first experience in 40 years of plumbing that he gets money for no work.

We are Christians, Abby, and it leaves us unhappy. I think most people really want to be honest. But it's either this way or get fired.

PLUMBERS WIFE: Problems? Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply, inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

For ABBY'S New Booklet let "WHAT TEEN-AGERS WANT TO KNOW," send $1.00 to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069.

Bridge

Bridge Worriers Defeat Selves

By Oswald and James Jacoby
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

There are so many ways to lose at bridge it is a wonder that anyone manages to win. One of the most painful ways we know is to build up problems every time it is your turn to play.

West was one of these problem builders. East knew it and was prepared to do his best to make things easy for West. East raised to two spades with only three trumps and didn't show his six-card heart suit. East only held seven high card points and his heart suit was ten-spot high so his spade raise was normal enough.

South's jump to five clubs came as a shock to West but left him no course but to pass. West could not double and certainly did not want to go barging into five spades.

East might have worried but East wasn't a worrier. He doubled.

It was up to West to lead and West gave that problem the full treatment before placing the ace of spades on the table.

East did the best he could to ask for a spade continuation. He played his five spot. South played his nine. He hoped that West would shift but felt the play of the ten would be more likely to encourage a spade continuation.

Now the wheels started to turn around in West's head. He still missed the king, ten and four of spades. Obviously East held the four so his five had to be some sort of signal.

That would be enough for most players and the spade suit would be continued but that would have been too simple for West. If East held the ace of hearts, a heart shift would be the killing play, so West led the queen of hearts.

South won with the ace, led a diamond, finessed dummy's queen, discarded his ten of spades on the ace of diamonds and made his contract.

When my eldest daughter was a budding young girl, her father would find all kinds of excuses to surprise her in her bedroom, hoping to catch her in some stage of undress. Many times I saw him in her bedroom, standing by her bed, leaning down at her form as she slept uncovered on a hot night. I finally realized that he had become much too generous with gifts, money, and privileges, and learned too late that he had been buying her favors and silencing her with threats to kill her if she told anyone. I hesitated to turn him into the authorities as he held a fine position and was respected in the community. But I finally trapped him into seeing our family doctor. And in spite of the doctor's pleas and explanations, my husband still holds this daughter, whose life he ruined, equally responsible, and he feels no particular guilt.

ly lovely girl, but she is rather cool and conservative. I don't feel right kissing my son hellow and good-bye, and not kissing his wife. Would it be better if I didn't kiss either one?

DEAR WONDERING: Continue to kiss your son, and greet your daughter-in-law with a warm smile.

DEAR ABBY: This is my first time to write to a newspaper, but I couldn't remain silent after reading the letter signed PUZZLED, whose husband was fired from the garage because he was "too energetic, and showed the other mechanics up." My husband is 56 years old and has been a plumber since the age of 16.

Recently he lost a day's work when he went to his brother's funeral, but when he got his pay envelope it showed no deduction, so he handed it back to the boss explaining the mistake. He was told to keep it and keep his mouth shut. Hereafter, if it rains and he doesn't work, he still gets paid. This is his first experience in 40 years of plumbing that he gets money for no work.

We are Christians, Abby, and it leaves us unhappy. I think most people really want to be honest. But it's either this way or get fired.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

That would be enough for most players and the spade suit would be continued but that would have been too simple for West. If East held the ace of hearts, a heart shift would be the killing play, so West led the queen of hearts.

South won with the ace, led a diamond, finessed dummy's queen, discarded his ten of spades on the ace of diamonds and made his contract.

Carol Burnett Bounces Back

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Carol Burnett, in a short haircut and sophisticated clothes to match her increasing poise and sureness as a performer, bounced back on the television screen Monday night in a new variety hour which, with a little luck and better sketches, might turn out to be one of the happier times.

Miss Burnett, while singing or clowning with guest stars like Jim Nabors, or just talking to the audience, is appealing and engaging. Only when she becomes involved in tedious sketches about dull people, she and the show begin to fall apart.

The opening program of her new CBS series was notable particularly for the imagination of its musical numbers. There was interesting, off-beat camera work in production numbers and her duet with Nabors was swifty and attractive.

Obviously what television needs, and seems to have the fewest of, are good sketch writers for variety shows. They are so rare that in almost every variety show, the players deliberately break up at some point to cover up the lack of good lines.

Danny Thomas, in the debut of his weekly NBC hour, avoided the sketch problem. He simply returned to one of those antiseptic memoirs of old-fashioned burlesque, in which the sketches are supposed to be bad. The format, on a once-a-season basis, has worked for him in other seasons, but Monday night's show was not quite up to the standard of seasons past.

Abetted by guest stars Phil Silvers, Nanette Fabray, Cyd Charisse and Tennessee Ernie Ford, Thomas participated in some vaudeville routines, exaggerated comedy sketches and blackouts. In any other context it would be hard to get away with a sketch about a doctor with a magic machine for transferring one patient's symptoms to another—with Danny, of course, getting the symptoms.

Next week, the Thomas hour will be occupied by the first dramatic show in the anthology series.

Abby Van Buren was once questioned about the Supreme Court ruling that there be no more prayers in the public schools. She answered: "As long as there are examinations in school, the kids will continue to pray."

A local man had quite a time last winter with animals. He says while he was busy keeping the wolf away from the door, the stork came in the window.

Another of those apparently patented Ivan Tors' productions which mix up animals and contemporary adventure in one easy-to-swallow dose for young viewers.

Chuck Connors plays a small, black youngster who, in spite of his impeccable American English, is supposed to be a member of an African tribe. It creates like elands in the same way as American beef herds. The plot thickened, just a quiet for an hour on Monday night, with the bad guys who wanted to stop the project. But, as always on television, the good guys prevailed.

For a little diversity, Connors is given an American Indian as a sidekick and is adopted by a small, black youngster who, in spite of his impeccable American English, is supposed to be a member of an African tribe. Community Chest Parades on Saturday

The longest parade in Ulster County history will march next Saturday through Kingston, Woodstock, Saugerties and New Paltz.

It will start in the morning and continue through the afternoon winding up at Dietz Stadium at 8 p.m. for a gala get up and go for the 1968 Community Chest Kick-off, capped by a giant fireworks display.

"Chester," the charitable chum of chest campaigners will lead the parade, giving away balloons and "Chester" buttons. He will be backed up by 13 floats, representing the 13 agencies the chest supports.

various towns throughout the county. Motorcades will wend their way through West Hurley, Port Ewen and Rosendale.

Judging of floats plus a program of entertainment, open to everyone, will get underway at 8 at Dietz Stadium in Kingston with Bill Skilling, radio pro-

No Confrontation

Port Clear of Soviet Ships

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States waited until the small North Vietnamese port of Cam Pha was clear of Soviet ships before sending Navy planes to bomb its wharves and cargo-handling equipment, Pentagon sources indicate. This was in line with Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara's announced policy of avoiding any direct confrontation with the Soviet Union.

Defense Department sources cautioned against regarding the blow at Cam Pha Monday as foreshadowing strikes against the key North Vietnamese port of Haiphong, some 45 miles to the southwest.

McNamara was understood to be still unshaken in his belief that any possible gain from bombing or mining Haiphong harbor would not be worth the risk of a collision with Moscow if Soviet ships were sunk or damaged as a result of such U.S. actions.

A few Soviet ships virtually always are present in Haiphong harbor. According to intelligence sources, there were about five Soviet ships in port there over the weekend. Cam Pha is believed to have been placed on the approved target list sometime after McNamara testified Aug. 25 before the Senate Preparedness committee. The subcommittee later issued a report which called for unshackling the armed services so they could conduct a tougher air war against North Vietnam.

Upstate Editor Emeritus Dies

DUNKIRK, N.Y. (AP) — Wallace A. Brennan, whose newspaper career was capped by 35 years editorial service on the Dunkirk Evening Observer, is dead at the age of 71.

Brennan, editor emeritus of the daily paper, died Sunday night after being taken ill at his home in Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

During his career in this Lake Erie city, he served as associate to the editor, editor and associate publisher and director. Before that, he was a staff member of the Ithaca Journal, Syracuse Post-Standard, the old Ithaca News and the Fort Dix, N.J., Times.

During World War I, Brennan edited the 78th Division news paper, The Flash, which was published in Dijon, France. He was born in Troy, Ohio.

He served two terms as president of the New York State Society of Newspaper Editors and also held memberships in the American Society of Newspaper Editors, the Associated Dailies of New York State and the New York State Publishers Association.

Killed by Car

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — An automobile struck and killed an elderly woman Monday as she crossed River Boulevard near Rochester's central business district, police said.

She was Grace B. Daley, 75, of Rochester. Her address was 140 S. Fitzhugh St.

Police Probing Robbery Of Migrant Farm Worker

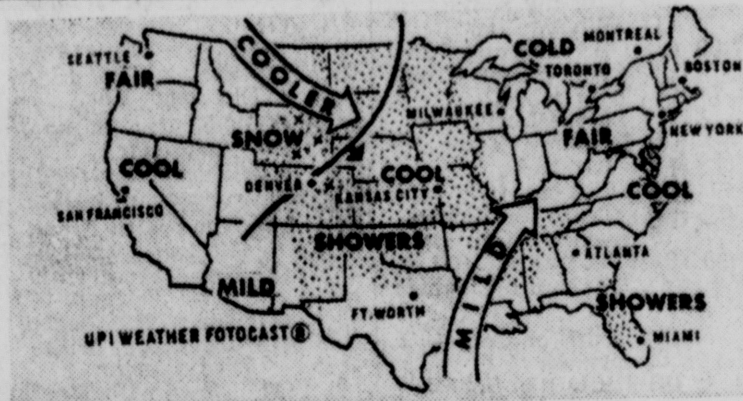

Highland State Police today continued investigation of a reported robbery which occurred Sunday night on a back road in the Town of Plattekill. Four men were sought for questioning.

Troopers checked a report made by Robert Ransom, 44, a migrant farm worker, who resides on Hurd Road, Clintondale, who said he was picked up by four men riding in a dark compact car near Plattekill and taken to a lonely road on the outskirts of town.

Ransom said the men stomped on him and beat him and one "threatened to kill" him with a knife. The farm worker said the men took his wallet containing $3 and personal papers before they left in a car.

One of the four men claimed to be a singer who frequents places and sings while the juke box is played. Another reportedly is called "Duke," according to authorities.

For Period Ending 7 a. m. EST Wednesday

Require 185 Off-shore Laborers for Apple Crop

Assemblyman Kenneth L. Wilson of Woodstock today disclosed steps are presently being taken to insure Ulster County apple growers that enough help will be available for this fall's harvest.

In talks with C. P. Catherwood, State Industrial Commissioner, Wilson said he was told the State Dept. of Industry has certified to the U.S. Secretary of Labor that 185 foreign workers are needed for the harvest. Most of these laborers would be off-shore help, Wilson added.

Wilson explained that these steps were being initiated because state recruitment programs have failed this year to get the desired number of workers.

Community Chest Parades on Saturday

The longest parade in Ulster County history will march next Saturday through Kingston, Woodstock, Saugerties and New Paltz.

It will start in the morning and continue through the afternoon winding up at Dietz Stadium at 8 p.m. for a gala get-up and go for the 1968 Community Chest Kick-off, capped by a giant fireworks display.

"Chester," the charitable chum of chest campaigners will lead the parade, giving away balloons and "Chester" buttons. He will be backed up by 13 floats, representing the 13 agencies the chest supports.

Thirteen Red Feather girls atop glistening convertibles will add glamour to the parade, which will be sparked with music, a Marine Corps color guard, the Kingston High School Band, campaign officials, scouts and chest workers from various towns throughout the county. Motorcades will wend their way through West Hurley, Port Ewen and Rosendale. Judging of floats plus a program of entertainment, open to everyone, will get underway at 8 at Dietz Stadium in Kingston with Bill Skilling, radio program director as master of ceremonies.

Five thousand trading stamps will be awarded the best float and a Union Band will play for the period in which the floats arrive.

Judges will include: George Tamke, chest chairman; Peter Savago, chairman of the Board of Supervisors; Charles Raible, chest president and Mayor Raymond W. Garraghan, chairman of the chest government division.

Civic and chest officials will make brief remarks, there will be stunts by both Y groups and Boy Scouts and folk singing will be heard in a Girl Scout performance. Bands will play, fireworks will flare and a community sing will be held with Doris Shorr.

The entire day's events are being employed as a means of making the community cognizant of the value of united giving through the chest, of the "easy" way of giving through payroll savings and the realization that the entire community benefits when it serves itself.

No Confrontation

Port Clear of Soviet Ships

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States waited until the small North Vietnamese port of Cam Pha was clear of Soviet ships before sending Navy planes to bomb its wharves and cargo-handling equipment, Pentagon sources indicate. This was in line with Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara's announced policy of avoiding any direct confrontation with the Soviet Union.

Defense Department sources cautioned against regarding the blow at Cam Pha Monday as foreshadowing strikes against the key North Vietnamese port of Haiphong, some 45 miles to the southwest.

McNamara was understood to be still unshaken in his belief that any possible gain from bombing or mining Haiphong harbor would not be worth the risk of a collision with Moscow if Soviet ships were sunk or damaged as a result of such U.S. actions.

A few Soviet ships virtually always are present in Haiphong harbor. According to intelligence sources, there were about five Soviet ships in port there over the weekend.

Cam Pha is believed to have been placed on the approved target list sometime after McNamara testified Aug. 25 before the Senate Preparedness subcommittee. The subcommittee later issued a report which called for unshackling the armed services so they could conduct a tougher air war against North Vietnam.

During his career in this Lake Erie city, he served as associate to the editor, editor and associate publisher and director. Before that, he was a staff member of the Ithaca Journal, Syracuse Post-Standard, the old Ithaca News and the Fort Dix, N.J., Times.

During World War I, Brennan edited the 78th Division newspaper, The Flash, which was published in Dijon, France. He was born in Troy, Ohio.

One of the four men claimed to be a singer who frequents places and sings while the juke box is played. Another reportedly is called "Duke," according to authorities.
